GREEK REBELS EXILE PRINCE

LIBERALS PLAN DIRECT BALLOT FOR PRESIDENT

Untermyer Bitterly Raps Daugherty.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Liberals of both houses of congress in conference today with progressives of varying shades of political opinion from all parts of the country, mapped out the course of action they will follow in trying to translate their interpretation of the recent election into legislation.

The outstanding concrete results of the conference was the inauguration of a movement for widespread expansion and perfection of the direct primary system as a means of carrying out the conference slogan: "Drive special privilege out of control of the government and restore it to the people."

Present by Direct Primary.

The program calls for a nomination of presidential candidates by direct vote of the people, without the intervention of any convention; for uniform primary laws in all the states; for the enactment of absent voters laws by all the legislatures which meet; a means for drastic federal corrupt practices act and for the abolishment of the electoral college.

The conference, by unanimous vote adopted a resolution offered by Mrs. Alice Paul Baker, suffrage leader, calling on President Harding to declare and give a general amnesty for "political prisoners."

No attempt was made today to formulate a definite legislative program. The task was delegated to a committee on resolutions which will present a unified report of the conference aims at a later date.

Plans for Mobilization.

The conference unanimously adopted a report presented by the resolutions committee that "your committee, realizing the impossibility of reporting in a single day a legislative and economic program, suggests that the chair appoint a nonpartisan committee for the purpose of bringing about the cooperation of progressives throughout the country to aid in the advance of liberal and general reconstruction based upon a program which your committee and its sections shall draft and report at a future meeting at Washington to be called by the chair."

The nonpartisan advisory committee, it was announced, would consist of Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], Senator La Follette [Rep., Wis.], Senator Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.], Senator Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], Representative Woodruff [Rep., Mich.], Representative Beck [Rep., Wis.], Representative Collins [Dem., Miss.], and Representative Logan [Dem., N. C.]. The resolutions committee is headed by Frederic C. Howe.

La Follette Heads Conference.

Senator La Follette [Rep., Wis.], who is head of the people's legislative committee which called the conference, presided over today's sessions. The proceedings were marked by harmony and singleness of purpose which upset predictions that friction would prompt disruption.

At the very outset of the conference delegates declared their purpose to adopt progressive measures without attempting to organize a third party. The decision making program which occupied most of the day was featured by a bitter attack on Attorney General Daugherty by Samuel Untermyer, prominent New York lawyer, who called the attorney general "a political liar" and demanded a senate investigation of the department of justice.

Secretary of Treasury Mellon was the object of vigorous criticism at the hands of Representative Frear [Rep., Wis.]. Mr. Frear assailed Mr. Mellon for failing to levy drastic penalties on big corporations seeking relief from taxation by the stock dividend route.

Mellon's $30,000 a Day.

Reference was made to Mr. Mellon as "the man who invented stock dividend financing," and said the secretary could not be expected to enforce the law when he was making $50,000 a day in private income. He demanded a "thorough housecleaning" of the internal revenue bureau.

Senator Brookheart [Rep., Ia.] went after the federal reserve board, characterizing it as "the nonpartisan tool of Wall street." He urged that it be completely reorganized so that its membership would include three farmers, three representatives, two little business men, and one big business man.

Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.], who

DOCTOR TELLS HOW HE PUT PEP IN EX-KAISER

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 2.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—The remarkably youthful appearance of former Kaiser Wilhelm on his wedding day was mentioned by eye witnesses.

An explanation was made today, when Dr. Burchardt, a Viennese surgeon, who has just arrived in London, announced that he is ready to perform operations identical to that which rejuvenated the former kaiser on patients here, restoring their lost youth and rejuvenating their faces and figures.

Dr. Burchardt claims his process, which does not involve the transplantation of glands, but the removal of useless organs and secret X-ray treatments, renews youth for a period of five to twenty years in suitable subjects.

NICK LONGWORTH IS KNOCKED OUT BY GOLF BALL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Representative Nicholas Longworth [Rep., Ohio] was knocked out at Chevy Chase club early today when hit on the head by a golf ball while playing in a foursome with President Harding, Representative Frothingham [Rep., Mass.], and Representative Wyatt [Rep., Pa.].

The Ohio congressman, who is prominently mentioned for Republican floor leader in the next congress, was not seriously injured but had to be removed to his home, where he quickly recovered from the shock.

Representative Wyatt drove the ball which struck Mr. Longworth. After luncheon Mr. Longworth was able to resume his duties at the capitol but carried a welt on the back of his head about the size of the ball which hit him.

Father of 4 Offers Gland for Sale—Price, $100,000

One hundred thousand dollars is the price asked for a gland by Jacob Miller, 31 years old, 1032 East Cortland street, Vincennes, Ind. The offer was contained in a letter received yesterday by Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes, in which, after explaining that he is married and the father of four children, Miller says, "I recently read in a local newspaper of a certain millionaire in Chicago who wished to purchase a gland. If he means business I will sell him one. I am a poor man. The price will be $100,000. Please make inquiries, as I am in earnest about this."

SEEK SLAYER OF MYSTERY WOMAN

Victim Found in Calumet Swamp.

Discovery of the body of a woman in a lonely, swampy spot near the Calumet river and 119th street late yesterday revealed what appeared to be a mysterious murder case, virtually without a clew.

The body was that of a woman about 45 years of age. The clothing was complete and good, but without any identification except a cleaner's mark on the skirt. No purse, jewelry, or money were found on the body or near it. There was no indication of any struggle nor any mark of violence upon the body, so far as could be observed. Death occurred about five days ago, it was estimated.

Investigators last night advanced the theory the woman had been poisoned, perhaps robbed, at some spot far distant from the swamp and taken there in a boat.

Hunts Sign of Wound.

Today while officers are trying to identify the body through the cleaner's mark—4747—Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician, will perform an autopsy in an effort to determine the cause of death. He said last night that it was possible the woman might have been stabbed or shot, the wound not being apparent because of the partly decomposed condition.

Where the body was found is a place almost never traversed except by muskrat trappers and duck hunters. It is three-quarters of a mile to the nearest car line and an equal distance from the nearest automobile road. Robert Nelson, a trapper, 1164½ Burley avenue, came upon the dead woman when he walked down a little trail toward his traps.

Nelson notified the Hegewisch police and Sergt. Edward Powers was assigned to take charge of the official investigation. He ordered the body removed to the county morgue.

Cast Out Suicide Theory.

Powers with a squad of officers searched the vicinity, establishing that the woman could not have committed suicide, for there was nothing with which she could have ended her own life.

A detailed description of the woman follows: Five feet five inches tall, weight about 160 pounds; black hair, slightly streaked with gray and rather coarse; square chin; heavy features; eyes, black or dark brown; two gold crowns in upper right jaw.

The clothing is listed as follows: Black velvet hat, trimmed with a black feather like an aigrette; red woolen sailor jacket with a sailor collar, trimmed, as were the cuffs also, with three stripes of black braid; trade mark in jacket, "Jack Tar"; red and green plaid skirt; black silk and wool hose and black silk pumps; knit union suit and black satin bloomers.

Search of police records of missing women failed to disclose reports of any resembling the dead woman.

Officers said the body had the appearance of a foreigner and suggested it resembled the Scottish.

HOWELLS WINS IN CONTEST FOR TRIBUNE TOWER

Novelist's Son Gains Architect Prize.

On Pages 22 and 23 of today's coloroto section of The Tribune appear designs No. 140 and No. 47 in the $100,000 competition for the new Tribune building. Last evening's news from the jury of award shows No. 140 (page 22) to be the work of Benjamin Wistar Morris of New York City; No. 47 (page 23) is by Lucien E. Smith of New York City.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

John Mead Howells of New York City, son of the late William Dean Howells, American novelist, wins first prize in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S $100,000 competition and thus becomes architect of THE TRIBUNE'S new building to be erected at 431-439 North Michigan boulevard at a cost of $7,000,000.

His immediate honorarium is $50,000. Associated with him in preparation of the design was Raymond M. Hood of New York City.

Eliel Saarinen of Helsingfors, Finland, wins the second prize of $20,000. He was winner of the second prize in the competition for the peace palace at The Hague. His associates in the preparation of THE TRIBUNE design were Dwight G. Wallace and Bertell Grenman of Chicago.

The Chicago architectural firm of which William Helabird and Martin Roche are the heads wins the third prize of $10,000.

The remainder of the total of $100,000 in prizes goes in $2,000 allotments to ten recognized American architects who were invited to enter the competition and who did enter.

Named "Tribune Tower."

The new structure will be named the Tribune Tower. Mr. Howells' design will be executed in stone of a light color.

Its style is a Gothic expression of the American skyscraper theme; in other words, an expression of the structural fundamental of the theme. That fundamental is a steel cage.

The fact that there is no impediment to a view of each of the four sides of the building, and the further fact that its site is nearly square [100x125 feet], have given Mr. Howells an opportunity which he has seized boldly.

Lofty and Militant.

The result is an effect at once towering and militant. He asserts that the conditions he has had to deal with provide the greatest opportunity that has been presented to an American architect for the working out on American soil of effects which up to the present time have been best realized in the Woolworth and Bush Terminal buildings in New York City. Those effects—centering around the commanding theme of a Gothic tower springing from the ground to a height of 400 feet—have, however, never been carried to the point expressed by Mr. Howells' Tribune design.

Utters Tribune Ideal.

Mr. Howells has given THE TRIBUNE all that its heart was set upon. He has given it beauty and power. The embattled crown of his building utters THE TRIBUNE ideal. The colossal flying buttresses which—both literally and spiritually—are the supreme note of the structure seem to us to utter a message both of challenge and of guardianship.

He has given us beauty, but not mere loveliness.

He has given us majesty without unmeaning pomp. From the great entrance that will be flush with the boulevard to the embattled chapel, 400 feet above, that will command leagues of lake and city, it is a militant structure. It has its feet firmly upon the ground. Its head looks starward.

An Adornment to City.

Best of all—and THE TRIBUNE says this with a sincere heart—Mr. Howells, by the combined dignity and spirituality of his conception, has done something that will lift our new home out of the category of commercial profit makers and will make it an ornament and an inspiration to the city we love.

It is illuminating to read the earnest words with which he couples his architectural ideal with THE TRIBUNE'S journalistic ideal of battle and of service. Speaking for himself and his colleague, Mr. Hood, he says:

"The design is before everything else an expression of the THE TRIBUNE. The structure is carried to its full height as a square on the Michigan avenue front only, thus always giving the same impression from wherever seen, and

Andrew Will Be Degraded Before Army

BULLETIN.

ATHENS, Dec. 2.—(By United Press.)—Prince Andrew of Greece, brother of the deposed King Constantine, tonight was sentenced to lifelong exile and military degradation for having disobeyed orders during the recent war with Turkey when he had a military command.

The judgment of military degradation means that the prince must have his buttons and badges cut off in the presence of a regiment of troops.

Depositions read at the court martial agreed that Andrew had disobeyed orders during the Asia Minor campaign, when the Greeks were routed by Mustapha Kemal's forces.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, Dec. 2.—The trial of Prince Andrew, a younger brother of former King Constantine, charged with high treason in connection with the defeat of the Greek armies by the Turks in Asia Minor, began today before a revolutionary tribunal composed of ten members under Gen. Vlahopoulo.

Fearing British and Italian naval intervention, the revolutionary tribunal has been ordered to finish the trial by night. If condemned Prince Andrew will be executed at sunrise.

The trial was supposed to start Monday, but Col. Plastiras, who has become dictator of Greece, last night signed an order creating a new revolutionary tribunal, headed by Gen. Vlahopoulo, who also headed the tribunal which condemned the five former ministers and the commanding general of Greece's defeated army to death.

Prince Trembles When Questioned.

Prince Andrew, dressed in civilian clothing, trembled like a leaf as he answered the questions of the court martial. The trial is being held in the parliament building before a small audience of officers and journalists.

Princess Alice, his wife, sat beside the accused prince as the trial opened. Prince Andrew is related to the king of England and various other royal families of Europe.

Two revolutionary commissars representing Col. Plastiras acted as prosecutors.

Five Nations Warn Greeks.

The French, British, Italian, Spanish, and Belgian envoys here today warned the Greek government against further executions and especially that of Prince Andrew.

Fearing a bloody counter revolution, due to the increasing feeling over the trial of the prince, the population of Athens is panic stricken. Thousands are endeavoring to reach a zone of safety. Many, unable to find railway accommodation, left the city by vehicle or on foot today.

The Greek army in western Thrace is reported to have mutinied.

Rumors say that M. Veniselos will soon return here and will attempt to form a new cabinet with the intention of arresting the movement for a counter revolution.

Balkans Threaten Greece.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The Roumanian minister in Athens today warned the Greek government that his government would consider as an unfriendly act any harm done to Queen Elizabeth or King George, her husband.

The Jugo-Slav minister joined the Roumanians in warning the Greek government that the execution of Prince Andrew will cause a most painful impression on their countries.

Prince Andrew is an uncle by marriage of Princesses Marie and Elizabeth of Roumania, who are, respectively, the queens of Jugo-Slavia and Greece. If the prince is treated too severely

RULE BY GROUPS SAPS U. S., SAYS CHIEF JUSTICE

Flays Machine Grip on State Also.

A JUDGE'S APPEAL TO CITIZENS

Excerpts from the speech of Chief Justice Floyd E. Thompson of the Supreme court, before the Illinois State Bar association at the Drake last night:

"Illinois today is suffering from the disgrace of a political system . . . which has enabled unscrupulous men to build up great political organizations.

"It is not the function of a constitution to control the personal habits or behavior of the people.

"In contrast to the men of learning and vision and high principle of the early years of our national life we now find infesting the halls of congress and polluting other high places counterfeit patriots, demagogues and hypocrites.

"There is just one remedy for this evil, (demagoguery), and that is that every citizen become a politician. We have too many political slackers in this country—too many voters suffering from dry rot.

". . . we must not forget that some credit is due him who lives for his country. . . . Unless more people begin to live for their country they will soon have none for which to die."

Warning that the foundations of national and state government in this country are fast crumbling and disintegrating, and that "unless more people begin to live for their country they will soon have none for which to die," was sounded last night by Chief Justice Floyd E. Thompson of the Illinois Supreme court before the Illinois State Bar association at the Hotel Drake.

The chief justice made a complete survey of existing political conditions, pointing out a number of dangers which, he stated, are very dire. He blames conditions upon political demagoguery, the attempt to "control the personal habits or behavior of the people" by legislation, the "spoils" system, the judiciary, the "idlers," and, finally, upon the people themselves.

Condemns Job System.

Speaking of the job distributing system in the federal government, he said:

"Twenty-five years ago there were less than 200 inspectors and investigators in the employ of the federal government, and now there are more than 30,000 of them. Forty years ago there were 50,000 people employed in the administrative branch of the federal government and now there are 500,000 of them.

"State and local governments have padded the payrolls proportionately. If we continue this mania for creating jobs the job holders will soon approach in numbers the producers who are taxed to maintain them."

Justice Thompson was backed up in his speech by Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States railroad labor board. Mr. Hooper charged that many railway union leaders are waging warfare against the roads with the purpose of destroying the industry and forwarding a political campaign for government ownership.

Illinois "System a Disgrace."

Illinois was given a particular place in Judge Thompson's address.

"Illinois," he said, "is today suffering from the disgrace of a political system which has grown up in this state; such a system as could not have been established in this intelligent community if the citizenship of Illinois had kept on the job.

"The spoils of this system have enabled unscrupulous men to build up great political organizations, and it will be difficult to free the state from their power. But it can be done and it must be done. We must attract to the political service of the state men and women of the highest type of intelligence and character who have no personal or group ends to serve.

"There are too many public officials who consider public office private property. They forget that the appointments belong to the people and that they should be made with a view of public service.

Jobs Created Continuously.

"Public contracts are let to political pets at extraordinary profit and inferior work is permitted to be done. Jobs are continually being created for the purpose of paying political debts at public expense.

"This octopus of political corruption must be chained or the very life blood of the state and nation will be sucked."

Justice Thompson again and again was applauded vigorously.

"These are momentous times," he continued. "Strange experiments in government are being tried. There is a mania for exchanging the tried and proven for the new and promising. There is reason to stop, look and listen. It is time for us to take stock and examine well our foundations.

Peril in "Paternalistic Law."

"So much has been said of democracy in the last few years that there is a tendency to tear down the checks and balances erected by our forefathers and to establish in this country the dangerous doctrine that the majority is all wise and cannot err.

"How well our forefathers knew that it is not the function of a constitution to control the personal habits and behavior of the people!

"In contrast to the men of learning and vision and high principle of the early years of our national life we now find infesting the halls of congress and polluting other high places, counterfeit patriots, demagogues and hypocrites.

"Greatest Menace" to Nation.

"In my opinion, the greatest menace to the continuance of popular government is this particular variety of varmint. He is the curse of both political parties and is found in every department of our government, local, state and national.

"These parasites are a lot of unprincipled individuals who use public office to serve their own selfish purposes."

"Demagoguery is not confined to the legislative department, for we hear of judges who turn embezzlers loose on the theory that their employers do not pay them enough, and who order witnesses placed under arrest and confined without complaint or warrant because they do not testify to suit these judicial autocrats.

"There is no need to continue illustrations. The tendency of the times is to encourage these demagogues. After they have become sufficiently famous or infamous because of publicity they receive, they cash themselves for unheard of prices.

"Every Citizen a Politician."

"There is just one remedy for this evil, and that is that every citizen become a politician. We have too many political slackers in this country, too many voters suffering from dry rot.

"We hear too often of the individual who is successful in his private business, but who is too busy to give any time to the business of government. Without government there can be no private business and the time is coming when we will have no government if the decent, respectable citizens do not take time to attend to their public duty.

"It is glorious to die for one's country and all praises to him who makes the supreme sacrifice. But in our praise for the dead we must not forget that some credit is due him who lives for his country. Unless more people begin to live for their country they will soon have none for which to die.

"With the other fads of the moralists and other intolerant bigots comes the delusion that work is an affliction. This spirit has permeated all of us to a degree. One is sure to bring tears to the eyes of one's listeners when describing the poor workman who has to slave and sweat all day in the shop or in the field and then goes home at night and has nothing to eat but food and nothing to wear but clothes.

Workers Only Happy People.

"The truth of the matter is that the only happy people in the world are those that get up in the morning and go to work. The people who never work are mostly the seekers for trouble and the finders thereof. The reason all the people on the earth do not go mad and tear each other to pieces is that they have to work for a living. The only people in this world who amount to anything are those who work.

"There are only a few people in this world who do not work. They are the parasites of the human race, the boils on the neck of the body politic. They are the lounge lizards and the parlor bolsheviki at one end of the garbage heap of life and the vagabonds at the other.

"Some of these idlers have organized themselves and are seeking in this country to establish a form of government that denies the right of property—one of the fundamental ideas of American life.

"One of the most dangerous tendencies of present day governmental changes is the breakdown of the doctrine of common citizenship in a representative democracy before the increasingly sharp division of our citizens into groups, with accompanying group interests, group ambitions, and group power.

Sees Peril in Bloc Rule.

"Division of society into groups or classes is no new thing. It is as old as civilization. The American form of government is in danger whenever a group of men endeavors to operate it in the interest of a section of the country or a group of the citizens.

"A labor party or a farmers' party is as undemocratic and as un-American as an employers' party or a bankers' party. There is need for plain speech on this subject.

"Another tendency of the present day is for the government to intermeddle in every personal activity of the citizens. The use of the power of the state to enforce some particular rule of conduct, which those to whom it appeals describe as moral, easily may differ only in form and not in fact from the long since abandoned use of the power of the state to enforce conformity into religious belief and worship.

"Private morals and private conduct are matters for the consciences of individuals and not for regulation by some majority which at best can only be temporary. Equally obnoxious to the true American is the giving of sums by individuals of wealth and by private associations to enforce some particular law or group of laws which they single out from the great body of statutes.

"The appetite for attending to other people's business grows by what it feeds on, and America must awaken from its lethargy or this hundred headed bureaucratic monster will devour us."

"NIGHT IN PARIS"

Success attended "A Night in Paris, 1919," given yesterday afternoon and last night in the Armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue, by the Women's Overseas Service league and the Forty and Eight. The Armory was transformed into scenes familiar to the A. E. F. when they dodged the alert M. P.'s in their A. W. O. L. wanderings, and at the Armory, too, the M. P.'s were on the job as in those old days. Among those who aided the novelty were (left to right): Miss Della Bloomstein, Miss Effa Brown, Miss Edith Rawlings, Mrs. Kilfred Lesser, and Miss Jean Miller.

STILLMAN TEMPTED BEAUVAIS WITH FIFI AS A BRIDE—FATHER

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—"James A. Stillman's lawyers told my son, Fred Beauvais, that if he confessed that he was the father of Guy Stillman he could marry Mrs. Stillman after she was divorced, and so become a wealthy man."

So asserted C. Beauvais, the father of Fred Beauvais, the guide who figured prominently in the Stillman divorce case, who was here today in connection with his work as councilor of the Caughnawaga Indian tribe.

FRED BEAUVAIS.

"Yes, and Mr. Stillman's lawyers tried to buy all the witnesses that they could," he maintained.

"Did any of them offer you any money?" he was asked.

"No, they knew that I was for Mrs. Stillman. She is a lady through and through," was the answer.

"Has Fred received any correspondence from Mrs. Stillman?"

"No. Fred has not received a line from Mrs. Stillman. He lives at the Caughanawaga reserve with me and nothing but his work buying timber lands takes up his mind."

"Who is backing him? Has he any money?"

"Well, he has his own money, which is considerable, and brokers, I don't know their names, are backing him."

"Does Fred ever talk about Mrs. Stillman; or is he thinking of getting married to any of the squaws on the reservation?"

"No. Fred never bothers with women of any kind."

DEPUTIES START DOWN LONG, LONG TRAIL OF SCOTCH

Shanghaied as Liner Beats Police Boat.

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Somewhere on the Atlantic watching the receding lights of Long Island are two New York deputy sheriffs.

They are bound for Scotland, and in order that they may learn the idiosyncracies of the Scotch they have to keep them company some famous Scotchmen, Johnny Walker, John Dewar, and the noted Haig brothers.

A mad chase of the police boat Manhattan down New York bay failed to rescue them. The steamship Assyria, on which they sailed, was too speedy for the Manhattan and the skipper of the latter, after chugging down to Sandy Hook, with orders to "use force if necessary" reluctantly piloted his craft back to the Battery.

Whisky Got 'Em.

The deputy sheriffs went to get the whisky, but it was the old story—the whisky got them.

They boarded the Anchor line late today with a replevin for 4,000 cases of the 11,505 cases on board. The replevin was on a suit brought against the defunct Alps Drug company.

But a slight misunderstanding arose. The laws of the county of New York and the laws of the U. S. A. couldn't be reconciled. A U. S. customs officer demurred. The deputies insisted. The customs man sent for reinforcements and some of Mr. Haynes' finest appeared on the scene.

"Touch but one drop of it and you go to jail for illegal possession" the finest opined dramatically.

The deputies conferred. Two of them were left on board while the others went to consult with Sheriff Percival Nagel.

Capt. William Rome of the Assyria about this time consulted his chronometer, boxed the compass, hitched his trousers, and thought he'd sail.

Deputies Rooney and Nicolai objected, but the captain whistled for a tug and a wind and started down the bay.

"And we're not making any stops this trip," he remarked casually to Rooney.

A few minutes later Deputy Police Inspector Cornelius J. Cahalane received a telephone message.

"Send a boat after the Assyria. The captain's shanghaied two of my deputies," said an official voice.

And the inspector sent the Manhattan.

But Deputy Sheriffs Rooney and Nicolai and their companions, Walker, Dewar, and Haid and Haig, are somewhere around Montauk Point now.

EAST AND WEST SPLIT HONOR IN STOCK JUDGING

Virginia Wins One Trophy and California Another.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Virginia, famous for jumbo peanuts and broad tobacco leaves, placed another trophy in her hall of fame yesterday when the stock judging team from that state won first in the non-collegiate judging contest at the opening day of the International Live Stock exposition. The three Virginia boys scored 1,041 points and the Iowa trio won second, scoring 1,019 points.

The Virginia team is composed of Lyle M. Armentrout, Howard Swank and Alfred Huffard. The other seventeen teams ranked as follows: Georgia, 1015; Minnesota, 959; Ohio, 957; Indiana, 944; Michigan, 938; Oklahoma, 938; Texas, 935; West Virginia, 930; California, 902; Colorado, 902; Pennsylvania, 898; Kansas, 884; Louisiana, 868; Illinois, 857; Nebraska, 855; Missouri, 835; and Arkansas, 811.

In competition with fifty-six contestants, William Armstrong of California, won the individual honor, making the highest score of 387 points for placing and reasons.

For the first time in eighteen shows Illinois was represented yesterday in the intercollegiate live stock judging contest, which closed last night. The awards will be announced today.

The junior feeding and the junior judging contests were also held at the International amphitheater yesterday afternoon. Judges of the hay and grain show started their work early yesterday morning. Announcements of the awards will be made early in the week.

HORSES WIN FIRST RIBBONS

Keen competition among local horse fanciers marked the opening program of the annual horse show last night at the International Amphitheater. One of the largest crowds of enthusiasts that ever attended the first night's display of blue blooded horses greeted the judges when they started their evening's work.

The program, which was composed entirely of Chicago entries, caused the judges to ponder over the classes with especially close scrutiny before making their final decisions. To Dr. Walter T. Venn went the first blue ribbon of the evening. His entry, Black Pine, was finally selected from a limited class, which was composed of hunters up to carrying 170 pounds to hounds.

Kelly, entered by the United States army, was named second best, while Bon Ton, owned by Mrs. S. Peabody of Hinsdale, Ill., carried off third money. Red Heart, the entry of Mrs. John D. Hertz, was fourth.

Race Close in Combination.

Edward Morris won his first victory of the show when the judges awarded his entry, Rexe Rene, the blue ribbon in the combination harness and saddle class. The award was made after close study and brought cheers. Mrs. J. D. Hertz's Red Cross was second choice, while third went to Otto W. Lehmann's Mildred Star. Jackie Coogan, shown by the Chicago Riding academy, took fourth money.

The prize for the saddle horse most suited for stock yards work was carried off by Tom M. Lee. His entry, Billy Bruce, was selected from a field of seven. Mack, owned by F. M. Hatch, took second place, while the consolation honors went to Rex Turner, the entry of McCausland, Hoag & Vaughan.

The exhibition of six horse teams was followed by the riding teams, shown at walk, trot, and canter. First honors in this division went to Mr. and Mrs. James G. Alexander, whose entry of Cleo Malone and Francis Starr was named after much deliberation. Mrs. John D. Hertz won her third runner-up prize when Dark Flower and Red Cross were named as second best. Starlight and Grey Gull, the entry of Ralph D. Bradley, carried off third money.

Rillington Nimble won the first blue ribbon for Mrs. John D. Hertz when he defeated a large entry in the heavy harness class. Brier Flash, shown by William E. Dee, was chosen for second money.

Polo Teams in Hair Raisers.

Prolonged applause greeted the indoor polo teams when they made their initial contest a hair raising event. The battle was between a picked trio from Fort Sheridan and the regular members of the North Shore Polo and Hunt club. The former won, 8 goals to 6.

Honors in the five gaited saddle horse class went to Elias Mayer, whose entry, Elmay, triumphed over a field of twelve starters. Al Jolson, shown by R. G. Young, was selected for second place, while third money was awarded to Mrs. A. C. Thompson's entry, Radio King.

The winners in the hunter class, carrying 170 pounds over brushes and fences, were: Watch Me, entered by John D. Hertz, first; The Gray Parson, entered by the United States army, second; William McGregor, entered by O. W. Lehmann, third, and Gay Girl, entered by Mrs. John D. Hertz, fourth.

Morris Wins Two Blue Ribbons.

A second blue ribbon was won by Edward Morris when his entry, Rexe Rene defeated the largest class of the night, in the three gaited saddle division, Dark Flower, the entry of Mrs. Hertz, was selected for second honors, with Reality, shown by Miss Ruth Moody, taking third place. Spide, the entry of L. Monte Stein, came in for fourth position.

SWEDISH INVENTOR HAS NEW OIL LIGHT.

Claims Whiter and Much Cheaper Light Than Electric or Gas.

Edison enabled us to enjoy the benefits of electric light, Count Welsbach's mantle made it possible to have the incandescent gas light, but it remained for a Swedish engineer named Johnson, now living in Chicago, to devise a lamp that would burn ordinary, everyday kerosene oil and produce a light said by the many scientists who have seen it to be whiter than electric. The lamp is as simple to operate as the old style lamp, burns without odor, smoke, or noise, and is proving a sensation where oil light is needed.

Mr. Johnson offers to send a lamp on ten days' free trial and will even give one to the first user in each locality who will help introduce it. A letter addressed to L. P. Johnson, 609 W. Lake-st., Chicago, will bring full particulars about this wonderful new lamp. He has an interesting agency offer, too.—Adv.

PIONEERS' SONS TO LAY STONE ON DEARBORN SITE

William Robert Wood of Omaha, Neb., great grandson of Capt. John Whistler, builder of Fort Dearborn in 1803, will lay the corner stone this afternoon of the new London Guarantee and Accident building on the site of the old fort, at the junction of North Michigan boulevard and the south bank of the Chicago river.

The Misses Catherine and Margaret Joy of Marshall, Mich., great-great-granddaughters of Capt. Whistler, also will assist in the ceremony, at which more than thirty descendants of Chicago pioneers will be guests of honor.

The ceremony will be preceded at 2 o'clock by exercises under the auspices of the Chicago Historical society. A military escort of fifty-five men from Fort Sheridan, the original number of the garrison of Fort Dearborn at the time of the massacre, Aug. 15, 1812, will be guard of honor.

Women to Get Same Pay as Men in U. S. Printing Office

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Women in the government printing office here performing the same operations as men will receive equal pay of men, it was announced today by George H. Carter, public printer. The order, effective immediately, followed an investigation which showed "unjust discriminations," Mr. Carter said. Increases of from 10 to 20 cents an hour will be given the 215 women affected by the order, and decreases in salaries of about 200 men employes will offset this in part.

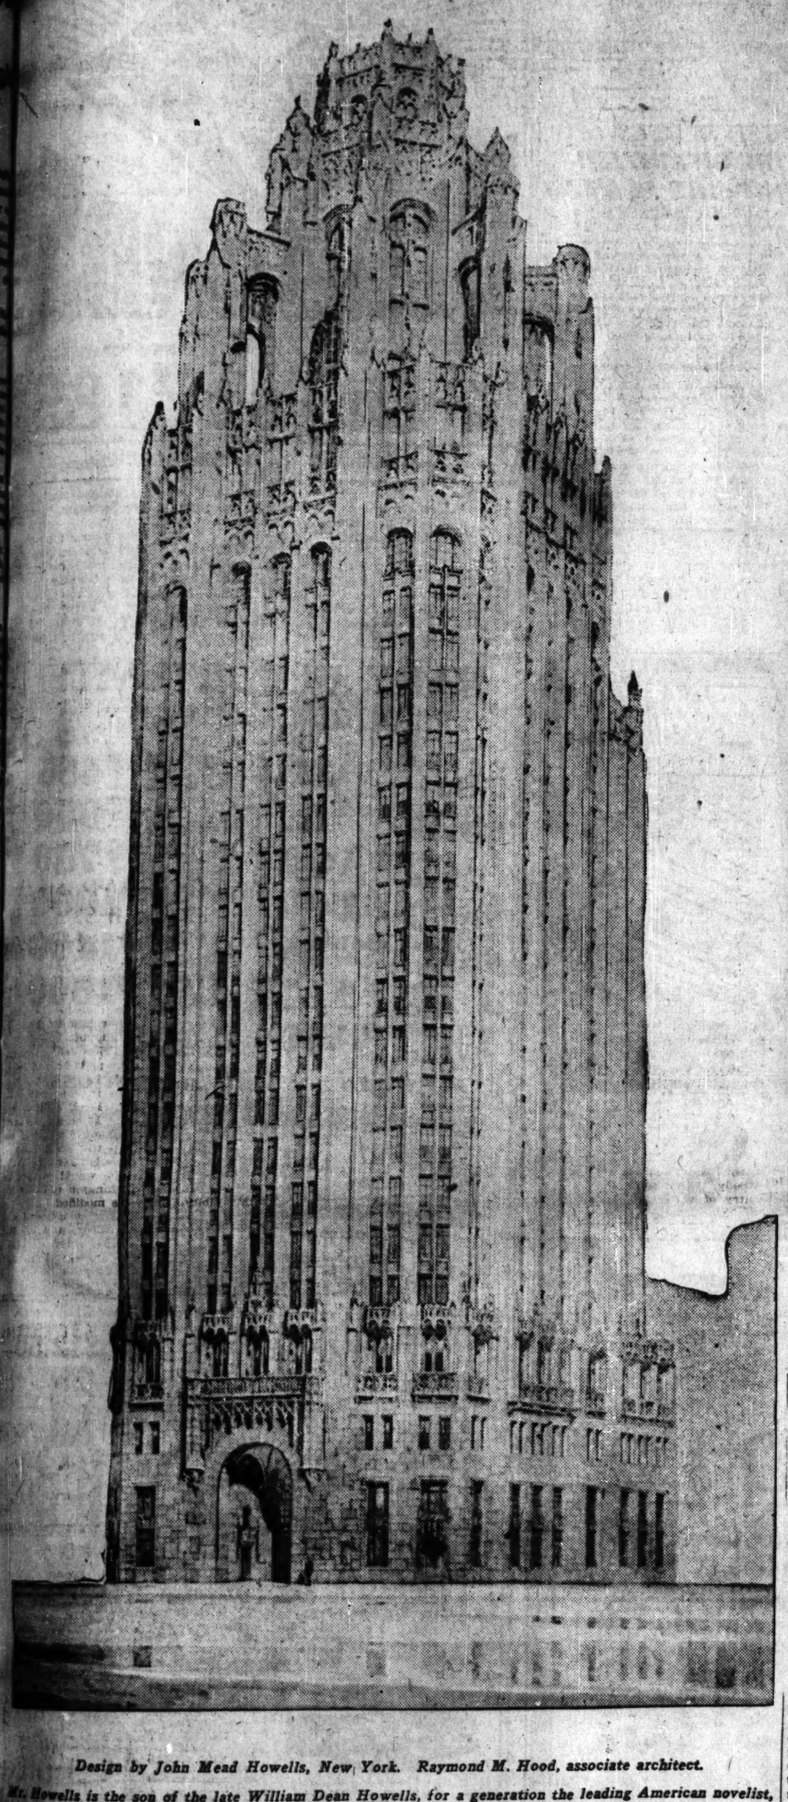
AWARDS IN ARCHITECTS' COMPETITION FOR NEW TRIBUNE BUILDING

THE WINNING DESIGN---$50,000 PRIZE



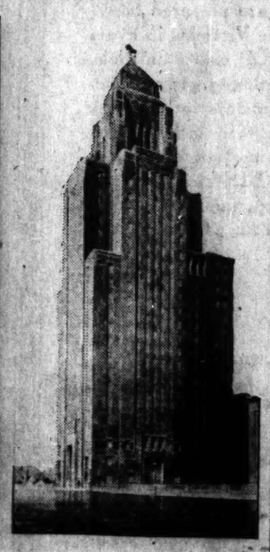
Design by John Mead Howells, New York. Raymond M. Hood, associate architect.

Mr. Howells is the son of the late William Dean Howells, for a generation the leading American novelist, critic, and essayist.

HONORABLE MENTION

Designed by Guy Lowell of Boston, Mass.

Designed by Louis Bourgeois, Francis E. Dunlap, and Charles L. Morgan of Chicago.



Designed by Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue of New York.

HOWELLS WINS COMPETITION FOR TRIBUNE TOWER

Son of Novelist Gains Architect Prize.

showing the same from all points as THE TRIBUNE landmark.

We feel that in this design we have produced a unit. It is not a tower or top, placed on a building—it is all one building.

It climbs into the air naturally, carrying up its main structural lines, and binding them together with a high open parapet. Our disposition of the main structural piers on the exterior has been adopted to give the full utilization of the corner light in the offices, and the view up and down the avenue.

Our desire has been not so much an archaeological expression of any particular style as to express in the exterior the essentially American problem of skyscraper construction, with its continued vertical lines and its inserted horizontals. It is only carrying forward to a final expression what many of us architects have tried already under more or less hampering conditions in various cities. We have wished to make this landmark the study of a beautiful and vigorous form, not of an extraordinary form.

The area of the cross section of the central motif of the top plus the area of its several supports is 3,360 square feet, and thus within the 3,600 square feet allowed, the frontage of the top on the street being also within the building law.

It is perhaps not necessary to call attention to the fact that the upper part of the building has been designed not only for its own outline and composition, but for the possibilities of illumination and reflected lighting at night.

Square Tower Effect.

It will be observed by reference to the picture of Mr. Howells' design on this page that he has, in the architectural phrase, "stepped back"—his building from only one side. That withdrawing of the main structure comes at a height of 200 feet. But by the device—we think it a stroke of genius—of confining the back stepping to one side of the building the architect has preserved on the boulevard side and the north and south sides the effect of a nearly square tower lifting its mighty bulk to a height of 400 feet.

Military Gothic, which is how the style of our new home has been defined, never, we believe, had a greater chance to get itself expressed.

As Austin avenue will bound the building on the south, the view of its superb lines from street level to roof can never be cut off on that side. As THE TRIBUNE owns the lot on the north, it will look to it that no structure which will destroy the nobility of the view from that side is ever erected.

By the terms of the Chicago building ordinances Tribune Tower may be occupied to a height of 260 feet. That height comprises twenty-one stories. The rest is for inspiration, a factor, be assured, as essential to the men and the women, the writers and the handicraftsmen, the boys and the girls, of a journal like THE TRIBUNE as are the printing presses that thunder all night long below them.

Harmony of Design.

We emphatically congratulate Mr. Howells and ourselves that the theme of the eight flying buttresses and their sustaining piers is carried without interruption and without confusion from the ground to the summit. There is inspiration in that tremendous sweep upward, and it ends in benediction. We visualize our new building as a protagonist of service. He is composed, uncluttered, commanding—and he says to us something that we must live up to. He is mass plus vigor.

Mr. Howells has not treated the structure as a building and a tower. It is not one thing set on top of another. It is a unit, and as such it will fill its destined site like the rock of Gibraltar, holding its own amid all the tremendous things which within the next decade, we are confident, will rise along the new mile between the heart of the city and its beneficent breathing spaces of green and of shore line to the north.

A stroke of the architect's that it seems trivial to describe as charming must be touched upon here. Very charming it is, though it is much more than that.

He has let the blue sky into the embattled crown of his building. From every point of view there will be glimpses of sunlight and of cloud between the eight flying buttresses which, in their totality give the enormous power of battlements to his culminating note but which are also instinct with grace.

Called Real Achievement.

When his conception begins to take form in stone we believe our neighbors and fellow townsmen will acclaim John Mead Howells as a dreamer and builder who has done a significant thing in the history of American commercial architecture. He has combined sublimity with simplicity. He has been austere but he also has been majestic.

To THE TRIBUNE what he has done brings home not thoughts of more dollars and more circulation and more timber lands to make paper from, and more ships and trains to carry it in, but thoughts of the obligations of a profession which, to mean anything lasting, must mean service.

John Mead Howells is 54 years old. He was born in Cambridge, Mass., where his father, William Dean Howells, was editor of the Atlantic Monthly and was writing the earlier works in the long series of novels which also are social documents and which have taken a permanent place in the literary history of the nineteenth century. His mother was Eleanor Mead Howells. He was educated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at Harvard, and he earned the diploma of the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. He married Abby McDougall White of New York City, daughter of the publicist, Horace White, in 1907. Among his most notable works are buildings for Harvard, Yale, and Columbia universities, and for banks and trust companies in New York, San Francisco, and Seattle. He is a member of the American Institute of Architects and the American Institute of Arts and Letters, and president of the New York Society of Diplomaed Architects, Paris.

THE TRIBUNE tower will be his first Chicago building.

Associate architect of the winning design.

Prize Winner from Finland.

Of Mr. Saarinen, the Finlander, who wins the second prize, THE TRIBUNE knows nothing save that he has done a notable and lovely thing, just as he did when he entered The Hague peace palace competition, in which he won second prize. His TRIBUNE design arrived during the closing days of our competition and it created a sensation. No finer proof of the north European cultural renaissance, to which Finland is contributing in music, in poetry and in architecture, could be desired than the proof provided by Mr. Saarinen's design.

Messrs. Holabird and Roche are Chicagoans. Their prize winning design is profoundly impressive. The work with which they already have adorned Chicago is known and highly regarded.

U. S. BACKS UP ALLIES ON LAW TO CURB TURK

Demands Protection for All Foreigners.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 2.—The Thracian rebels, continuing in their successes, now dominate most of the frontier of Bulgarian Thrace, and also the frontier of eastern and western Thrace. The rebels, reported to number 15,000, have blown up tunnels and railroads near Saloniki and Karagatch. A dispatch from Athens confirms the grave revolts in the region of Xanthia.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

(Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.)

LAUSANNE, Dec. 2.—The United States stands solidly behind Great Britain and the other allies in insisting that Turkey must be restrained, in principle at least. Ambassador Richard Washburn Child today stated that the American government shares the allied view that the interests of their nationals in Turkey must be safeguarded.

The allied viewpoint is not yet formulated definitely, but the British insist that capitulations must be restrained, even if they are retained under another name. Ismet Pasha today refused point blank the allied demand for a continuance of capitulations. He asserted he would not accept any special régime for foreigners in Turkey, regardless of the name under which such a special régime might be camouflaged.

Despite his refusal, however, Ismet did not raise any objection when the whole question was turned over to a subcommittee for examination.

Offers Separate Treaties.

"We are willing," explained Ismet, "to negotiate separate commercial treaties direct with the various powers and to include in such treaties reciprocal clauses for mutual protection of interests, but we will never permit capitulations to be imposed on Turkey again."

Ambassador Child told the conference commission that the United States would be satisfied with any form of guarantees which Turkey might give either in the form of internal legislation for the protection of foreigners and their interests or in separate treaties.

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese envoy, pointed out that it took Japan twenty years to work out a system for the protection of foreigners, and that the system resulted in annulling the former special régime.

Parley May Take Recess.

There are rumors in Lausanne that the British are preparing to abandon the conference if the Turks persist in refusing to come to terms with the British on the three principal questions at issue—oil, the straits, and capitulations.

Peelers are being put out for an adjournment of the conference until after the holidays. First, according to this plan, broad general outlines of the principles which are to guide the conference would be drawn up. Then the questions at issue would be left to experts to thrash out and formulate the application of the accepted principles in the treaty to be drawn up.

The British hint that Ismet will want to return to Angora shortly to obtain further instructions from the national assembly. The Turks deny that they need to refer anything to their government. The Turkish Nationalist pact, they declare, embodies all their demands and aspirations.

Americans Welcome, Turks Say.

ANGORA, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Premier Reouf Bey told the national assembly today that anti-Turkish propaganda was being carried on in the United States with the evident design of embarrassing the claims of the Angora government at the Lausanne peace conference.

He reiterated that American institutions and individuals enjoyed the fullest privileges, protection and hospitality of the Angora government, and no Americans are being asked to leave the country, as alleged.

Denies Ousting Christians.

"Our government and people have always maintained a respectful attitude toward the American nation and public opinion," he continued. "The American government knows how zealous we have been in this regard. We have always acted as guardians of the American institutions, even during the world war.

"It is not true that we are trying to drive out the Christians from Asia Minor—those who desire to leave have been given thirty days' time."

At this juncture the speaker was interrupted by the deputy from Diarbekir, who cried: "We want them driven out."

French Quitting Brusa.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Despite assurances from Angora that the interests of the French colony would be safeguarded, most of the colony has left Brusa. Twenty members, including merchants, silk growers, priests and two Catholic nuns whose convent recently was attacked, arrived in Constantinople today. The French consulate at Brusa remains closed.

The Kemalists are making up lists of those who are alleged to have aided the Greeks or the allies during the war. The names will be handed to traveling tribunals, who will adjudge them.

Greece will be barred from the little entente and the support of the latter for the Greek cause at the Lausanne conference will be withdrawn to the greatest possible extent.

Concentrations of Jugo-Slav troops are reported on the Greek frontiers in order to awe Greece.

Italy May Send Ships.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, Dec. 2.—Italian public opinion continues heated against the action of the revolutionary committee at Athens in executing six prominent officials. Demands are growing that the Italian government take action to prevent fresh horrors.

Reports are current here that Italy will send battleships to Greece to protect Italian nationals.

News from Belgrade and Bucharest states that those governments are ordering strong contingents of troops to the Greek borders and may soon start action against the Greek army.

The conviction is growing here that Greece is in the hands of bolshevists and there is apprehension that this condition may spread over the Balkan peninsula. If this proves true it is asserted that the Mussolini government will take drastic measures to arrest the Red wave before it spreads too far.

Counter Revolt Starts.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 2.—[Via Tribune Wireless.]—News from Athens is fragmentary today, only the briefest bulletins piercing the cloud of censorship which is obscuring the movements in the perturbed Greek capital.

It is believed in official circles in London that the revolutionary leaders are fearful of raising a hornets' nest about their ears as a result of the popular excitement over the execution of the five former cabinet ministers and Commander-in-Chief Hadjanistis, and therefore Prince Andrew will escape the death penalty.

While yesterday's reports stated that Athens was calm, today's reports say public opinion is highly indignant. In other parts of the country there are rumors of counter revolutionary outbreaks, notably at Patras, Corfu, and Missolonghi, where the British flag is said to have been hoisted by revolutionaries.

An announcement from Lausanne says M. Venizelos is practically certain to return to Athens, if not to form a cabinet himself, then to be the presiding genius behind one formed by M. Politis, former foreign minister.

REJECT NANSEN PLAN TO REMOVE GREEKS, TURKS

U. S. to Leave Near East to Relief Agencies.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—The American government, it was intimated in administration quarters today, will continue to leave to private institutions, such as the American Red Cross and the near east relief, the humanitarian work which those organizations have been carrying on in Turkey and Greece.

As has been its practice, however, the government will continue to lend its assistance, by the use of war vessels and transports in great emergencies, such as the evacuation of the Christian population from Smyrna, and in affording diplomatic aid and protection to the private agencies.

Nansen Plan Rejected.

The project reported to be sponsored by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, by which the United States would assume the whole cost of transporting 700,000 Christians out of Turkey and 400,000 Turks out of western Thrace to Turkey, does not appeal to the authorities here.

The impression is that some European agencies are prolific of ideas concerning how American charitable activities might be conducted and how American money might be expended, but confine themselves too closely in the province of advice and reveal either an incapacity or an indisposition to enter the field of active effort.

Relief Agencies Prepared.

The Lausanne peace conference, it is reiterated, will affect very materially the work of both the American Red Cross and the near east relief in Turkey and Greece, but both agencies are prepared to cope with practically any situation which may arise.

Neither will be deterred from the execution of its plans by European criticism, but with the field divided between them will continue to exert themselves to the maximum of their capabilities and resources.

IRISH REBELS FIRE ON BRITISH SHIP; HIT SEAMAN

DUBLIN, Dec. 2.—Firing is proceeding in the suburbs of Dublin tonight.

The British destroyer Vansittart, lying in the river about 150 yards from the town of Kenmare, is reported to have been attacked from the shore by irregulars who opened rifle fire on the craft. The crew took to cover and did not attempt to return the fire. Able Seaman W. Hams was shot through the left shoulder.

Bomb Belfast Professor.

BELFAST, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Bombs were hurled today into the home of Dr. Thomas Walsh, professor of pathology at Galway university and chairman of the urban council. The missiles shattered windows and tore a large hole in the wall. It is believed that the demonstration was an outgrowth of Dr. Walsh's refusal to permit the council to discuss the recent executions in Dublin.

TIGER SUMMONS U.S. GENII OUT OF ISOLATION VIAL

Come Back to Erring, His Refrain to America.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—Reëntry of America into European affairs, either as a member of the league of nations or on some other basis, was urged today by Georges Clemenceau, war premier of France, in the fourth of his series of addresses in this country, delivered at the Odeon before a capacity audience that applauded him roundly at frequent intervals.

The Tiger, summarizing what he thought he had accomplished so far on his tour of America, declared he believed he had convinced the country that France was not militaristic nor imperialistic, and that she had every intention of paying her debt to the United States.

Just to make sure, however, he reiterated his arguments briefly on these points before he launched into the subject of American participation in old world affairs—the point, he said, that he has been most frequently advised he will not be able to get across.

Criticizes U. S. Naval Policy.

In the midst of his discussion of militarism, he reiterated the statement that America showed certain signs of militarism herself, and launched into a criticism of her naval policy.

"I do not intend to interfere in your policy," he said. "However, you interfered in mine [referring to the militarism charges] and I think I have the right to say that sometimes you were very much inclined toward the development of your military establishments.

"You have the best frontiers in the world. They cannot be better. But the other day you said you are unprotected unless you have 500,000 tons of warships. That may be. I will give you a million tons if you want it. It is a way of spending and wasting your money which is, of course, at your disposition. I do not believe very much in capital warships now, because there are submarines and airplanes which make warships no longer capital.

Dire Prophecy for Posterity.

"England has increased her military power 19 per cent," he continued, "and France 11 per cent. Well, we will see. I doubt whether I will see the effect of this, but it may be the privilege of some of you. We will see what may come out of it."

Plunging then into his appeal for America to resume an active rôle in Europe Clemenceau recited the history of America's entrance into the war and her part in making peace.

He was interrupted by a long wave of applause when he mentioned Woodrow Wilson and his "fourteen points," on which he declared the peace was based.

"What were these fourteen points for?" he continued. "Pleadings set forth before all human kind. Your declaration of independence said, 'Equal rights, pursuit of happiness for every man, liberty.' That was beautiful for them to fight for in 1776.

Cause for American Pride.

"It came from America to Europe again, and you may be proud that this armistice and treaty had at its front the fourteen points, which were nothing but the translation of the declaration of independence.

"It seems to me some are very selfish. They say, 'we will make our home comfortable. We will build walls, we will not admit strangers, and we will be there and be happy.' You did not do that in 74.

"There is a tale in an Arabian book of a genii in a bottle, and when it is set you cannot make him get in. Your one is just the other way. You are the genii in the bottle and do not want to come out. I call you, by the bottle." America, he continued, owed it to Europe to help enforce the terms of the Versailles treaty, because she had had so large a hand in the making of its terms, and because its terms—particularly those referring to reparations and disarmament—were being flouted by Germany.

Clemenceau left shortly before midnight on a special train for Baltimore. He was scheduled to make a five minute speech to members of the Society of Friends at Richmond, Ind., in the morning. He arrives in Baltimore about 9 o'clock Monday morning.

CHILDREN ASKED BY TIGER TO AID LOUVAIN FUNDS

New York, Dec. 2.—Georges Clemenceau today asked New York school children "to give, to give, and to give, in return for what Belgium has given the world," in a letter on the eve of the opening of a week's campaign to raise the $1,000,000 fund for rebuilding Louvian library.

"While reading in your splendid public libraries," M. Clemenceau wrote, "think of Louvain's children who are denied the privileges you enjoy, because their library, one of the greatest in the world, was razed for no other reason than wanton destruction."

United States Commissioner of Education Claxton has charge of the campaign among the school children.

G. O. P., WHIPPED BY FILIBUSTER, KILLS DYER BILL

White Flag Raised by Senate Caucus.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Success crowned the filibuster of senate Democrats against the Dyer anti-lynching bill today when Republican senators in party caucus voted to abandon the measure completely.

The Republican majority acted after the Democrats by what is generally conceded to have been one of the most efficiently conducted filibusters in the history of the senate had prevented the transaction of any business for the fourth consecutive legislative day. The obstructionist tactics of the Democrats, moreover, were threatening more than a thousand presidential nominations, which, if unconfirmed by Monday noon, when the special session ends, must be again submitted.

Lets Majority Decide.

The Republican caucus was preceded by a conference attended by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader; Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip, and Senator Shortridge of California, in charge of the Dyer bill. Senator Shortridge, who has been unmovable throughout the filibuster, was understood to have agreed at this conference to allow the fate of the bill to be decided by a majority caucus.

The final decision, however, was to direct Senator Lodge to inform the Democratic leaders that the bill would be pushed no further, either at the special session or at the regular session convening Monday. This means the death of the legislation, which the Democrats have attacked as "a force bill" and as unconstitutional.

Lodge Makes Statement.

Senator Lodge made the following statement tonight on the Republican decision:

"The conference was in session nearly three hours and discussed the question very thoroughly. Of course, the Republicans feel very strongly, as I do, that the bill ought to become law. The situation before us was this: Under the rules of the senate, the Democrats who are filibustering could keep up the filibuster indefinitely and there is no doubt that they would do so.

"An attempt to change the rules would only shift the filibuster to another subject. We cannot pass the bill in this congress and therefore we had to choose between giving up the whole session to a protracted filibuster or going ahead with the regular business, which includes farm legislation, the shipping and appropriation bills."

ST. LOUIS MAN DISCOVERS A NEW KIND OF HEAT.

Mr. B. M. Oliver of St. Louis has invented an amazing device which ends forever the days of woman's slavery to dirty, mussy coal and wood fires. It sets into the firebox of any kind of heating stove, cook stove, or furnace without changes, and, just turning a valve, it gives any degree of heat—three times the heat of coal.

Mr. Oliver calls his invention the Oliver Oil-Gas Burner, because it burns 95% air and 5% oil (kerosene). Over 100,000 Oliver Burners are being used by American housewives. Mr. Oliver wants every woman to have the use of his invention. If you will write to him at 2201-L Oliver building, St. Louis, Mo., you will receive an attractive booklet FREE that tells all about it. Mr. Oliver is now making a special Low Price Offer, including a 30 Day Free Trial. He is also looking for live distributors, and will tell you how to earn $500 a month in full or spare time if you will request his sales plan.—Adv.

ANCIENT RITES OF TURKEY REVIVED BY NEW CALIPH

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Prince Abdul Medjid Effendi, the new caliph, has revived the traditions of medieval times by riding to St. Sophia mosque on horseback in ancient cavalier fashion. His appearance yesterday in the streets of Stamboul on a big gray charger excited the wonderment of the Turks, who rose from their coffee cups to applaud him.

The prince had anything but the appearance of an ecclesiastical personage, attired as he was in a raincoat, riding breeches, high boots and the conventional fez. He was the central figure of the weekly selamlik devotional services, which for the first time in modern history were held in St. Sophia. Prayers were said for the fallen Turkish soldiers.

In all public ceremonies the caliph is accompanied by Rafet Pasha, who keeps a solicitous eye on him as if he feared someone might spirit him away.

Noted Mexican Smuggler Is Killed by River Guards

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 2.—Martinado, Villareal, chief of the oldest and most feared band of smugglers on the Texas-Mexican border, was killed and part of his crew captured in a running gun battle on the Mexican side near Nuevo Laredo Friday night.

Villareal said he had been operating for eighteen years and had killed fourteen customs guards in that period. Shortly after telling of his exploits he died lying on the ground where he was shot down.

FASHION TELLS SLINKER SHE IS O. K. NEXT YEAR

Long Skirt Is to Stay, Makers Decide.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 2.—Longer skirts and shorter jackets will grace the boulevard queen in the spring of 1923, according to the styles shown here today at the annual convention of the National Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' association.

The straightline silhouette will remain, but will be varied by draped blouse effects and flaring lines in sport and auto coats. Sleeves are to be loose and bell shaped on many coats and jackets will be gathered in narrow bands at the wrists. Plaids were shown in the sport coat types.

Skirts Are Draped.

The low bloused jacket and boxy type of suit coat are being made for wear with a plain skirt or with a dress to constitute a three piece suit. In many instances the skirt is draped slightly and has an uneven hemline. Poiret and twill cord, however, will be the most widely used for suits, manufacturers said.

The soft, clinging fabrics will give their grace to spring coats which are of three types, wraps, capes and straightline coats, either with or without a blouse. Silk will appear in many of the dressier wraps.

Tans, Grays and Blues.

Tan shades, beige and sand, will rival navy. Graystone and batwing are the new gray tones.

Officers of the association elected are: Dave Sunshine, Cleveland, president; Dudley C. Palmer, Chicago, vice president; H. S. Livingston, Cincinnati, treasurer.

Mayor of Essen Named German Food Minister

BOY EX-EMPEROR OF CHINA WEDS AN EX-PRINCESS

PEKING, Dec. 1.—[By the Associated Press.]—The wedding of Hsuan Tung, the 17-year-old deposed emperor of China, was celebrated early this morning with all the pomp and ceremonial of imperial days. The former emperor's bride was the Princess Kuo Chin-Si.

Hsuan Tung has continued to reside in the ancient palace of the forbidden city since he abdicated with the establishment of the Chinese republic. He was educated under an English tutor and is described as a bright youth despite the rigid seclusion to which he has been subjected.

He receives a yearly allowance from the republic, with the right to maintain a royal establishment in keeping with the glory of the old Chinese emperors. Since 1911 he has been practically a prisoner within the imperial precincts, emerging only once, in 1917, for a few hours, when Chang Hsun attempted to execute a coup d'etat by again enthroning the boy emperor.

The Princess Kuo Chin-Si, bride of the former emperor, is a daughter of Prince Kuo Chin-Si, one of the Manchu court dignataries. She is described as pretty, but her husband's first sight of her beauty was reserved for the unveiling ceremony of the marriage, which was to begin early Friday morning and continue through several days of festivity.

THOMAS, BIG FRENCH LABOR CHIEF, TO PAY VISIT TO AMERICA

PARIS, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Albert Thomas, director of the international labor bureau, will sail for New York Dec. 8 for a visit of about five weeks in America, his principal objective being, he says, to study the industrial organization of the United States and Canada for the benefit of the labor bureau.

ALBERT THOMAS.

Mr. Thomas will visit Canada for four or five days on the invitation of the Canadian government. His itinerary in the United States comprises Boston, New York, Washington, Detroit, Chicago and possibly St. Louis and Birmingham. He will also make a short trip to Cuba. In Boston he will visit Edward A. Filene of the international chamber of commerce, and in Washington, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Thomas said today he would carefully exclude all politics from his conversations, but that he hoped to exchange views with competent authorities as to the collaboration of the United States with the labor bureau in a purely technical way. He would in no way, he declared, urged the United States to join the bureau.

Alleged $3,000,000 Denver "Slicker" Is Arrested Here

Wanted in Denver, Colo., where he is one of forty-two persons indicted for the operation of a gigantic confidence ring alleged to have swindled victims out of nearly $3,000,000 in the last three years, John B. Richards, who has been living at the Harmonica hotel, 30th street and Indiana avenue, was arrested by the Chicago police yesterday.

Ex-Senator Named Head of International Bank

NORKIN EXPLAINS BURIAL ALIVE OF JENNIE BECKER

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—A signed confession and description of his part in the murder and concealment of the body of Mrs. Jennie Becker was obtained from Reuben Norkin after questioning by District Attorney Glennon of Bronx county.

The investigation, which began a week ago with the tracing by the district attorney's office of neighborhood gossip, had, with the finding of the body and Norkin's confession, reached a point where the prosecution is prepared to go to trial this week. Norkin's confession makes him out guilty of murder in the first degree, according to Assistant District Attorney Cohn, and an indictment against him will be sought Monday.

Norkin, according to his statement, helped to decoy Mrs. Becker at 1:30 a. m. to Norkin's auto repair shop in the Bronx, where arrangements had been made to kill and bury her. While Norkin stood guard, according to his story, Becker hit his wife on the head with an iron bar, as she was leaning over the hood of his automobile, at her husband's request, to listen to the action of the motor. This stunned her and then the two men tied her and buried her alive in the grave previously prepared, according to Norkin.

"Why did you do this?" Norkin was asked.

"I did it out of friendship for Becker," he answered.

The district attorney's office, however, has information that Norkin did it for $100. They have a witness who reported that Becker had said:

"It cost me $100 to get rid of my wife."

MUSSOLINI MAY DELAY PARLEY ON REPARATIONS

Wants Near East Row Settled First.

BY V. DE SANTO.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Dec. 2.—[By Tribune Wireless.]—Premier Mussolini has decided to go to London for a "final" meeting with the allied premiers on the reparations question prior to the Brussels conference. From private information I learn that the Italians favor postponing the conference on Europe's debts because they feel the allies must devote their entire time to the near eastern and Greece problems, which are filled with grave danger.

Premier Mussolini is also reported as having said today that peace in Europe depends largely on the action taken by Italy, France and England in halting trouble in Greece and the Balkans and watching the Russian-Turk and the Russian-German doings.

He believes Europe is skating on thin ice and unless the greatest care is taken a worse catastrophe than that from 1914 to 1918 may befall the old world. The apprehension concerning the general situation is growing here on account of news from Levant. The uprising in Thrace, the rebellions on the island of Corfu and at Saloniki, and the continuation of the haughtiness of the Turks all cause alarm.

Proposes Vast Metal Trust.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—A number of French industrialists are negotiating with German business men with the object of establishing a big metal trust in central Europe under French leadership, says a Central News dispatch from Berlin today.

"The leading spirit of the movement," the dispatch says, "is stated to be Eugene Schneider (the French steel magnate), who having a dominating business power in Italy, Jugo-Slovania, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria, Luxembourg, and the Sarre, desires to subdue the operations of the German syndicates. He is said to contemplate a trust surpassing in magnitude even the United States Steel corporation.

"The captains of German industry hope that if the plan succeeds, this form of Franco-German coöperation will have an effect on reparations."

Bavarians Excited by Fine.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—There is consternation in Bavaria over the allied note demanding an apology and 1,000,000 gold marks [about $250,000] indemnity for attacks against British and French officers at Passau on Oct. 24 and at Ingolstadt on Nov. 21.

So delicate is the situation that Premier Von Knilling is coming to Berlin on Monday, where the threat of the ambassadors' council to confiscate as indemnity the Palatinate territory of Bavaria if indemnity is not paid, is regarded as a possible precedent for collecting reparations payments.

Over the telephone tonight THE TRIBUNE learned that the Bavarians are highly excited. The combined population of Passau and Ingolstadt is not more than 20,000, so the Bavarians declare it is impossible to collect from these cities. The mayor of Ingolstadt already has informed Munich he cannot pay one cent. He also said he was unable to give assurances against anti-allied demonstrations.

The Bavarians are constantly defiant, especially against the allies, and certain diplomatic circles believe the allied demand will show the teeth of Munich, which openly is contemptuous toward Berlin for its "wishy washy attitude toward the allies."

Trade Urges Judges to Visit Jails, See Needs

Voicing the opinion that conditions in most prisons might be improved upon, Judge Daniel P. Trude of the Morals court said yesterday that "judges should visit prisoners in jails under their jurisdiction in order to ascertain their views and to know the conditions of the places to which they sentence offenders."

GERMANY'S WETS MOVE TO CHECK CURB ON LIQUOR

Fight Proposed Law to Limit Sale.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—More than 5,000 opponents of prohibition adopted a resolution at a massmeeting held today in protest against proposed federal legislation designed to curb the consumption of alcoholic liquors. The assembly constituted the first organized attempt to combat the dry movement in Germany and will be followed tomorrow at Schoeneberg, one of the city's western residential districts, by the first anti-prohibition parade to be held here.

The resolution declares:

"According to official statistics, the consumption of spirituous liquors now comprises only a fragment of that drunk by the German people before the war. The abstinence movement is striving not only to oppose misuse, but, far more, to pave the way, after the American pattern, for making Germany completely dry."

Denounces Drys' Methods.

Ald. Neumann, addressing the gathering, denounced the methods and aims of the drys. He declared that in the straw votes taken at Bielefeld and Osnabrueck, where the drys won, there were cases of 18 year old boys voting in the place of their fathers, mothers, and other relatives.

The proposed law, said Herr Neumann, intended to give priority to communities and advocates of the Society of Abstinence in the new issue of concessions for public houses, and the latter were to be given original preference. This would lead to the society holding concessions without using them or to public houses being left without licenses.

May End Pay Day Sprees.

The prohibitionists, he added, even want the sale of alcohol forbidden on Sundays and holidays, in the morning and in the evening, on the days preceding and following holidays, and also on pay days.

According to Ald. Neumann a dry Germany would mean the loss of employment by more than two million people, the loss of 60,000,000,000 marks in taxes and the rendering valueless of vineyard hills, which could not be used for anything else.

One speaker, representing the brewers, called attention to conditions in America, where, he declared, "it is merely a matter of the pocketbook whether one gets alcohol or not."

FALL MAY PROVE FATAL.

An unidentified man about 35 years old yesterday afternoon fell from a north bound Clybourn avenue car when a screen to which he was clinging gave way. At Alexian Brothers' hospital it was said he had sustained pos-

Pope May Leave Vatican to Visit Villa Near Rome

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A Central News dispatch from Rome says it is regarded as certain that Pope Pius will visit the seventeenth century villa Castel Gandolfo, on the west bank of Lake Albano, about thirteen miles southeast of Rome. The nuns who have occupied the villa for five years have been ordered to leave. No pope has visited Castel Gandolfo since 1870.

RAGEN'S FIANCEE UPSETS INQUEST BY WILD THREATS

Screams She Will Kill Slayer and Kin.

Wild outbursts from the slain man's sweetheart marked the inquest yesterday at St. Luke's hospital over Fred J. Ragen, manager of the Waiters' club, 500 South State street, who was fatally wounded in a shooting affray at the club early on Thursday morning by a gang led by Emile Franke, a waiter, 537 Cass street, who afterwards confessed to the leadership and to shooting Sergt. Archie Cooper, who was seriously wounded in the lungs.

Screaming at the top of her voice that she would kill Franke and all his relatives, the young woman, Frances Swartz, 6531 South Wabash avenue, put a temporary end to the proceedings until, still screaming, she had been led out. Later she returned and continued constantly to interrupt the proceedings, moaning loudly and faintly at frequent intervals.

Herbert Gould, assistant manager of the club, was the principal witness at the inquest. He stated that the trouble arose over concessions for the bar and card rooms at the club. Members of the club had voted to give these concessions to George Roberts and J. G. Jarnett, but Ragen and himself had declared the ballot illegal and another was called, at which he and Ragen won.

Tells of Death Threat.

Between the two ballots, Ragen and Franke, who was working for Roberts and Jarnett, had had a fist fight, in which Franke was worsed and he had afterwards sworn that he would "get" Ragen.

On the morning in question a gang led by Franke had rushed into the club and ordered everybody to put up their hands. Most of them did so, but Sergt. Cooper, who was specially detailed for Ragen's protection, and who was in plain clothes, started for Franke, who promptly shot him.

Ragen Shot to Death.

Franke then turned to the bar, behind which Ragen was crouching on his hands and knees, and, leaning over, shot him in the head, it is alleged. The gang tried to escape, but was stopped by police in the alley.

After further evidence had been given, Franke was held to the grand jury on a charge of murder.

MEXICAN CAPITAL QUIET; VICTIMS OF RIOT BURIED

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Mexico City, Dec. 2.—The funerals of many of the victims killed in the fighting which took place Thursday night when troops fired on workers demonstrating against the water shortage were held today. In obedience to requests from their leaders the Laborites did not attempt new demonstrations during the public funeral processions through the city.

While comparative quietness prevails now, there is an air of tenseness and fear is felt that there may be trouble during the balloting tomorrow for mayor and members of the city council. Federal troops have been brought to the city to reinforce the police. Congress today demanded that the present mayor of the city and his council resign.

President Obregon in an interview with THE TRIBUNE asserted that the rioting was a disgrace to the nation and he has ordered a thorough investigation to fix the blame. He stated that the uncertain position of the Mexico City municipality in relation to the federal government was partially to blame for the situation.

MASON & HAMLIN

YOU should know the surpassingly lovely tone qualities of the Mason & Hamlin. Words are far less eloquent than the instrument itself. To say that the Piano is made as well as possible and priced afterward does not tell the story. No description of the Tension Resonator can adequately explain its importance in terms of tonal results. Even the marshalled names of artists who have chosen the Mason & Hamlin Piano for their public and private use, can only indirectly prove its excellence.

And yet, that which is difficult to put into words, is a very real thing. If you should play the Mason & Hamlin Piano you would know. Listening to it would tell more than a thousand words, just as a glance at the "Woman Weighing Pearls" tells more of Vermeer artistry than page after page of description.

We invite you to play and hear this extraordinary instrument. Mason & Hamlin Pianos are on exhibition and for sale in Chicago only at the Music Rooms of the

TIERNAN KINSMEN IN EAST ON WAY TO AID BROTHER

Judge and Noted Lawyer Coming to Chicago.

New York state yesterday made a geographic foursome of the Indiana-Illinois triangle which had been trying, futilely, to encompass the difficulties, marital, legal and cerebral, of Prof. and Mrs. John P. Tiernan and their sweethearts, spouses and in-laws.

Two of Prof. Tiernan's brothers, Judge Harry Tiernan of Richmond borough, New York, and Pete Tiernan, a New York corporation lawyer, wired County Judge Righeimer late yesterday that they were on their way to Chicago. They expressed the hope that John would be apprehended before their arrival, bit pledged their aid to Judge Righeimer in trying to find their brother, in case he is still missing.

Believed Hiding In Country.

With three posses madly searching Chicago for him, Prof. Tiernan was believed, meanwhile, to have fled the city and to be in hiding somewhere southwest of the city.

He was said to have fled there, first, to escape one of the three posses, that composed of County Judge Righeimer's bailiff and deputy sheriffs armed with papers committing him to the Psychopathic hospital for a mental examination; and second, to absorb some of the tranquil and soothing philosophy of the rural solitudes. He had been told the latter would bring serenity to his troubled mind.

The second and third posses searching for the professor consisted on one hand of his wife, "Gussie," and their three children, and on the other hand of his "bride for a day," Blanche Rash Brenner Hawn, and her father, the Rev. Charles Hawn of the First Methodist church of Hansell, Ia., the second Mrs. Tiernan's home.

Both women, making avowals of love for the former law instructor, came, they said, to effect his rescue and to stop the proceedings calculated to send him to the psychopathic hospital for "observation." Both stated they still have implicit faith in him, and each declared herself to be the sole object of his affections.

Augusta and Blanche.

"I know he loves me and needs me now," said Blanche, nonplussed and not knowing where to turn to find her "pedagogue mate." "My place is by his side. O, if those nasty bailiffs or whatever they are should try to tear him away from me, I would scratch their faces."

In the meantime Mrs. Augusta Tiernan was at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frances Pulaski, 7740 Fullerton avenue, in the suburb of Elmwood Park, "raising Ned" with Mrs. Pulaski for swearing out the insanity writ before Judge Righeimer. "Gussie" does not want the professor committed for the mental test.

"You shall not do it!" she cried tragically. "I love him! I love him more than I ever loved him!"

Then came a torrent of tears and when it had subsided a bit: "We—we've both made our mistakes; but John is in his right mind, I know he is."

Calls Him Unbalanced.

"No!" said Mrs. Pulaski firmly. "He is not. I am going to see that John Tiernan is locked up. He's unbalanced, that's what he is.

"And you," she added, pointing a hard finger at "Gussie," "are going to sign the papers with me."

"Never!" shouted Augusta. "I'll never sign them. He isn't crazy. You're the one who is crazy thinking of such a thing. You're doing this just because of his affair with this—this Blanche. Well, I don't care. He's my husband and I love him and I'm going to stick to him.

"He doesn't care about Blanche, and I know it. I'm the only woman he really ever loved."

Leaps Into Taxicab.

Then Mrs. Tiernan flew into a rage and ran out of the door and leaped into a waiting taxicab, almost dropping "Baby Billy," whom she carried under her arm, in her hurry. She gave the driver a curt order and he shot forward and sped away.

Judge Righeimer and other officials expressed the belief that Mrs. Tiernan had reached Prof. Tiernan and succeeded in warning him, and that he thereupon had fled the city.

"I have information," said Deputy Sheriff Skarda, "that he has beat it back toward South Bend. My information is that he feels safe from the psycopathic hospital while he's in Indiana."

Panama Canal Passages and Tolls Set Record

PANAMA, C. Z., Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—All previous records for the number of ships passing through the Panama canal in one month, as well as for tolls collected, were broken in November. Reports show that 312 vessels used the waterway. The tolls amounted to $1,264,441.

MISS COOKE BRIDE OF GEORGE BLOW; CEREMONY QUIET

J. Russell Forgan Weds in St. Louis.

A quiet ceremony attended only by members of the two families and intimate friends solemnized the marriage yesterday of Miss Katherine Rowland Cooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Cooke of 42 Cedar street, to George Waller Blow, son of the late George Preston Blow and Mrs. Blow of La Salle, Ill.

Invitations had been recalled for the wedding reception because of the recent bereavement in Mr. Blow's family, and the group of bridal attendants were dispensed with. Only the two sisters of the bride, the Misses Mary and Virginia Cooke, served her as maid of honor and bridesmaid, respectively. Edwin Smith was best man.

The bride was gowned in white velvet and her veil was of white chiffon, banded with orange blossoms. Miss Mary Cooke wore hydrangea blue velvet and Miss Virginia Cooke pale rose pink velvet.

The ceremony was read at 4 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents.

J. Russell Forgan Weds.

A wedding of interest to society in many cities was that of Miss Ada Rand Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Johnson of St. Louis, Mo., and J. Russell Forgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Forgan of Evanston, which took place yesterday at the residence of the bride's parents in St. Louis.

There were no Chicago women among the bride's attendants, but a number of other cities were represented in the list, which included Mrs. Bradford Shinkle, the bride's sister, as matron of honor. Miss Marjorie Niedringhaus of St. Louis was maid of honor, and the bride's niece, Miss Jane Johnson, was flower girl.

Bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Halstead Freeman of New York, Miss Erwin Hayward, Miss Grace Taylor, Miss Elise Garneau and Miss Audrey Faust of St. Louis, and Mrs. Donald Rodgers of Pittsburgh.

David R. Forgan Jr. was his brother's best man and the ushers were Walcott Blair and Louis E. Tilden of Chicago, Andrew W. Johnson and Joseph L. Werner of St. Louis, Malcolm S. Davis and Eugene L. Maxwell of New York, Oliver Rodgers of Pittsburgh, John H. W. Ingersoll and Donald B. Lourie of Philadelphia, and R. E. Vogel of Milwaukee.

Party Forms Procession.

The Rev. John MacIvor of the Second Presbyterian church, performed the nuptial rites at 4:30 o'clock. The bridal party was made up of twenty persons and formed a procession, passing through the lower hall of the Johnson home at 25 Portland place, from the west side to reach the altar built for the ceremony against the fireplace in the drawing room. Broad white satin ribbons formed the aisle, and Easter lilies and white chrysanthemums covered white posts supporting them. The altar was fashioned of the same white blossoms and smilax.

The bride wore a gown of heavy white satin, draped skirt and a bodice of rose point lace over silver, an imported model. A fold of lace caught at the skirt's draping extended to the hem line. A train of rose point lace, falling over two bands of silver, extended from the shoulder and was adorned here and there with clusters of orange blossoms. A coronet effect was achieved by the tulle veil trimmed with orange blossoms. Gardenias, lilies and orchids made up the bride's bouquet.

RUSSIA OFFERS TO SLASH ARMY TO 200,000 MEN

MOSCOW, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—At the opening of the disarmament conference here today Maxim Litvinoff, Russian assistant commissar of foreign affairs, definitely proposed a reduction of the Red army to 200,000 men. He made this conditional, however, on "a corresponding reduction in the standing armies of the states on Russia's western boundaries."

Delegates of Poland, Finland, Esthonia, Letvia, and Lithuania are here. All are hopeful that the conference will have a successful outcome. They are not discouraged by the absence of Roumania, hoping that, if the purpose of the meeting is accomplished, Roumania can be induced later to subscribe to the conditions agreed upon.

She Found a Pleasant Way to Earn $100 a Week

ETHEL M. BENTLEY

Mrs. Bentley suddenly found it necessary to enter some business that would pay her a satisfactory income. In this interesting article she tells how she found it—and now earns from $50 to $100 a week. The same opportunity that was extended to Mrs. Bentley is open to you.

A MESSAGE to educated, cultured women from one who found a pleasant way to earn a satisfactory income in a dignified field of high purpose, rendering a real service. This message written by Mrs. Ethel M. Bentley of Pittsburgh, Pa.

"If tomorrow you were called into the business world without any previous training, knowing you had education, ability, and personality, how would you commercialize your assets?

"If suddenly you had to have an income of from $1,200 to $3,000 a year, what business could you enter that would promise the above amount and more, according to the extent of your ability?

"I found myself confronted by that very problem and solved it satisfactorily indeed.

"David Starr Jordan said: 'If you want to do some real philanthropic work, do something for a child.'

"The business I refer to does just this thing. It needs and selects capable, sympathetic, kindly women to bring a message to the American Home for the American boy and girl.

"The boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow. How to train these same boys and girls into self-reliant men and women for the future is the problem of all those interested.

"The schools today are working on this problem, and this Business I speak of cooperates with the plan. I feel it my duty to tell other women, puzzled as I was, what to do in the world of business. The hours are not long. Living most of the day out of doors recommends itself, and I know of nothing that pays so well. I am positive that I could not earn from $50 to $100 a week in any other business, as I am earning in this business.

"We work together, play together and prosper together. We are doing great work, we are working for the best house in the country, we are making more money than the average man, at work especially adapted to our natives.

"We have an unusual chance to develop our personality and broaden our minds; we are independent, we are happy.

The House of Compton needs women of sincerity to enter this field. On Page 5, Part 2, of this newspaper you will read a full page announcement which will indicate to you why your services are needed at once. Even beginners find it easy to earn a good income in this field. Public interest in this new service is aroused and has been intensified by national advertising. Local advertising will be used to back your efforts in Chicago.

If you are interested in this observation, call for personal interview at once. If you live out of town give details concerning age and education in first letter. Or, phone Mr. Allen, State 6911.

A DANGER TO POLITICAL LIBERTY.

When the constitution of the United States was written and the American system of representative government established the house of representatives was made proportional to population. The senate represented states, the house represented people, but the southern aristocracy sought and obtained an unjust privilege. To the number of free persons entitled to representation was added three-fifths of the slave population. The southerner voted his property.

It was an evil which led directly into the civil war. The free industrial north was discriminated against in behalf of the slave agricultural south. The slave owner was given a disproportionate and unjust franchise, making him more important politically than the free man of the north.

Out of this rotten borough system, contrived and maintained by an aristocratic class, came a war, because there was no other way in which to end a social, political and economic system repugnant to the real purpose of the nation. Nearly always when a special class rests its privileges upon a manipulation of franchise rights there is serious trouble.

The English tories yielded slowly and stubbornly but in time to prevent a revolution. The Prussian junkers did not yield until their government was overthrown at the end of a lost war. The Japanese ruling classes are yielding slowly. It is almost inevitable that a discrimination by limitation of franchise will produce a revolt.

The southern states aimed at control of government not by restricting the number of votes which the north might have but by voting their own helpless blacks in congress, using them to maintain the system which enslaved them.

Even the war did not wholly break this down, but it abolished the principle. The southern colored population is an enfranchised class but hardly a voting class. Because of the disproportionate representation which remains there are efforts to base representation on votes and not on population. The south still has an excessive power in the nomination of Republican candidates for President.

The political history of man is one of his fight against entrenched classes to break down obstructions by which a minority checked, ruled and exploited a majority. It is strange when all the injustice and injury is known and when all the sacrifices can be counted that there should be in America persistent efforts in spots to revert to the old system to accomplish a purpose.

We have made numerous references to the bad consequences of the New York attempt to rule the city of New York without its consent in the legislature. That struggle, the struggle of the city for political rights, has just begun. The citizen of New York must fight or he would be ruled by the rural communities, just as medieval townsmen might be ruled by a baron.

The attempt to subject Chicago to the overlordship of the country districts has only gone half way in the constitution submitted to the voters next month. It is proposed only to reduce Cook county's representation to one-third of the senate membership and two-ninths of the Supreme court, and there limit it. In the house of representatives the county could continue to send men to the legislature upon the same basis as the country districts, but the start at disfranchisement by restriction would be made.

It is a bad principle and a bad precedent and full of trouble. Wherever in American history we find it applied we find injurious or calamitous consequences, and it would be strange if this were not true. The American is imbued with the doctrine of equality. He does not think that there is an equality of intelligence or strength or of wealth or of happiness, but these inequalities do not touch his pride. He does not admit the class distinctions which the British will concede and he does not admit that politically he should be hat in hand on any occasion to any favored class.

The demand for the restriction of Chicago has a particularly obnoxious aspect. It starts with the assumption that the mass of Chicago voters are undesirable, that their habits are bad, their ideas low, their influence pernicious, and that for such reasons they should not have the same voice in matters which concern the whole state as the voters of a small town or a countryside should have.

We do not believe that such a principle can endure in the United States. The southern congressman, speaking for his slaves, thought that the northerner, representing only free voters, was a pernicious influence. We know what came of that.

Disfranchisement is not the way out of any troubles or any conflicts which may arise in American life. If it were, it would be the solution attempted in every controversy. It is the way into new troubles because it is contrary to American principles, to the American instinct, and to the proper doctrines of free people.

If people may be disfranchised because they live in a compact community they may be disfranchised because they have certain religious beliefs, because they work at certain trades, because they have certain habits, or because they have red hair.

Restriction of representation is partial disfranchisement. It is the application of the rule that you may vote if you vote right.

CONTROL WITHOUT RESPONSIBILITY.

Samuel Gompers says that a majority of the members elected to the house of representatives were indorsed by labor and agriculture and three-fourths of the senators elected were so indorsed. Joint action by all the members favorable to the labor program and the agricultural program then would control.

Gompers and his associates have not wanted a labor party. They have wanted to use political action without party processes. They offer political support where they can make bargains. They are men with policies but no parties. The prohibitionists taught them that this was a good method to get results. The prohibition party was negligible. Its success came when it worked within the two major parties.

The farmers have done much the same thing. With a profitable year the majority of them would be Republicans. In adversity they would be Democrats. Sunshine when crops needed sun and rain when they needed rain were good for the Republican party, and if prices were good there was no trouble at all. Now the farmers are convinced that they need legislation as well as fair weather.

Labor is the second party in the British parliament today. It appeals to the country with policies and with candidates. American farmer-labor seeks to use a leverage of power without obtaining electoral consent. It does not use the political processes of the country, but works upon the political fears of the candidates regardless of party.

That is not an orderly process of politics and it cannot go on forever without destroying government by parties. The Republican and Democratic parties are supposed to represent certain fundamental conceptions of government. When one is in power the other affords the needed opposition and criticism.

They will cease to mean anything if their candidates go into elections with involvements and commitments which have nothing to do with party principles or policies. If wets and drys, labor, farmers, and various other powerful groups operate politically by alluring or attacking candidates we shall have group domination and not party control.

A Republican elected because he is a dry and pro-labor is not elected as a Republican but as a dry and a laborite. He has no party because the elements to which he has promised support have not submitted an issue to the voters. They have dictated one to the candidate.

The continuance of government by party responsibility requires that groups endeavoring to control congress shall submit their issues in party declarations with party candidates pledged to them. Then if such an issue receives a majority there will be a government responsible to its source.

MORE POWER AT WASHINGTON.

Senator McCormick has introduced a joint resolution for another amendment of the federal constitution. It is intended to reach the evil of child labor wherever it exists in the states, and is as follows:

> The congress shall have power to limit or prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age, and power is also reserved to the several states to limit or prohibit such labor in any way which does not lessen any limitation of such labor or the extent of any prohibition thereof by congress. The power vested in the congress by this article shall be additional to and not a limitation on the powers elsewhere vested in the congress by the constitution with respect to such labor.

This is one of the proposals which cannot be resisted without incurring violent criticism and unjust innuendo. Just as objection to the Mann act is considered by moralistic zealots to be evidence of sympathy for sexual irregularity, if not actual proof of moral turpitude in the objector, so opposition on any ground to any measure intended to check or abolish child labor will be looked upon as evidence of inhumanity, of disregard for the welfare of little children, perhaps of venality or callous self-interest.

Nevertheless, we shall record our emphatic dissent from Senator McCormick's resolution. The amendment proposed is another act of centralization and another encroachment upon the police power wisely reserved to the states under our constitutional system. It would not be the first encroachment. The Mann act to which we have referred is one even more flagrant instance, yet the Supreme court has upheld it. We don't doubt the Supreme court would uphold Senator McCormick's amendment, but that would not convince us of the soundness of the court's reasoning, highly as we regard that great tribunal, or the wisdom of still further invading the functions of the state.

Nothing seems of importance to our many varieties of ardent reformers except the respective reform sought by each variety. Objection on behalf of general considerations of government are waved indignantly aside. Very little respect for them is shown in congress and even the Supreme court, guardian of fundamental principle, easily finds its way around them.

All the same, they are of vital importance. We cannot go piling duties and responsibilities upon the central government whenever the social conscience of a state is asleep without producing in due time a condition which will not only destroy the efficiency of the national administration but reduce the states to atrophied organs of government. Impatient reform respects nothing but its own immediate purpose. The nation must look further and keep within its jealous care the systematic division and assignment of functions, the general principles of government, and the institutions upon which the nation, in spite of its youth, diversity, and vast extent, has thrived and progressed. Load the federal authority with every task the states neglect, develop a great federal bureaucracy covering the country like a web from coast to coast, concentrate greater and greater power at Washington, and the downfall of the American republic is as certain as the setting of this day's sun.

The evils of undue centralization already are far more serious than the people realize. The fact is that congress under the special pressure of groups has been induced to pass so many federal laws that it is impossible for the executive branch of government to enforce all of them. The unescapable result of this is that choice must be made by the prosecuting agencies as to which laws shall be enforced and which left in abeyance. No one who gives any intelligent thought to such a condition will fail to see that it compels discrimination and throws wide open the door to improper influence. The constitutional guaranty of the equal protection of the law cannot in practice exist in such a situation. The most conscientious officials cannot enforce it, while unscrupulous politics finds plenty of opportunity for trading with justice.

Multiplicity of laws is a serious evil even within the restricted jurisdiction of the states. But when we pile upon the central government a mountain of regulations running into all the affairs of life we make equal enforcement impossible and corrupt or unjust discrimination almost inevitable.

Impatient specialists in reform spurn such protests, but the normal American cannot afford to do so. On the contrary, the process has gone on far enough already to challenge our vigorous resistance.

By all means let us fight the social and economic waste and injustice to the immature involved in child labor. There is no better cause among the activities of conscientious citizens. But let us fight this evil, and every other evil, with some sense of proportion and some regard for considerations of general good, of justifiable method, of ordered government.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET

With the December ticket the commuter begins the long trip. The days as they are clipped off the rim do not make way for change. The woods have set themselves in brown and from that mood to white is the range of life, a gray sky or white sun, rain in a drizzle or rain in a pelter, snow in a lazy sifting or snow on a north wind and that is the range.

As the clip goes around the rim of the ticket there is no sense of loss because no sense of significant change. The sense of loss is when the thorn blossoms are on the ground, when the trillium has withered, when the thrush has given up its song, when the last wild rose has blossomed and dropped its petals and when the maple has dropped its leaves.

Change, that necessary destroyer, puts foot prints on other seasons, but as the sun goes towards its furthest south and turns north again time leaves no mark on the days.

THE BRITISH WEST INDIES.

The British-American accord, in which a good deal of world security might be found, would rest easier on its feet if Great Britain were willing to give up the British West Indies. These islands have only two values to the British. One is sentimental. The other is military. The military value is only against the United States. Gen. Reilly, in his articles in THE TRIBUNE, has explained how the military value of these British possessions off the American trade route and the American coast and the Panama canal has been enhanced by aviation.

For the security of the United States the military resources of the islands ought to be in American control. We might concede that the United States and Great Britain never would go to war and yet insist that these islands are dangerous to American security unless they are in American possession.

There was a possibility that Germany would win the war. There might have been, without the intervention of the United States, at least a peace of accommodation, of give and take, and Germany, angered because of American industrial and financial aid to the allies, might have agreed to look for compensation in the western hemisphere. Germany might have asked for the British West Indies in making a peace of accommodation, and the United States would have had an angry and powerful European enemy at its door, with a base for military operations in the Caribbean or against the American coast.

Insular possessions change hands. Japan was not worried by the proximity of Spain in Asiatic waters, but a war changed the situation, and in place of Spain Japan had the United States and Germany as neighbors. A war again changed the situation, and Japan supplanted Germany in the islands.

Realistic prospects do not guarantee Great Britain's friendship an enduring one to the United States, and even if it were enduring they do not guarantee British possession of the islands. The sentimental value of the islands is something which common sense would absorb. The movements and necessities of nations have been dealing with such values for centuries. We'll admit that the inhabitants of the British West Indies much prefer to remain under British rule. Most of them are black, and all of them may be wet if they want to be. Our blessings of democracy, as represented in several constitutional amendments which do not work, would be shunned by them, but life is of a larger pattern. The treaty of transfer might protect the British West Indians from all our blessings.

The United States needs the islands. Great Britain does not. The British have American money. The United States ought to be willing to take a valuable military asset in part payment. It would not be a transaction of international dishonor but one of the highest international good will. International good will is not advanced by pointing loaded muskets. That is what the British West Indies are.

THE VETERANS' BONUS.

[Free translation from Dziennik Zwiazkowy (Polish Alliance Daily).]

Congress in its regular session voted for a soldiers' bonus, but paid no attention to the question of where the money would come from. President Harding therefore vetoed the bill.

In the extraordinary session now convoked, Congressmen Hill from Maryland and Britten from Illinois have introduced bills permitting the manufacture, against a tax, of alcoholic liquors up to a certain percentage of alcohol, the tax to be used for paying a bonus to ex-service men.

Congressman Hill says that the cider made by farmers contains three per cent alcohol without conflicting with the Volstead law, so that there cannot possibly be any objection to manufacturing and consuming beer containing 2.75 per cent alcohol as provided in his bill. And the income would bring the government about half a billion dollars yearly. Congressman Britten's bill goes a good deal farther yet, by permitting four per cent alcohol in beer and 14 per cent in wine.

The question is what stand congress will take about this matter, especially in its aspect as a measure to pay the soldiers' bonus.

Some states have decided to pay a bonus by issuing bonds, and it is now the turn of the federal government.

SKIN CANCERS MILD.

NOW that people have been stirred up about cancer, let's quiet them down a bit.

People perish by the thousands each year because they disregard warnings which should cause them to suspect cancer. I mean such warnings as the bleeding from the pelvic organs after the change of life.

Supposed piles which grow unduly, bleed unduly, or cause much pain, persistent vomiting and loss of weight, suspicious breast tumors—these are warnings which a proper regard for safety by persons of cancer age call for an examination to quiet suspicion or to discover a condition which is still curable.

I slept one night last week in a hotel in a small town. The rooming part of the hotel was a large space cut up into rooms and a hall by partitions composed of studding and paper. When a porter came into the section and awakened a man at 5:30 every person in the section turned on the light and presently all of them were up.

When a cancer week stirs up the sleepers who should be stirred, it wakes up some who had planned to sleep on and who were safe in so doing.

Among those who are unnecessarily alarmed are some with skin blemishes. There is almost no justification for any fatalities from skin cancer. It is so easily observed that early diagnosis for the alert is reasonably certain, and there are several satisfactory cures. On top of these two factors there is the natural mildness and freedom from high degree of malignancy of skin cancer.

Dr. W. J. Highman thinks there are but few skin conditions which result in cancer. He even goes so far as to say that the skin of the weather beaten sailor, or the wind tanned farmer or plainsman—sometimes called sailor's skin—is not especially prone to develop cancer. He says that birthmarks rarely become cancerous. The same is true of dermoid cysts and sebaceous cysts generally.

The only infections of the skin from which cancer is prone to develop are lupus, a tuberculosis of the skin, and syphilis; and not even in these is there any considerable danger.

About the only skin disease conditions and irritations from which cancer is especially liable to develop are the following: Senile skin, dry hairy skin of the old, the hairy growths, poisoning with arsenic and with chimney soot, chronic X-ray burns, chronic long continued irritations, syphilis of the tongue, leucoplakia—principally of the mouth, and xeroderma pigmentosa.

There is no special danger of cancer developing in a psoriasis patch or on a basis of eczema.

CUT DOWN WEIGHT.

F. H. E. writes: "I am 45 years old and lost a limb at 10 years of age, and during all these years I have been bumping my other shin more or less until the skin has been bruised a number of times, leaving the skin for about six inches above the ankle a dark purple. Of late this condition has worried me because of my increasing weight. I now weigh 217 pounds. The skin at the infected part continually scales off and has started to scale off all around the leg. Can you tell me what to do to relieve this condition? I am a bookkeeper and of course am on my foot most all the time."

REPLY.

My guess is that you have psoriasis. If so, the condition does not endanger your life or health.

Can you cut your weight down? To do so will improve the psoriasis. For a one legged man 217 pounds is equivalent to about 250 pounds for a two legged man.

SEND HER TO SANITARIUM.

Anxious Mother writes: "My daughter, 18, is in training in a nurses' school. Last week she was taken suddenly ill and had three hemorrhages. After examination the physicians say she has advanced consumption. She is back at work, but has no vim. None of the nurses know that she has consumption.

"1. Shall we take her to Florida?

"2. Can consumption be arrested?

"3. How?

"4. Should I send her west? We are poor and I will have to go with her for she will not go without me."

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Yes.
3. Your daughter should leave the training school at once. She should go to a tuberculosis sanatorium and stay there under direction until her disease is arrested. When she is strong enough to go back to work, let her resume her training. The best place for her to resume her training will be in the sanatorium in which she was cured. Most states have state sanatoria.
4. No. A consumptive without friends and given to homesickness, who goes west, or to any climate cure, makes a serious mistake.

DEVELOPING SHOULDERS.

X. Y. Z. writes: "Is there any cure for a girl of 20 who is very round shouldered? One doctor years ago said it was a round back and that exercise in a gymnasium was the only cure. Is this so?"

REPLY.

Yes, the doctor was right. Round shoulders usually result from the chest being deep and narrow. The remedy is to build up the big muscles of the back and neck by work and play.

WINTER WILL HELP.

P. F. writes: "Please give me your advice how to overcome this awful disease pellagra from which I am a sufferer. I have a foul breath and seem to get no relief, no matter what I do. I syringe my nose and throat with Lavoris three times a day, but don't help or relieve that burning and raw feeling in nose and throat. Is there any diet or medicine or doctor?"

REPLY.

You may expect to get better now that the cold season has come. Change your diet eat plenty of milk, cheese, butter, good meat, good bread, and good vegetables. Continue using the mouth wash.

MIGHT HURT THE BABY

Mrs. A. W. A. writes: "Would nursing a baby 2 years old hurt the mother?"

REPLY.

No. It may hurt the baby, since milk is not a complete food for a child 2 years old.

SCURVY OR PYORRHEA.

M. B. writes: "Will you tell me the cause of blood flowing from the gums every time I wash my teeth? What is a good remedy for it?"

REPLY.

It is possible you have scurvy. It is more likely you have pyorrhea. If you have scurvy, eat fruit juice and good fresh vegetables. If you have pyorrhea, have your teeth cleaned and your gums treated.

A PLACE FOR EVERYTHING.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—[Friend of the People.]—The garbage in the alley of 1400 Webster avenue has not been removed for weeks. It has been reported to the city authorities, but with no success. We hope you can help to get it cleaned away. A. P.

This is a can route, collection being made regularly once a week. If complainant will comply with notice to place his can in the parkway every Friday, the garbage will be emptied and he should have no further cause for complaint. THOMAS H. BYRNE, Superintendent of Streets.

SELLS HIS OWN PROPERTY.

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 29.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I put my property in the hands of an agent for sale. The conditions are named as follows:

I was to receive a certain amount for my place and the agent's commission was to be whatever he sold the place for above that certain amount.

Agent had the property in his hands for sale over two years, and finally I sold the property myself.

Can agent claim commission on the sale?

If so, how much per cent on sale of place?

I sold place for $400 less than we agreed on.

No papers were signed between agent and myself—just verbal agreement. F. C. B.

Depends upon whether your conversation with the agent was such as to indicate an agreement to give him an exclusive agency or only to give him a commission in case he sold. Either contract would be possible. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RHEUMATISM CURE.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a secret formula to cure rheumatism and would like to get some information concerning the law in regard to applying for license to manufacture and put on the market with a mail order business. Please advise me if I would have much trouble to get a license and where I would have to apply. P. F. A.

No license is required for a mail order business as such. As to compliance with the Pure Food and Drug Law we suggest that you write to the United States department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

STREET CLOSED.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—For the last four years there has been an open thoroughfare for pedestrians from Halsted street through to King place, between Wellington and Barry. The owner of this property has closed the thoroughfare by putting up a high picketed iron fence. Is the party within his or her right? Is not there a law which makes this a public thoroughfare after being open for a certain length of time? C. M.

In order to create right of way by adverse uses the user must continue for twenty years. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MEMORY TESTS

1. Who was the Union general in supreme power for two years who directed all field operations east and west, never got anywhere, and came out of the war with no military reputation? Maj. Gen. Henry W. Halleck. Grant refused to take the Army of the Potomac unless he superseded Halleck. Lincoln agreed to it.

2. Who was John James Audubon? A distinguished American naturalist, authority on birds and animals, born of French parents, on a plantation near New Orleans, in 1780. He died in 1851.

3. How many wives did Solomon have? Seven hundred.

4. What is the national hymn of France? Of England? The national hymn of France is "La Marseillaise," by De Lisle. Of Great Britain, "God Save the King," probably by Carey.

5. What is the cranium and what is its use? A sort of strong box in the head composed of eight very closely joined bones that protect the brain.

The Greeley Electoral Vote.
Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

New York, Dec. 2.—The Tribune's proposition, that the Electoral votes of the six States electing the Liberal ticket shall now be cast for Grant, is not seconded by any other journal here.

The Post suggests that they be awarded to O'Conor and Adams.

The Express says they should be given to some indomitable representative of the Cincinnati platform.

The Sun says the work of the Cincinnati Convention must be respected, and its ballots declared that the six States should vote for Greeley and Brown for President, and his associate candidates, B. Gratz Brown, of Missouri, for Vice President, for whom would not object to a Democrat like Hendricks receiving them.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full name and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

HE THOUGHT HE WAS STARTING SOMETHING, AND HE WAS.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The editorial outburst in the University of Chicago Maroon last Wednesday is most regrettable, and is viewed with alarm by the majority of the great student body, the alumni, and the public at large. The writer of the scurrilous attack is of no importance, for Chicago was nursing the university into greatness when he was in his swaddling clothes, and will be rallying to its support long after he is gone and forgotten.

But the fact that certain officials permitted this article to be broadcasted through this semi-official organ has injured our pride and shaken our faith in their good judgment, sense of fair play, and decent appreciation.

In the preface of Thomas Goodspeed's "University of Chicago Biographical Sketches" we read these words: "There are two or three things that make me glad to see these sketches in a volume. I feel that the university has done something toward discharging the debt of remembrance it owes the generous friends of its earlier years." The benefactors especially eulogized include such names as Marshall Field, William Butler Ogden, E. Nelson Blake, Sidney Albert Kent, George Clarke Walker, and a score of others well known to Chicagoans and to the university. Neither can we think that the university officialdom is so soon ready to "spurn the lowly steps by which it rose."

"The people be damned" sentiment, as voiced by the young sap whose vaporings are an insult to every citizen of Chicago, and especially to every name that adorns nearly all its great buildings, cannot be fostered without serious consequences. Ingratitude is a contemptible thing, and Chicago is not willing to believe that the university wants to be viewed in this light. Either the sentiments are misleading and unofficial and the result of a nomadic teahound who has slyly put something over to satisfy a petty grudge, or it is an unholy and disastrous feeling that should be uncovered and given the air. K. H.

CONCERNING JAPANESE ETHNOLOGY.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—The letter of Tapanori Jokitchi which you published in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE settles once and for all several very important questions which have been troubling the decadent white races for some time. First, we now know without a question of doubt just who invented the flying machine. It was neither Icarus or Perseus of Greek fame, nor Darius Green of poetic glory, nor our own Wright brothers, but a gentleman named Fo-Yi, who lived on the tropic of Cancer. We think he might be capable of inventing most anything to get away from such an unappetizing diet.

Second, that the Japanese are filling the minds of their susceptible university students with the same sort of erroneous teaching about the "superman" which we had to knock out of the heads of a certain tribe of our white cousins about four years ago.

Finally, from a nation whose university graduates believe such tommyrot as flying horses, "superman," and the like, we need have no fear of an intelligent or formidable war.

Japanese written history dates from about the year 365 A. D. They can boast of all the glories they care to before that time, but who takes any stock in the ballads of bards and minstrels. The pale facts have a few heroes and tragedies of antiquity which are taught up to the sixth grade, and the universities are left for more mature subjects and problems.

LOUIS B. A. MCDOWELL.

THE FARMER'S PROBLEM.

Chatham, Ill., Nov. 24.—The editorial "The Lure of the City," Nov. 19, and F. B. Vennum's statement in the name of the People, Nov. 22, that "supply and demand as basis for price is a failure" are indications that we are getting down to a comprehension of the farmer's problem.

Encouragement by traders and the government of grinding competition between farmers has forced unnecessarily long hours and brutal toil on agriculture and prevented the use of the machine on the farm. The machine can not compete with the hand if the hand is hard working and low living enough. The machine turns out more goods and a better environment in less time and with less effort. If you don't want the goods and would rather work intermittable hours, you can't use the machine. Most farm appliances now in use are tools, not machines.

The phrase "law of supply and demand" describes an aspect of human behavior and belief; in some respects it resembles the behavior and belief in ones called witchcraft; in others, that we call monarchy, slavery, peonage, bookkeeping, etc. The so-called law is not no objective reality like Kepler's generalization or the law of gravitation.

Peculiary bookkeeping, in contrast to a possible realist bookkeeping, is based primarily on the assumption that you can have your cake and eat it too. It is as true as any assumption, that in geometry, for example; the pons asinorum works. Farmers have lost untold sums because they don't know this; ignorant, for example, tremendous overpayments of income taxes on account of failure to charge off soil depreciations as business men charge off their depreciation.

ADDISON LEWIS.

THE DUTCH VIEW OF PANAMA POSSIBILITIES.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Allow me to say a few words in reply to the article published in today's TRIBUNE by Gen. Hugh J. Reilly, regarding alian ownership in the West Indies endangering America and the Panama canal. In so far as Holland is concerned, which controls a few of the islands near the Venezuelan coast, viz: Curacao, Bonaire, and Aruba, the danger pictured is purely imaginary. The Dutch have neither the means nor the desire to peril the Panama canal, which is a very important factor in their own commerce and shipping.

While the Netherlands are alive to the necessity for defense of motherland and colonies, it is plain that a small nation of 7,000,000 people which controls a colonial empire of 50,000,000 natives does not desire war, nor become a real danger to an enormously stronger nation like the United States. It is possible that some of the West Indian colonies might be used by France or England in a war against the United States, but as the well settled policy of the Dutch people has been of aversion to any alliance, it is difficult to understand why their possessions should be put in the same class with those of Great Britain and France.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

ALL.

By Francis A. Durivage.

There hangs a saber, and there a rein,
With a rusty buckle and green curb chain;
A pair of spurs on the old gray wall,
And a moldy saddle-weil, that is all.

Come out to the stable—it is not far;
The moss grown door is hanging ajar.
Look within! There's an empty stall,
Where once stood a charger, and that is all.

The good black horse came riderless home,
Flecked with blood drops as well as foam;
See yonder hillock where dead leaves fall;
The good black horse pined to death—that's all.

All? O God! it is all I can speak.
Question me not—I am old and weak;
His saber and his saddle hang on the wall,
And his horse pined to death—I have told you all.

FORCE PARENTAL STUDY OF SEX, LINDSEY URGES

Judge Would Fine Mothers Who Shirk Classes.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

Compel the public schools to provide courses for parents in sex hygiene, and fine the parents if they don't attend, is the drastic plan for sex instruction which Ben B. Lindsey, Denver's juvenile court judge, gave to Chicago yesterday as he stopped off at the Sherman hotel for a few hours enroute to Mishawaka, Ind.

"Chicago is on the right track," the judge declared, "when it plans to provide courses for parents in the public schools at night. But that doesn't go far enough. If you want to get anywhere pass a law making it mandatory for the parents to attend.

Make Mothers Attend.

"Insist that at least one of the parents, preferably the mother, attend a large percentage of the lectures in the course. And impose a good stiff fine when the absences continue with no excuse."

A law, such as Judge Lindsey outlined for Chicago, was up in the Colorado legislature two years ago, he said, but was never reported out of committee. "I guess Colorado wasn't quite ready for it then," he commented, "but Chicago ought to think seriously about it now."

Judge Lindsey's program for parental instruction on the problems of youth is not limited to the presentation of information on sex hygiene. His is a five fold plan to make the parents understand sympathetically and intelligently all phases of youth.

Study Physical Defects.

The first point in the course he would make a study of physical defects of children, such as adenoids, eye troubles, spinal curvatures, etc. More than fifty per cent of school children, he asserted, suffer from physical defects, many of which could be remedied.

Second, he puts parental control and discipline, declaring that "you can't govern a flapper daughter by rules of the mid-Victorian era."

Religion is the third point. Judge Lindsey is investigating schools which put cots as well as desks in the class rooms in order that the pupils may get needed rest during the day.

Feeding of children should be presented in the course, according to the judge, who declares that statistics show that not more than 20 per cent of those having children are qualified to raise them.

Last Important Point.

"And as the last and most important point," said Lindsey, "is equipping parents so that they may teach their children the facts of life and of sex hygiene as preparation for marriage.

"During Chicago parents to "teach children what evil is," to give them the truth about life, and to prepare them for marriage, Judge Lindsey declared that a new and perhaps radical program of sex instruction is necessary to preserve the American home.

Commenting on local statistics that there is one divorce to every three marriages, the Denver judge predicted that "within ten years, it will be fifty-fifty, or rather, as many separations, not divorces, as there are marriages, "unless there is a new order of things."

Dr. Shannon's Views.

Answering the question, "shall sex enlightenment be taught in the schools?" Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, pastor of Central church, who will speak at the Sunday Evening club this evening on "Christian Democracy," replied, "I am compelled to utter an emphatic 'No'."

"Taking human nature as it is, considering the teacher and the taught," he continued, "it would seem to be inadvisable to try to solve the problem through the schools.

"But the ignorance of multitudes concerning the processes of life is appalling. If all tetachers were ideal and all students likewise, there would be every reason for publicly teaching and discussing this important subject but as these primary conditions are not yet realised, I am not surprised at the wide protest coming from all sides."

The only place for such "delicate and essential instruction," Dr. Shannon concludes, "is the home."

MEXICO SEES U. S., BRITAIN, FRANCE IN SECRET PACT

El Universal Says It Will Publish Text.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Mexico City dispatches received here today state that El Universal, one of the leading newspapers of that city, claims to have in its possession the text of a secret treaty, said to have been entered into in May, 1917, by Great Britain, France, and the United States, whereby the latter is guaranteed a free hand in Mexican and Central American affairs, the other two signatories undertaking not to recognize any government in the southern republics of North America not previously recognized by the United States. El Universal proposes to publish the text of the "treaty" within a few days.

Washington Is Interested.

State department officials here are in complete ignorance of the existence of any such document, it was stated today. Officials here will await the publication of its text by El Universal with much interest.

While no official denial will be made of mere newspaper reports that a treaty such as El Universal speaks of has been negotiated, it was pointed out in a responsible quarter that it would be impossible for the United States to contract any "secret" engagements of a binding nature, because the United States senate's ratification would be required.

At the Mexican embassy all comment on the El Universal story was refused other than the simple statement that attaches of the embassy have no knowledge of such a treaty.

Consider It Propaganda.

There is a disposition in some quarters to believe that the treaty story is propaganda, intended to create distrust among the delegates to the Central American conference on the eve of their opening session. For that reason it would not occasion much surprise if the alleged text of the treaty should be published on Sunday, the day preceding the first session. In this connection it is noted that El Universal also proposes to publish an extensive series of communications between the United States government and officials of the various Central American republics on the subject of "constituting a union of these countries in accordance with the views of the United States."

EVAN FONTAINE WINS WEEK MORE TO GET EVIDENCE

Nyack, N. Y., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—The generosity of the court was again extended to attorneys for Mrs. Evan Burrows Fontaine Adair in special term of supreme court here today when Justice Arthur S. Tompkins granted counsel for the dancer a week's more time to submit affidavits in answer to the charge made by counsel for Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney that the dancer obtained the annulment of her marriage from Sterling Adair by fraud.

Mrs. Adair, now in California, is suing "Sonny" Whitney for $1,000,000 for alleged breach of promise, and three weeks ago when the defendant's lawyers submitted a mass of evidence and affidavits showing fraud in the annulment proceedings which she brought against her former husband, who is now dead, Justice Tompkins reminded her lawyer, Charles Firestone, that he had had months to prepare his case and that on Dec. 2 the court would act upon the case.

Justice Tompkins also granted the defendant counsel, Cornelius J. Sullivan and Outerbridge Horsey, one week to answer the affidavits from the time they are filed.

JAMES R. MANN'S BODY SENT HOME FROM CAPITOL

Harding Attends Notable Tribute to Chicagoan.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Citizens of the Second congressional district request that flags be placed at half mast for the funeral of Congressman James R. Mann on Monday, Dec. 4.

SECOND CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT COMMITTEE.
GEORGE W. BOLLING, Chairman.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Impressive services over the body of the late James R. Mann of Chicago were held this afternoon in the hall of the house of representatives, where for more than a quarter of a century he had been a conspicuous figure.

A notable gathering included President Harding and four members of his cabinet, Secretaries Hughes, Daugherty, Fall and Wallace; Chief Justice Taft and other justices of the Supreme court, representatives of the diplomatic corps, headed by Ambassador Jusserand of France, and members of the senate and house. Other friends of the former Republican leader filled the galleries.

Body Buried by Flowers.

The body of Mr. Mann was placed in front of the speakers' rostrum. Banked around it were many floral pieces. A large wreath from President and Mrs. Harding was immediately behind the casket. A basket of American beauty roses from the house of representatives was at the foot of the casket, and a similar floral piece from the Illinois delegation at the head.

Following the services the body was taken tonight to Chicago. Accompanying the body were Mrs. Mann and a committee of senators and representatives.

The services were conducted by the Rev. James E. Freeman, rector of Epiphany Episcopal church, which Mr. Mann attended. The Rev. J. Montgomery, chaplain of the house, pronounced the benediction. A male quintet sang two sacred selections.

Tribute to Dead Leader.

The Rev. Mr. Freeman paid high tribute to the record of Mr. Mann as a public official.

"For more than a quarter of a century James R. Mann occupied a place of useful and commanding influence in congress.

"In the loftiest sense in which we may use the word, he was a true hearted, untiring, sensitively conscientious public servant. Fitting, indeed, is it that in this house that witnessed the best service of his life we should gather today as his friends and loyal countrymen to lay upon his casket the well earned laurel that rightfully belongs to men of his excelling qualities."

BODY ARRIVES TODAY.

The body of the late Representative James R. Mann of Chicago, who died of pneumonia in Washington on Thursday last, will be brought to Chicago today on the Manhattan limited. It is probable that the casket, which is being carried in an observation car, will be taken from the train at Englewood station, which will be reached at 2:35 p. m., and thence to the Mann residence.

The honorary pallbearers at the funeral services tomorrow afternoon will be:

Francis E. Baker.	Joseph G. Cannon.
Kenesaw M. Landis.	Ira C. Copley.

CANDY, JAM PASS AS CURRENCY ON SOUTH SEA ISLE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

HONOLULU, Dec. 2.—Orange jam and candy are the currency of Rapa, a south sea island of delight where the women greatly outnumber the men, according to J. F. G. Stokes who, accompanied by his wife, has just returned from a long stay in the Australian group in search of specimens of early Polynesian civilization. Mr. Stokes offered the natives gold which was refused, but when Mrs. Stokes began distributing candy hundreds were only too anxious to work collecting specimens. The success of the Stokes expedition was menaced when the candy supply gave out, but Mrs. Stokes conceived the idea of cooking orange jam which proved a splendid substitute.

1,862 BAKERS IN PARIS CLOSE TO GET MORE DOUGH

PARIS, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—The successful beginning of the bread strike, or lockout, is indicated by the official figures that by 3 o'clock this afternoon, three hours after the movement began, 1,862 bakery shops in Paris were closed and only 188 were open. Many of these joined the strikers by night, when long bread lines formed, in the vain hope that the shops would be reopened.

No untoward incident had occurred up to 10 o'clock tonight, except that the windows of one bakery were broken by disappointed customers; another, selling bread at 1 franc 35 centimes, was hooted and complaint laid for illicit raising of prices.

Investigation Is Opened.

Magistrate Leroy examined M. Durand, president of the Master Bakers' union, and four other members of the union committee. Durand said that the meeting yesterday of the bakers was responsible for the movement, not the union committee, and insisted that it had not been decided to close the bakeries, but to suspend work and hand over the machinery to the authority of the prefect.

The baker employés' union decided some time ago to assure a supply of bread if there was a strike. The union met tonight and decided to placard Paris to the effect that it was not collaborating with either the employers or the government, but had summoned all bakers to be ready to take possession of the ovens so as to assure bread to the working classes, the aged, and the children.

More Rye for Bread.

President Millerand signed a decree today authorizing the addition of 10 per cent of rye or rice to bread flour, this to become obligatory Dec. 25.

Paris will derive direct benefit from belonging to a nation of compulsory military service, as loaded trucks of corn are arriving at the military bakeries tonight. The army bakers will be obliged to work overtime, as the regulations provide that the army must supply bread to the civilians under present conditions. It is expected that a sufficient supply will be available after two days.

GEN. PILSUDSKI. [Copyright: U. & U.]

WARSAW, Dec. 2.—[Jewish Telegraph.]—Chief of State Pilsudski will be nominated for reelection to the presidency of Poland by the Populist [Piast] party, the group headed by former Prime Minister Witos. This decision was reached by acclamation at a meeting of the Piast party members of the new parliament, presided over by M. Witos.

'FIXED' DIVORCES NEW TARGET OF JUDGE HURLEY

Bars Waiving Rights Prior to Entering Court.

Pre-divorce agreements between an estranged couple, as a result of which the complaining wife waives her right to alimony and solicitor's fees for the assurance that her suit will be uncontested will not be countenanced by Judge Timothy D. Hurley, it was indicated yesterday when Mrs. Ruth Zelus, 2736 West 36th street was forced to accept both.

In her testimony Mrs. Zelus declared that Louis Zelus had deserted her the day following her marriage on Aug. 14, 1920, and had not contributed to her support during the ensuing two years. Although Zelus was asserted to have a large income, Mrs. Zelus declared she wished neither alimony nor solicitor's fees.

Questioned by Judge.

"Prior to this hearing, had you arranged with your husband not to ask alimony or attorney's fees if he would not contest your suit?" asked Judge Hurley. Mrs. Zelus admitted that such an arrangement existed.

"I will refuse to grant a decree under such circumstances," declared Judge Hurley. "Zelus married you and he is legally and morally responsible for your welfare. There will be an order entered requiring the payment of $10 weekly to you and $100 fees to your counsel, Becker & Horwich."

"This court will not willingly be made a party to an 'agreed' or 'fixed' divorce," Judge Hurley continued. "This is another instance of collusion in obtaining a decree, not so serious on the face of it, but withal, an example of the practice which has helped to make Chicago's reputation as a divorce center more odious than that of Reno.

Must Live Up to Duty.

"No man will escape the performance of his sworn duty to the woman of his first choice, where he does not present himself to answer the charges on which she bases her plea for separation. Neither will I embarrass and hinder a man by forcing him to pay large alimony to a woman, whose infidelity or habits drove him from their home."

Overriding the pleas of her husband, for leniency, Judge Hurley ordered the arrest of Mrs. Stanci Spewakon and the "other man," John Oszanowski, 158 Lincoln street, Harvey, Ill., named in the divorce bill of Joseph Spewakon, 154 East 118th street. Charges made by Spewakon will be aired before Judge Hurley next Saturday.

In a prior hearing of Spewakon's suit Judge Hurley declared he would test the right of a "love pirate" to break up a home, render children motherless, and live openly with the guilty spouse, and cited Mrs. Spewakon and Oszanowski to appear before him yesterday, threatening grand jury action if the charges were proved.

Can't Locate Couple.

Mrs. Spewakon and Oszanowski were discovered by deputy sheriffs living in the same home at the Harvey address, but neither appeared in response to the summons. Through his counsel, Walter J. Flens, Spewakon pleaded that the summons be withdrawn.

"I love my wife and always will, no matter where she is," asserted Spewakon. "She has done wrong and she knows it now, probably, but she is the mother of my children and she must not go to jail simply because she loved another and could not love me. If she is to be punished for her love, let me withdraw my divorce suit. Why cannot the law give me my divorce, and allow her to marry Oszanowski so that their child may be legitimate?"

INDIANIAN HEADS TEACHERS.

Frank B. Wade of Shortridge High school, Indianapolis, Ind., was elected president of the Central Association of Teachers of Science and Mathematics yesterday morning at Hyde Park High school.

BEAUTY CONTEST ELIGIBLES

BEAUTY CONTEST FOR MEN SLATED AS U. C. FEATURE

Russell Pierce, Scribe, Originates Idea.

Beauty may be only skin deep, but the 1,700 male undergraduates at the University of Chicago believe they are thick skinned. At least, they consider the handsome portion of their epidermis is of sufficient altitude to warrant a special beauty contest for men only.

Russell Pierce, editor of the Rap and Pound section of the Cap and Gown, plans to devote a portion of his "humorous" department of the university year book to the contours of the most handsome masculine faces on the campus.

Hard Work to Get Entrants.

"Women's beauty contests have been overdone," he explained. "Besides, it often makes hard feelings between the girls, for they all want their pictures in the paper. But in this contest, we have to work hard to get a man to submit his picture. In fact, we will have to do the selecting of candidates ourselves."

Accordingly the committee will weigh the beauty of the 1,700 and finally print the portraits of a dozen or so of the fairest.

Final representations will resemble anatomical studies in physiognomy and arithmetic more than idealized visions of manly beauty. For each face will be measured, according to the standards of mathematical pulchritude laid down by Prof. Frederick Starr, anthropologist, who recently declared that the Coreans are the most beautiful people.

Some of the Eligibles.

Considering beauty, personality and measurements, the following men are receiving attention from the campus as possible recipients of the "apple" for their handsome faces:

Otto Strohmeier, member of Delta Tau Delta, played end and quarter on this year's football team, is president of the senior class and has a smile that even a Corean would envy.

Frank Linden, if you prefer your beauty "medium" have medium blue eyes, medium brown hair, is of medium height and a little less than medium weight. Linden is business manager of the Daily Maroon, an officer in Blackfriars, and belongs to Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

Hal Lewis, Psi Upsilon, captain of this year's eleven and a member of the honor commission, is a favored contestant. Another much discussed face belongs to Wallace Lanigan, a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, Blackfriars, and a leader of the interclass hop.

Bertram Granquist of the Sigma Chi fraternity, is associate editor of Cap and Gown, is president of the Interfraternity council, and sings baritone in the Glee club. He is also handsome.

RENT AGENT ROBBED IN FLAT.

A. J. Simpson, 423 West Sixty-fifth place, a rent collector, was robbed of $300 yesterday by two bandits in an untenanted flat at 2221 South Dearborn street. Simpson said he was showing the flat to William Henry, 2824 South Dearborn street. The bandits searched both men but obtained nothing from Henry.

FAILS TO TUNE ON NEW RADIO LAW, COUNCIL ASKS AID

So numerous and emphatic were the objections expressed yesterday to a proposed ordinance licensing radio receiving and transmitting stations, amateur and commercial, that Chairman Max Adamowski of the aldermanic subcommittee considering the measure adjourned the session until next Friday morning and issued a call to the public generally to attend the meeting and express its views. The ordinance is sponsored by George E. Carlson, city commissioner of gas and electricity, who declares many amateur radio plants now in use are endangering property and lives. Under the ordinance a fee of $3 for inspection of apparatus would be charged. The American Association of Engineers charged that it would stifle amateur development of the radio. John B. Tansey, representing the Radio Club of Illinois, said that his organization would present twenty other objections.

MAN AND WIFE FINED.

Peter Bladle and his wife, Mary, 1764 Clybourn avenue, were fined $100 and costs each by Judge John Richardson yesterday for violation of the Illinois prohibition law.

Ad Men's Legion Post to Put World on Pillory

Prominent national characters, political subjects and news events of the day will be placed on the griddle at the annual gridiron banquet and election of officers of the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion tomorrow evening in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel. Many men in service hospitals will be guests. The satire will be directed at congress, public disapproval and even to post members. Vaudeville and "stunts" have been arranged to follow the installation of officers. Reed G. Landis, son of former Judge K. M. Landis, is unopposed for commander to succeed Col. Horatio B. Hackett, who was electnational executive committeeman from Illinois.

Robs Woman of $10; Loses Rifle Worth $30 in Flight

Mrs. Bertha Kjelstrom, 3109 Vernon avenue, was held up by a lone bandit at 80th street and Vernon avenue, last night. He struck her on the head with the butt of a rifle, snatched her purse, and fled. Pursued by witnesses, he flung away the rifle, estimated to be worth $30. The purse contained $10.

POINCARE PLEA FOR NAVY LIMIT TREATY FAILS

PARIS, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Hostility toward the ratification of the Washington naval agreements in the foreign affairs committee of the French chamber of deputies placing Georges Mandel, reporter of the commission, on the minority side, was responsible for the resignation of M. Mandel, former chief of cabinet under Clemenceau, from the commission.

While M. Mandel refuses to be quoted, it is known that the committee rejected his report recommending ratification by a vote of 26 to 16, with two members absent.

Premier Poincare and ex-Premier Briand were among the minority which favored immediate action on the Washington treaties, but the commission overruled the request of the premier and the pleadings of M. Briand, who demanded that France's signature "be not reduced to the rank of a scrap of paper."

Object to Equality With Italy.

The opposition centered on the question of reservations concerning capital ships, the majority of the commission refusing to consent to France being placed on the same footing with Italy. The refusal of the commission to recommend unqualified ratification of the Washington treaties is not interpreted in parliamentary circles as involving disapproval of the principle of the agreement.

It is looked upon as a question of interior policy which will be taken advantage of in an attempt to defeat former Premier Leygues as president of the foreign affairs commission when officers are reelected next January.

Seeks Reservations on Big Ships.

The commission will meet again next Tuesday and elect a reporter to replace M. Mandel. It is expected a test case will be made on this election.

As matters now stand, it seems probable to parliamentary circles that there will be a majority on the commission favorable to ratification with a reservation allowing France full freedom of action in building capital ships "as the necessity to protect the French colonies may demand."

CON CON TILT BRINGS DEFENSE OF TAX CLAUSE

H. T. Gilbert Challenges Cartwright Views.

Revenue and taxation moved to the fore yesterday in the ballot on the proposed new constitution. A criticism that the indictment of the new draft by Justice James H. Cartwright, member of the Supreme bench for more than a quarter of a century, contains statements which are "plainly and palpably erroneous" and "likely to mislead" was issued yesterday by the ratification forces. It was prepared by Hiram T. Gilbert, author of the municipal court act and former assistant attorney general.

From the opposition camp came a declaration from Carl L. Vrooman, former assistant secretary of agriculture, that the new draft might subject some citizens to "three income taxes."

Challenges View on Legislature.

Mr. Gilbert's criticism of Justice Cartwright's recent letter attacking the document says in part:

"Mr. Justice Cartwright asserts that the new constitution will increase the powers of the legislature to impose taxes. This statement is palpably erroneous. In making it Mr. Justice Cartwright overlooks the elementary rule of constitutional construction that the legislature has every power, whether it be the power of taxation or any other power, which the constitution does not declare, either expressly or impliedly, that it shall not have.

"There is no tax authorized by the new constitution which is not authorized by the constitution of 1870. The only difference in that respect is that whereas under the constitution of 1870, if the legislature imposed income taxes it could not allow exemption or provide for a higher rate on large incomes than on small incomes. Under the new constitution it can allow exemptions or deductions which are just and can tax large incomes at a rate not more than three times the tax on small incomes.

New Tax Powers Defined.

"Mr. Justice Cartwright also says that 'while the present constitution authorizes the legislature to tax a long list of persons or privileges, the new constitution authorizes a general tax on all occupations, so that the farmer, mechanic, and practically every other person will be liable to a tax on his occupation.' If there is anything well settled by the decisions of the Supreme Court of Illinois it is that the legislature is now authorized to tax any occupation which it sees fit to tax, including farmers, mechanics, school teachers, ministers of the gospel, lawyers and washerwomen.

"Under the constitution of 1870, the legislature can, if it sees fit, impose an income tax on farmers and business men in addition to a tax on property from which the income is derived. It can do no more under the new constitution if it is adopted, but the new constitution gives the legislature power, if it levies an income tax, to make an allowance for taxes paid on the property from which the income is derived, and also to exempt household furniture and implements of agriculture, thus benefiting the farmers. Nothing can be clearer than that no more taxes can be levied under the new constitution than under the present one.

Judicial Elections In Off Years.

"Mr. Justice Cartwright asserts that the new constitution changes the time for the election of judges from June, when no other officials are elected, to November, when the president, governor, congressmen and county officials are elected on political platforms—and the issue is between political parties. It is not true that any judicial decline outside of Cook county can occur in the same year when the president, the governor, congressmen or county officials are elected. These latter elections always occur in even numbered years, whereas the election of judges will occur in the odd numbered years. In Cook county all elections for judges will occur in June.

"Mr. Justice Cartwright insists that the present constitution has been corrupted by repeated judicial decisions and that the changes made will necessitate few constructions. This is the same kind of argument which has been constantly used to defeat legislation designed to improve and modernize judicial procedure."

Opposed by Czech Society.

The grand lodge of the Czecho-Slovak fraternal society issued an appeal to citizens of Czecho-Slovakian birth to vote against the new draft on four counts—"increasing the burden of taxation of the working man by proposed income taxes; un-American provision of restricted representation; creation of a court oligarchy, and section 'bases in schools,'" the latter referring to the Bible reading clause. The City club announced that the referendum among its members showed a 5 to 3 vote in favor of ratification of the new draft. The vote stood 543 to 321 against the document.

Harold L. Ickes repeated his suggestion to Justice Orrin N. Carter, head of the ratification committee, that both sides agree to publish their campaign receipts and expenditures.

Asks for Source of Finances.

Mr. Ickes, after setting forth that he has not received a reply to a previous letter, wrote to Judge Carter:

"No proposition has been put up to you during this campaign that is of more concern to the voters than this one of making a full disclosure of the amount of your contributions, their source, and the purpose to which they shall be devoted. I find there is a good deal of curiosity in the minds of the people on this. There is a growing feeling that some of the money, in unnecessarily large amounts, is being contributed to put the constitution over by persons and interests that are not usually regarded as being concerned about the public welfare."

STICKNEY SCHOOL BAZAAR

Dozens of children participated in the annual charity bazaar of the Stickney school held in the Masonic hall at Hollywood and Winthrop avenues yesterday and last night. Booths were conducted for the sale of all manner of toys, gifts, and edibles and a dinner was served. The receipts will be devoted to children's charities. The little Misses Bahr and Wilds were among the salespersons.

KLAN ORGANIZER DIVORCED, WIFE NAMES HIS AID

J. E. Morton MacCormac and Secretary Accused.

Heart affairs between J. E. Morton MacCormac, former board of education statistician, Thompson-Lundin politician, and more recently national organizer for the Ku Klux Klan, and his secretary, Miss Antoinette Bournee, culminated yesterday in a decree of divorce awarded to Mrs. Mary E. MacCormac by Judge Timothy D. Hurley.

Weekly alimony of $25, solicitor's fees of $500, together with the title to the MacCormac Business schools at 1208 East 63d street and the MacCormac home at 6426 Kenwood avenue are included in the decree. MacCormac, it was asserted by Attorney Cuthbert D. Potts, counsel for Mrs. MacCormac, receives an average monthly income of $1,500 from his klan activities.

Shows Letters In Court.

Letters, hotel registers and newspaper clippings were produced by Mrs. MacCormac to substantiate her charge that MacCormac, with Miss Bournee, had toured eastern and southern resorts and until recently had been together at Manitou, Col.

"On July 19, 1917, Mr. MacCormac told me he was going to Milwaukee on the boat with the then superintendent of schools, Mr. Shoup," Mrs. MacCormac testified. "But I suspected and the next day called Mr. Shoup's office and learned that he had not left Chicago. I met the incoming Milwaukee boat and surprised Mr. MacCormac with the girl, whom I afterward learned was Miss Bournee."

Saw Kiss in Hotel Lobby, She Says.

Again, Mrs. MacCormac declared she had discovered her husband leaving Miss Bournee's apartment and later the same day had witnessed him kiss his secretary in the lobby of the Hotel La Salle. Statements from Dr. W. R. Neff demanding payment for dental services rendered to Miss Bournee at MacCormac's request and canceled checks drawn in her favor by the schoolmaster were introduced.

"The school board certainly does make interesting reading for the public," reads one of the several "Dearest Boy" and "My Sweetheart" letters said to have been written by Miss Bournee to MacCormac last April, "and hope it will wake up soon and find out what crooks they all are."

["There is just one thing you must do," reads another, "get rid of the third party—other men do it and you must. Love to you, my sweet hubby. (Gee, I wish I could tell people that you are my husband and you really were.) We could be so happy together."]

W. C. T. U. PLANS NO "TOBACCO DRIVE," LEADER ASSERTS

Miss Anna Gordon of Evanston, leader of the W. C. T. U movement, returned yesterday from the east and attendance in Philadelphia and Toronto of temperance conventions, spiked reports that the W. C. T. U. purposes a national campaign against smoking.

MISS ANNA GORDON.

She stated that no campaign against tobacco was planned, but that the drive against liquor would continue and that its international phase would be particularly stressed. "Only through a world acceptance of prohibition can we expect this country to really become dry," she said.

FLYING SERVICE SEEKS ROOKIES FOR RANTOUL

Jobless, Goes to Cousin's Store to Commit Suicide

John Grumbos, 33 years old, 1525 South Komensky avenue, committed suicide late yesterday by shooting himself through the right ear. He was found in the basement of 3959 West Sixteenth street, his cousin's business place. Grumbos, the police learned, had been out of work.

TWICHELL Dainty Grands

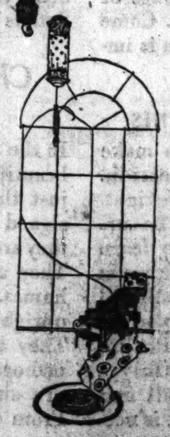
Established 1879

THE Twichell Grand is the final expression of thirty-eight years of effort toward the production of a diminutive Grand that should possess every quality of tone and touch that makes the Grand the artist's piano. It is the most beautifully encased of miniature Grands, but the attainment of external beauty has been but a subordinate aim of its makers. It is the possession of true Twichell tone—superb in quality, astonishing in volume—that has lifted the Twichell Grand to a high place among musical accomplishments and insures life-long pride and pleasure in its ownership.

The visitor to our store finds a place where Twichell Pianos may be inspected, tried and compared in an agreeable environment.

Twichell Pianos may be purchased with a ten per cent deposit and balance in monthly payments. Liberal allowance made for your piano.

Open Evenings Until 9 o'Clock



With all its charm of diminutive size, the Dainty Grand displays in astonishing volume the rich, flute-like mellowness of Twichell tone.

LIBERALS PLAN DIRECT VOTE TO ELECT PRESIDENT

Bitter Attack on Daugherty by Mr. Untermyer.

acted as chairman of the preliminary conference yesterday confined to members and members-elect of congress, strongly urged extension of the direct primary system both through new federal legislation and through action by the state legislatures. In answer to the argument that the people make many mistakes in their voting he said: "Who has a better right to make mistakes?"

Blaine Fights Tax Dodgers.

Gov. Blaine of Wisconsin urged amendment of the revenue laws to provide for fullest publicity of income tax returns as a safeguard against tax dodging.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, assailed the courts and called upon the progressives to check the growing usurpations of the judiciary.

Senator Elect Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] denied the charge that he is a radical and demanded a return to the principles laid down in the Declaration of Independence.

"I have come here in response to your invitation to sound a note of warning—dispassionate, without partisanship, but intensely earnest—against what I regard as the complete breakdown in the administration of justice," Mr. Untermyer said.

Bitter Words for Daugherty.

"We are rapidly drifting toward the cataclysm which was predicted when, instead of selecting a great lawyer for that exalted post, a man of the most mediocre attainments was named, solely on the basis of personal friendship and political service—a man of the measure of the average ward politician, who is without learning or training as a lawyer and whose lifelong environment and practical works has been that of a legislative lobbyist and nothing more.

"This is not an easy task, nor are these pleasant words, for we are discussing a man of genial, companionable personality, but one who is in every way as conspicuously unfit for this great office as it was possible for the President to have selected.

"Could Not Have Done Worse."

"If he had gone into any town of the country and blindly selected the first man he met with a certificate to practice law he could not have done worse and would doubtless have fared better.

"The situation demands plain speech, for the peril is great. No amount of public service that the President may perform can counteract the harm he has done in making this appointment. He has struck a blow at the administration of justice from which it will not soon recover."

Mr. Untermyer rapped Mr. Daugherty for taking the railroad strike injunction suit before Federal Judge Wilkerson in Chicago.

"A fair illustration of the indelicacy, to say the least, with which that great office is now administered," he said, "is found in the selection by the attorney general of the judge before whom the railroad injunction case was argued. He had the choice of any tribunal in the country, and yet he deliberately selected a judge whose appointment was under consideration by him at the time the papers were being prepared.

Cites a "Tactless" Move.

"At the time when the ink was barely dry upon his (the judge's certificate of appointment from the President, at the instance of the attorney general) this judge was called upon to sit in judgment in this case."

Gov. Blaine declared that out of 14,000 corporations in Wisconsin, approximately 3,000 had dodged payment of some of their income taxes. The amount of these taxes would run into millions, he said. He argued that if tax dodging could prevail on such a large scale in one state, it must be equally large in many others, and that the federal government should protect both itself and honest taxpayers by throwing the light of publicity on dishonesty.

The house judiciary committee will meet Monday in open session to hear detailed charges against Attorney General Daugherty by Representative Keller [Rep., Minn.]. The attorney general is said to be prepared to answer freely all Mr. Keller's accusations.

MAKING COUZENS A SENATOR

[Copyright; Pacific and Atlantic.]

Mrs. Frank Couzens, daughter in law of Mayor Couzens of Detroit, reading the telegram from Governor Groesbeck offering Mayor Couzens the senatorship left vacant by the retirement of Senator Newberry. Mr. Couzens has accepted the appointment.

BEG PARDON!

Richard J. Nash, 3241 West Washington boulevard, reported Friday in THE TRIBUNE to have been injured seriously when his automobile crashed into a telegraph pole at Lawrence avenue and Lincoln street, states that he was not connected in any way with the accident, and that he was nowhere near the scene.

COUZENS BEST SENATE PICK, IS FORD'S OPINION

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 2.—Mayor James Couzens of Detroit, who next week will take the seat in the United States senate relinquished by Truman H. Newberry, is "the best man who could have been picked for the job," in the opinion of Henry Ford, former employer and later partner of Mr. Couzens. The seat to be taken by the Detroit mayor is the one sought four years ago by Mr. Ford, who was defeated at the polls by Mr. Newberry.

"Couzens is just the type of man needed in the senate, not only by Michigan, but by the whole country," the automobile manufacturer said in a statement tonight. "He is a man of immense wealth and yet he still has the welfare of the public at heart. He is independent and fearless and likes nothing better than a fight for the common people.

"There are two things upon which Mr. Couzens can be relied. Instead of attempting to bring about the passage of additional federal laws he will strive for the repeal of an overwhelming mass of obsolete and harmful legislation."

WHY NO FLAG ON STAGE? VET ASKS BORAH; THEN RIOT

Senator Demands Soviet Be Recognized.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 2.—Within two years, owing to the near east situation, there may be another great war, Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] said in an address here tonight in Symphony hall. His subject was "The Recognition of Russia," and he advocated that step by the United States as a means of averting another European conflagration.

At the close of the senator's address the police guard was called on to prevent a riot when a questioner, who said his name was MacDonald and that he was a world war veteran, mounted the stage.

Amid shouts of "Put him out!" Senator Borah insisted that the questioner be heard.

"Why is there no American flag displayed here?" MacDonald asked. Turmoil started afresh and many rushed for the stage to eject the stranger. Police intervened to protect him and the incident closed.

Senator Borah said when peace was restored that wherever he appeared to speak there were "American principles if not the flag."

Two resolutions were adopted almost unanimously by the audience. One, proposed by Prof. Charles Skinner of Tufts college, called upon the President and secretary of state to provide for the restoration of trade relations with Russia. The other, presented by John Codman of Boston, urged congress to recognize the Russian soviet government.

Fire in Electric Plant Darkens North Side Area

A part of the north side, extending from the river to Fullerton avenue, was plunged in darkness temporarily last night by a fire in the substation of the Commonwealth Edison company at Division street and Milwaukee avenue. The blaze was caused by a blown out fuse, officials stated. A fire alarm was sounded and the flames quickly extinguished.

Blood today obtained a marriage certificate to wed Mrs. Minnie Hanson. Accompanying his mother, Edward Hanson, 19, was given a license to marry Miss Sophie Biver.

SMALL WILL SEEK RENOMINATION ON ROADS PLATFORM

To Ask Highway Bond Issue.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 1.—[Special.]—Gov. Len Small is to be a candidate for renomination. The main plank in his primary platform will be "roads." This is the opinion of politicians who have watched carefully the developments of the past week within the state administration.

The governor's first work in the 1924 primary campaign, it is believed, will be to take the initiative in putting through a new $100,000,000 bond issue for extension of the Illinois highway system. This will necessitate submission of the proposed bond issue by majority vote of the general assembly and ratification by the voters in the same election in 1924 in which Gov. Small hopes to be running as the Republican nominee for governor.

Will Stress Road Needs.

Undoubtedly, in the message that Gov. Small will submit to the general assembly next month, he will stress the report of the state highway department which will show, it is indicated, the construction of well over 3,000 miles of paved highway in the state, during Gov. Small's term. This showing, presumably, is to be coupled with the assertion that the $60,000,000 bond issue approved in 1918, was not sufficient to complete the 4,800 miles of the state system that was provided for in the 1918 road bond act.

Gov. Small, it is believed, will have some recommendations to make whereby the bulk of the proposed $100,000,000 bond issue would be paid by automobile owners, and transportation companies that are using the roads for bus lines.

Seek Party Harmony.

There is a growing tendency among party chieftains to secure a harmonious settlement of the speakership contest and to ward off, if possible, any bipartisan combination, either for or opposed to the Small administration. candidate is A. Otis Arnold of Quincy. Speaker Dahlberg, who doesn't say so officially, is a candidate and expects to be elected through the combined efforts of the state administration, the city hall organization in Chicago and with the approval, at least, of the Anti-Saloon league.

"MISSING" YOUTH IS HELD AS SUSPECT IN THEFT OF AUTO

WILLIAM J. WORTH

A three day search for William J. Worth, 26 years old, 6116 Ingleside avenue, who disappeared Wednesday night, ended yesterday at the detective bureau, where he has been held for investigation since Thursday. Worth was booked last night, the charge being larceny of an automobile.

While his mother lay desperately ill at her home and relatives were carrying on a frantic search, detectives were quietly investigating the manner in which a Ford coupe had come into Worth's possession. Worth claims to have purchased the machine five months ago, but cannot produce the person from whom it was bought, according to police, who say that it is the property of W. W. Pierson, 1051 Barry avenue.

SENTENCED ON GIRL CHARGE.

Alvin Buggenheim, 23, 6257 Eberhart avenue, a salesman, was sentenced to six months in the bridewell yesterday for contributing to the delinquency of Margaret Gregg, 16 years old.

WHY NOT THE SHERIDAN-PLAZA THIS WINTER?

NEW BOUL MICH AUTO LANES OPEN TOMORROW NIGHT

South Bottle Neck Cut Out by Widening.

Michigan avenue's pavement extension, the important public improvement which required five years to plan and five weeks to complete, will be thrown open to traffic by tomorrow night, according to announcement made yesterday by J. F. Foster, general superintendent of the south parks commission. At that time the thousands of motor vehicles accustomed hourly to thread the congested "bottle neck" in low gear will find an additional fourteen foot sweep of pavement from Roosevelt road south to Thirty-third street ready for their use.

South Park officials believe that construction work on the widening contract has broken all city records. It began about five weeks ago and included the cutting away of curbs and sidewalks to allow seven feet of additional roadway on each side of the street, grading and preparation of the shoulders thus created, and the pouring of pavement.

Care for Traffic First.

The setting back of lampposts was completed two years ago. Some of the sidewalk and curb work remains to be finished, but all barriers to street traffic have been ordered cleared away by Tuesday morning.

No change in the traffic rules governing the improved artery has been made, but the park commissioners have considered plans to prohibit parking along auto row as a safety measure. Present regulations prevent parking during the morning and evening rush hours and set a half hour parking limit at other periods.

"It has been pointed out that parking adds seriously to the traffic danger all along the boulevard," said Mr. Foster. "Even with the pavement extension in service the parked cars are so numerous that vehicles desiring to stop at points near 22d street are often compelled to halt outside the curb line. The moving line behind them is forced to draw out to the left or to stop altogether. When the new south side bus line begins operation it will add to the traffic congestion and reduce the operating space."

Festival to Mark Opening.

Plans for a formal opening of the new pavement Dec. 19 are under way. They are sponsored by a joint committee representing the South Central association, Chicago Automobile Trade association, Chicago Motor club, and Illinois Automobile club, which met in the Lexington hotel Friday night and announced the date of the celebration, which includes a combination Mardi Gras and New Year's eve festival, to be featured by a monster automobile parade, an evening banquet in the Lexington hotel for city and park officials, and a public entertainment and dance in the evening.

ACTRESS DIVORCES MAN SHE HELPED TO SUCCESS, THEN LOST

Mrs. Thelma Orr Meyer, former Ziegfeld "Follies" beauty and now under contract with David Wark Griffith to star in a new film production, was awarded a divorce yesterday from Max W. Meyer, man of many businesses, by Judge Timothy D. Hurley.

Numerous beatings and slappings were charged to Meyer by Mrs. Meyer in answer to questions by her counsel, Hugh R. Porter. She also spoke of Meyer's friendship for Edna Coleman, also an actress.

"Mr. Meyer had a mania for attempting new business ventures," said Mrs. Meyer, who lives at 4706 Grand boulevard, "and although I left the stage to marry him, I was forced to return to obtain money for his projects. Then when at last he struck it rich he left me in a sick bed, penniless."

Known as Thelma Orr, Mrs. Meyer in addition to her association with the Ziegfelds, was the star of "A Winsome Miss" and played a leading role in a "Merry Widow" company.

PUPPY LOVERS, 14, USE FREIGHT CAR FOR HONEYMOON

Find Money Is Needed Here to Eat.

Money as well as love is necessary to a successful elopement, as Louise Stewart, 14 years old, 237 Brunson street, and her husband-to-be, John Horndasch, 14 years old, 735 Columbus street, both of Benton Harbor, Mich., heroes of another "puppy love" romance, found when they reached Chicago by freight car from Benton Harbor yesterday.

"You see," explained John to a policeman who found the pair wandering the streets on the south side, "I love Louise and she wants to be my wife. Of course our parents would not let us marry and so we decided to elope."

Arranged Weeks Ago.

The elopement was arranged some weeks ago. On Friday morning John left home for school as usual, met Louise by agreement and went to the railroad station.

"I had no money," said John, "and my sweetheart suggested we get into a freight car. The train started at 9 o'clock and we arrived here at 7:30 o'clock."

"Have you had anything to eat since you left?" asked the policeman.

"No, I'm broke," said John, "but we love each other."

The policeman gave the children something to eat and then took them to the Juvenile detention home, where they were separated. "Are you going to call dad now?" asked John, looking longingly towards the room where Louise had been placed.

"Sure we are," he was told.

Parents Take Them Back.

Then, just as the two adventurers were becoming accustomed to their surroundings, in walked Mrs. Carl Wood, Louise's foster mother, and John Horndasch, father of John Jr. The youth was astonished at the appearance of his parent, but Louise greeted her mother with a kiss.

The parents declined to comment on the elopement as they started back to South Bend with their children, but John Jr., was heard to ask his father: "Are you going to scold me for this?"

2 BOYS, WOMAN, AND MAN KILLED IN DAY BY AUTOS

3 Others Die of Injuries Previously Received.

Two boys, a man and a woman were killed in automobile accidents in Chicago yesterday, and two men and a woman died from injuries previously received.

Mrs. Caroline Christensen, 28 years old, 3606 South Wells street, was killed, and her brother-in-law, Albert Christensen, seriously injured early yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a car driven by John Burke, 5627 South Peoria street.

The collision occurred at Thirty-fifth and Wallace streets, the Christensen car being driven east and the Burke car south. Both Burke and Walter Smith, 2618 Lowe avenue, a passenger in Burke's car, were held by the police pending the inquest.

Steps Into Cab's Path.

Peter Saldukos, 7 years old, 3604 South Union street, was killed when he stepped from behind a street car at 35th and Halsted streets, into the path of a taxicab driven by Frank Sharsky, 940 West 34th street, who was held by the police.

While he was attempting to cross Hill street at North Wells street, Rudolph Heide, 14 years old, 163 Hill street, was struck and killed by an automobile, the driver of which, Irving Roseman 947 Winona avenue, was held on a charge of manslaughter.

Dies in Hospital.

Charles Knighton, 32 years old, colored, sustained injuries which proved fatal when he was hit by a machine while attempting to cross 36th street at State street. He died at the Provident hospital, where he was not identified for some time.

Victims of previous accidents who died yesterday were:

Robert D. Crozier, 25 years old, of Hazelcrest, Ill., hit by machine at Hazelcrest Friday; Patrick McNulty, 65 years old, 7136 Prairie avenue, struck by taxicab Friday; Mrs. Florence Wiedmeyer, 33 years old, a widow, living at 827 West 88th street, from injuries received Nov. 19, when the machine in which she was riding was struck by Chicago and Northwestern railroad train at the River road crossing in Des Plaines.

Two Others May Die.

John Simmons, 37 years old, 4122 Grand boulevard, a plumber, suffered internal injuries, probably fatal, when he was knocked down by a machine while attempting to cross the street in front of his home. The driver of the car did not stop, but witnesses gave the license number to the police, who say it belonged to S. A. Atkins, 4007 Ellis avenue.

Knocked down by a taxicab while at South State and Forty-third streets, Bernard Bolstrom, 51 years old, 833 East 43d street, also sustained internal injuries of which he may die. He was taken to his home at his own request. The driver was not held.

Chauffeur Is Cleared.

Abe Klass, chauffeur for Morris Eller, sanitary district trustee, and driver of an automobile which has caused two deaths recently, was absolved yesterday of responsibility for the death of the second victim, William C. Bremner, veteran postal employé, by a coroner's jury.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The Illinois bonus for ex-service men went over with 365,142 votes to spare.

This definite and final announcement was made possible yesterday by the completion of the official canvass in Cook county and the certification of the vote to Secretary of State Emmerson by County Clerk Sweitzer.

Under the law providing for the bonus it was required to receive a majority of the vote cast for legislative candidates in the state. The total vote for candidates for the legislature was 1,711,345. On this basis the bonus had to go over by at least 855,673.

Majority of 719,934.

The total vote in favor of the bonus was 1,220,815 and the "no" vote totaled only 500,781. This gave a clear majority of 719,934 of all the votes cast on the question and 365,142 more than the required majority of the total vote cast for legislative candidates.

In Cook county the vote for the bonus was 575,253, in contrast to the 176,939 votes against it. This was a higher ratio than shown in the rest of the state, which voted 645,562 to 324,842.

Figures on Beer.

The light wine and beer proponents won in Illinois by a score of 1,060,435 to 512,758, a majority of 547,580, of which downstate contributed 133,736 and Cook county the remaining 413,894. The total vote on state treasurer was 1,655,052 and the total vote on the beer and wine proposition was 1,573,196. In other words, there was a 95 per cent vote cast on this referendum in spite of assertions of the drys that it does not represent the sentiment of the state. According to these figures only 81,952 voters failed to record themselves on this question. This is a heavier vote than usually is cast on a little ballot proposition.

Largely because of his interest in seeing all obstacles removed from the path of the bonus, County Clerk Sweitzer rushed his certificate of the Cook county results to Springfield by a special messenger, John Hayes, the chief clerk of the election department of his office.

Emmerson Awaits Him.

The proclamation of the election commissioners was not received until nearly 4 o'clock, but Hayes caught a 6:40 train to Springfield, where Secretary of State Emmerson was waiting for him at 11 o'clock.

Hayes was to bring back with him on a midnight train all the commissions that issue from Springfield and they will be ready for the election winners bright and early tomorrow morning.

But a number of the winners were sworn in by County Clerk Sweitzer as soon as he received the election board results and began to strike off his totals by adding the country town vote where that was necessary. He himself was first sworn in by Probate Judge Horner, who was re-elected. Then he swore in Judge Horner.

Jarecki Takes Oath.

Then came a group of other victors, the chief among them being Edmund K. Jarecki, elected county judge over Frank S. Righeimer. After taking the oath Jarecki said his official installation will not occur until 10 o'clock tomorrow. At that time a special committe appointed by President Roger Sherman of the Chicago Bar association will have full charge of the program in the county court room. The committee consists of William H. Sexton, John M. Cameron and Walter H. Jacobs.

The final proceedings of the election commissioners' canvassing board were interrupted by Rush B. Johnson, Republican, shown defeated by John F. O'Connell, Democrat, for a two year term in the Municipal court by 496 votes. He charged variances between the tabulation sheets and the tally sheets. Two differences amounting to 200 votes seemed to be apparent and changes were ordered, although the board did not consider the proof conclusive. Johnson asked for other changes, but the board ruled against him. He announced he would demand a recount.

Other Recounts Due.

Philip J. Finnegan, Democrat, also said he would file a contest for one of the ten regular terms in the City court. The tabulations shewed him 543 votes behind Judge Emanuel Eller, who was number ten in the list of winners.

A congressional contest appeared likely in the sixth district where Congressman John J. Gorman, Republican, was shown defeated by James R. Buckley, Democrat, by only forty-two votes.

DITCH CAVE-IN KILLS WORKER.

Jefferson, Wis., Dec. 2.—Swan Sander, 24, of Rockford, Ill., was killed today when the sides of a seventeen foot deep ditch caved in on him.

BONUS QUERIES AND ANSWERS

Q.—Some say that California passed a bonus law this last election. Others say it was only a fund for loans to California veterans to get farms and homes. Which is correct? L. C. D.

A.—The latter.

Q.—I am at present living in Columbus, O., although my home is in Illinois. I enlisted there. I believe I am entitled to the Illinois bonus and want to make application for it. Will applications be mailed out to the men from the records at Springfield, or do we have to apply for the blanks? Where? P. D. P.

A.—The blanks will not be mailed out automatically. These forms are not ready yet, but when they are, we will have a supply in this office. Send us a stamped and addressed envelope and we will mail you a blank as soon as we receive them.

Q.—I saw in your paper the other day about an increase in widows' pensions. I am a widow. Where should I write to get the increase?

A.—The article specified that this was for the widows of veterans of the war with Spain, the Chinese Boxer rebellion, or the Philippine insurrection. Write to the Pension Commissioner, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., if your husband was in either service.

Q.—I was born and raised in Kentucky and came to Chicago in 1916 to make my home here. In April, 1918, I enlisted here in the navy, but in giving my emergency address I gave that of my mother in Kentucky. I gave my own address as Chicago and when I was discharged was given travel pay back to Chicago. Can I get the Illinois bonus? L. P. C.

A.—Probably. But where change of residence causes doubt about eligibility, we advise that application be made for the bonus and let the state bonus board decide the claim.

Q.—I was a resident of Illinois, but happened to be in Michigan when I registered for the draft. Then I came back to Chicago and had to go to Philadelphia, where I was drafted. I was born in Indiana, which is stated on my discharge. I voted in Illinois both before and after the war. Will Illinois pay me the bonus? R. A.

A.—No ruling has been given out by the bonus board about what will constitute "residence" for a man to be eligible for the Illinois bonus. We suggest that you make application for it and let the state bonus board decide your claim.

AUDITORS' CHECK ON SCHOOL BOARD TO BE SEARCHING

Many Deals to Undergo Thorough Inquiry.

Thorough audit of the books and records of the board of education for 1920-'21 will begin this week, probably Wednesday, Chairman John A. Richert of the city council finance committee announced yesterday. Smart Gore & Co. will make the audit.

It was made clear yesterday during a conference of Ald. Richert, E. E. Gore, president of the Association of Commerce and a member of the auditing firm, and Attorneys Charles M. Haft, Frederick A. Brown, and Marvin E. Barnhart, special assistants of the attorney general in the school inquiry, that the inquiry must be something more than a mere bookkeeping audit if it is to be of value to the attorneys.

Seeks Concealed Transactions.

There is little doubt, one of the conferees said, that from the standpoint of bookkeeping the board's books will be found in fair shape, the board auditor, Harry A. Brackett being considered exceedingly conscientious and competent. It is the transactions behind the books that the auditors will attempt to disclose. The question of fairness of prices paid and of alleged collusion between board officials and firms who dealt with it will be considered.

"The auditors will have to do almost as much detective work as auditing," one of those at yesterday's conference said. "For instance, the auditors will be asked to ascertain in all purchases of material if the material was delivered or what became of it, together with with its quality."

Gore to Be in Charge.

Mr. Gore will have general charge of the audit. He said he has eight employés available for the work and will make no per diem charge for his own services. With the exception of one man to be paid $100 a day for less than a week, the auditors will be paid from $15 to $35 a day, according to their experience.

Frank H. Cenfield, head of the efficiency staff of the finance committee, was directed by Chairman Richert to keep in touch with the work and check the auditors' bills.

35 FIRMS SUED ON OLD TAXES.

Thirty-five suits to recover back taxes of 1919 and 1920 aggregating $53,000 were filed by State's Attorney Crowe in the Circuit court yesterday against Chicago business firms.

GIRL'S DEATH IN POISON MYSTERY STARTS INQUIRY

Unexplained details in the death by poison of Miss Ruth Hoy, 21 years old, 1442 West Monroe street, who died in Durand hospital early yesterday morning, are engaging the attention of the coroner's office and the police.

The girl was admitted to the hospital on Nov. 26, supposedly suffering from diphtheria. She had several hemorrhages the first day, and it was discovered, after an examination, that she had been poisoned. Yesterday it was announced that she had died as a result of bichloride of mercury poisoning.

Hospital authorities state that the girl admitted that she took the tablets with intention to commit suicide, but refused to make any explanation.

GERMAN DENIES BRITISH WINKED SCAPA SINKING

"Tyler's Statement Silly," Says Naval Officer.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—[By The Chicago Tribune Wireless.]—Former Premier Clemenceau's intimation that the British winked at the scuttling of the German fleet at Scapa Flow is characterized as absolutely silly by the German admiralty.

"It is curious how the world can forget," Capt. Groos, the official government naval historian, commented. "It might be recalled that the British ships opened fire on the helpless German crews fleeing from the sinking vessels in row boats, killing several seamen. This does not indicate that the scuttling overly pleased the British.

"Question of Honor."

"Furthermore, the motives ascribed to the Frenchman are not sound. The guns, armament and technical equipment made the use of the ships in other navies impracticable. With the exception of three cruisers taken by the British, all the ships taken from the Germans were only used for target practice.

"There was never any idea that the ships intended to absorb the ships in their navies. At that time, it must be remembered, former President Wilson's fourteen points were the basis for peace. Besides the scuttling was entirely a question of honor which forbid the giving of the fleet to the enemy."

"Naval Authorities Undeceived."

The captain, who has written authoritative works on the naval side of the war, expressed the opinion that M. Clemenceau was trying to drive a wedge between the Anglo-American solidarity resulting from the Washington conference.

"By giving the impression to the American people that England double crossed the allies at Scapa Flow he hopes that the effect of the British attitude at Washington will be nullified," said Capt. Groos. "While naval authorities are never deceived by this propaganda, the people are ready to believe anything."

THE REV. C. S. STEVENS TO QUIT PASTORATE OF THIRD PRESBYTERIAN

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

A surprise awaits the congregation of the Third Presbyterian church, Ogden and Ashland boulevards, today, when the pastor, the Rev. Charles S. Stevens, will announce his resignation, according to information furnished by one of the elders of the church.

Dr. Stevens has been pastor of the church for two years, and, while the matter of his resignation has been one of private conversation since illness has kept him from the discharge of some of the duties deemed essential to conduct of the pastorate of so large a church, the announcement, it was said, will be somewhat of a shock.

The Third church recently celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of its history with a week's program and the largest homecoming of former members in its history. At that time Dr. Stevens announced that the Third church would refuse to follow many other downtown churches and remove to better residential districts.

The resignation will have to be formally presented to the congregation after the announcement today, but, it was said, would be accepted with the good feeling in which it will be presented and the pastoral relation will be severed without friction.

"Dr. Stevens is regarded as a very able preacher," said the elder who announced the pastor's intention to resign, "but he is not able to do the difficult pastoral work required."

MAYOR TO APPROVE CRIME COMMISSION; LAWLESSNESS CUT

Chief of Police Fitzmorris received two pieces of good news yesterday. One was the announcement of Mayor Thompson that he will not oppose the chief's ordinance creating a commission of five to deal with vice if it is amended to make it legal. The second was the best crime report of any week this year.

The crime figures were so low that the chief at first regarded them with suspicion. When he ascertained that the number of burglaries, robberies and larcencies had been checked by the Chicago crime commission he asserted that they are "amazing but true." The figures follow:

	1921.	1922.	Dec.
Burglary	87	67	20
Robbery	60	24	36
Larceny	56	35	21
Total	203	126	77

It is understood that to make the vice commission ordinance legal it must be amended so that the naming of the two civilian members will be in the hands of the mayor. This, Chief Fitzmorris indicated, will be done at next Wednesday's council session. Unless the law department finds other defects in the measure the ordinance is expected to pass with less than a dozen dissenting votes.

FRENCH STORE GUN POWDER AT BOTTOM OF LAKES

RAYMOND FENDRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The fact that the last stock of gun powder which France had on hand after the armistice is now stored at the bottom of fallow lakes and ponds for safekeeping was revealed during discussion by the chamber of deputies on the army budget today.

Many explosions occurred from spontaneous combustion, especially in the summer time, that powder stocks ought to be destroyed or a safer way of storing them found. Powder experts experimented, finding that deterioration in powder was no greater when stored to water than to air. Deterioration in either case is about 10 per cent annually.

Instead of being sunk in water-tight cases, several holes are bored in the cases. The authorities now use pools and lakes as powder depots throughout France.

"MURDER VICTIM" MERELY ENSNARED BY TURKEY HABIT

By calmly turning up yesterday, Joseph Palmer, 4253 Vincennes avenue, taxi driver, and the supposed victim of a murder plot, himself solved what promised to be another police mystery. He had been missing since Wednesday night. "I had some people out to Mount Greenwood cemetery," he explained yesterday. "I was coming back at night along 111th street when I punctured a tire. There wasn't any spare on the cab so I put it in a garage. Then I thought it would be a good chance to see my folks in Chicago Heights and spend Thanksgiving with them. I helped eat up twenty-seven pounds of turkey and then came back."

Fascisti Railway Men Fight Mussolini Economy

NAPLES, Dec. 2.—The Fascisti railway men have objected to working in cars, as ordered by the government with a view to economy, and have occupied some of the offices at the station, causing disturbance. Premier Mussolini has declared that all Fascisti be driven out of the station and the mutineers dismissed with severe punishment.

OPERA GOERS SEE A VIVID CARMEN IN BOURSKAYA

Her Color Wins Plaudits Despite Brief Practice.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Ina Bourskaya is mentioned in another part of THE TRIBUNE today. She is mentioned here again because since the other words were written she has made another notable accomplishment. The second was her Carmen in the opera of the same name at the Auditorium last night.

Let me forestall argument by saying in the beginning that it was not a perfect performance. Miss Bourskaya succeeded to the rôle after another Carmen had sung her bit and gone her way, and, according to the custom of opera companies, did not have the advantage of long continued preliminary rehearsals. But there were so many possibilities for the future, possibilities that would become facts with a small amount of routine practice, that there was reason for hopes to run high. And, in fact, her accomplishments were definite and fine ones.

Depicts Carmen's Philosophy.

For the first time in many years there was a "Carmen" performance with a Carmen who had the right quality, the proper color of voice for the part. For another reason of joy, Miss Bourskaya is the best looking and the most graceful Carmen that has been on that stage since memory runneth not to the contrary. For still another, she apparently has a theory that the logical reason for Carmen to go through her vivid life, meeting many amorous and romantic adventures on the way, is that people like her and are attracted to her at once, and she acted the part on that theory.

Whatever Miss Bourskaya lacks in weight of voice, she makes up for by means of accent, either accent of tone or accent of vivacious gesture and piquant expression.

Ready to "Purr or Scratch."

Her Carmen is a good deal of a kitten, ready to purr or scratch with equal facility, and as full of abounding vitality and graceful posture as any kitten of them all. She enjoyed life, every new adventure was a new source of a good time, and this was why fate, as disclosed in the card scene, scared her into shuddering panic. In this scene there was sudden tragedy sung by a rarely lovely voice. Up to that time she had been all irrepressible impudence and irresistible charm. Even her shawl spoke the language of impudence.

Some day, which ought not to be so far away, here will be a Carmen that people will talk about.

"The Jewels of the Madonna" was repeated in the afternoon, the single change of cast being Giulio Crimi as Gennaro. He not only sang it excellently, but impersonated it well, touching lightly on incidents that are easy to make awkward, and carrying it off with much of an air.

SPEAKS ON EUROPE.

Prof. George L. Scherger of the Armour institute addressed a luncheon given by the German club of Chicago at the Morrison hotel yesterday on "Recent Impressions of Europe."

THE LANDS OF I. O. U. S.

The principal nations of Europe which owe the United States are as follows:

Principal and interest to date—

1. France, $4,770,906,655.85. France has not yet paid us back a cent. She is waiting for German reparations, which have been slow in coming. In consequence, France's currency is much depreciated.

2. Great Britain, $4,346,862,560.29. Britain has paid some back, and announces that we need have no fear for the rest. British money, therefore, is almost at pre-war value.

3. Italy, $1,891,514,634.27. Italy is showing considerable industry, and her money, while low, is improving slowly.

4. Czecho-Slovakia, $103,824,260.03. The people of this country also have gone to work, with the result that there is growing confidence in Czecho-Slovak money.

5. Poland, $148,594,430. Poland is not picking up rapidly, and her currency is greatly depreciated.

6. Jugo-Slavia, $57,872,195.63. This kingdom is low now, but shows a steady, though slow, improvement in its money.

7. Roumania, $41,089,286.90.

8. Russia owes this country considerable money, but as yet the soviet government has made no move to recognize the debt. Some of the goods are still at Vladivostok, others were stolen by the Japs and White guards, according to far eastern reports, while some are back in American hands. In view of the chaotic condition of the country, it may be some time before we know where we stand.

Missing Bridegroom Held for Passing Bad Check

William Burgess, department manager for the U. S. Ames Manufacturing company, who left his bride-to-be, Miss Irene Zeck, 4515 South Richmond street, waiting at the church at the hour they were to have been married Friday night, was charged yesterday with having passed a worthless check for $27.50 on M. B. Edelman, owner of a clothing store at 534 Clark street, last May. He was arrested when the numbers of the automobile in which he drove to the church were found to coincide with one stolen last September from James Pickerall, 940 Montrose boulevard.

HAWAIIANS URGE OPEN DOOR FOR CHINESE LABOR

Want Workers to End Jap Dominance.

BY BERT L. KUHN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 2.—The people of Hawaii, or at least the more than 90 per cent of the territory's white population, which is sitting in in the all-absorbing game of sugar shareholding, are preparing for a showdown. Two years of feverish preparation, almost two years of hearings and rehearings before congressional committees, charges and counter-charges, have brought action of a sort at last, and Hawaii is making its great massed attack in an effort to push on to the nation's statute books house joint resolution No. 158, more familiarly known as the emergency labor relief bill.

Such action as Hawaii has managed to obtain on its demands at Washington recently—the appointment of a department of labor commission officially to investigate the situation here—has not met with any particular success. For four of the five members of the commission named by Secretary of Labor Davis, acting with the consent of President Harding, are high officers of national labor organizations on the mainland, and organized labor, through Samuel Gompers, has already shown that it regards the emergency labor relief bill as nothing but an attempt to introduce Chinese coolie labor first in Hawaii and then on the mainland.

After Chinese Labor.

Hawaii, however, has not lost hope. "If we can show these men," the sugar interests argue, "our case is complete and victory certain."

The fight to obtain Chinese labor for Hawaii's sugar plantations is not a matter of the last two years alone. It has been staged several times previously in congressional committees. Each time, the influence of organized labor has been so strong as to end discussion.

The present battle, however, is being staged on a new front. In the past, the argument has been entirely an economic one. High priced labor in Hawaii, it was pointed out, could not compete with low waged workers of Porto Rico and Cuba in sugar production. The introduction of white labor, it was said, was out of the question, because of climatic conditions and the strenuous degree of work in the cane fields.

Fear Jap Domination.

Now the matter has been complicated by the introduction of an entirely different angle. Hawaii, the sugar interests claim, is in dire danger of coming under Japanese control, economically now and politically later, unless prompt action is taken to undermine the dominant position which Japanese labor now occupies in the islands.

The fight for labor relief for Hawaii had its surface inception in April, 1921. In the closing days of the territorial legislature Charles J. McCarthy, then governor of the territory, submitted to the legislature a special message calling attention to the menace to the prosperity of the islands due to the grave labor shortage.

Acting upon this message, the legislature adopted a joint resolution in which it requested that the federal congress provide for the introduction into the territory of Hawaii of such a number of persons, including orientals, as may be required to meet the situation, limiting such immigration to such numbers as will not operate to increase the number of persons of any one alien nationality in the territory at any one time beyond 25 per cent (later reduced to 20 per cent) of the total population of the territory. A further provision was asked that such persons be admitted for limited periods of time, be obliged to confine their efforts to agricultural labor and domestic service, and be guaranteed their return to their respective countries upon the expiration of such limited periods of time.

FREES SEVEN TAKEN IN RAID.

Seven men were discharged yesterday by Judge John Richardson because they were taken in a prohibition raid conducted on Nov. 25 on a restaurant at 736 North Clark street without a search warrant.

Style 540

DVORAK'S "HUMORESQUE"

"As softly, with tones that are real and beautiful, the Vocalion begins, I draw out this wonderful expression control—the Graduola, and play the lovely melody myself—my very heart is in the music."

THE VOCALION

Supreme Musical Phonograph of Today

All this week we are making a special offer on Vocalion Model 540 at a greatly reduced price—now $125. Terms as low as $5 monthly.

The Vocalion is the Aeolian Company's phonograph. Built with the fine care, skill and experience which are back of all Aeolian instruments, it attains a perfection in tone reproduction to be found in no other phonograph. All of the pleasure received from listening to a talented artist, to a violinist, to quartettes, bands, orchestras, etc., is experienced when listening to the Vocalion. Its powers of reproduction are extraordinary—its tone rich, full, pure and distinctive.

The Wonderful Graduola

In its possession of this revolutionary feature, the Vocalion stands alone.

The Graduola makes the Vocalion a true musical instrument. It operates on the principle of the human throat. Its operation is as simple, instinctive, and easily mastered as the natural modulation of one's own voice.

Using the Graduola imparts life, variety, spontaneity to every record. Without changing its essential character, it adds the subtle changes in tone and color that distinguish different performances by the same artists.

Using the Graduola gives its operator the same sense of personal control—individual expression of ideas—as is felt by the orchestra leader and almost the same as is felt by the artists themselves.

Vocalions are handsome articles of furniture. Their lines are artistic, in good taste and elegant. They are beautifully finished in fine case-woods, and in both their conventional and Period models represent the most advanced standards in furniture designing.

The Vocalion possesses every mechanical feature necessary to a phonograph. The new Vocalion Tone Arm enables it to play all records so as to produce the best possible results. Its Automatic Stop is a model of simplicity and efficiency. Its motor and all other parts all reflect the exceptional skill, experience and equipment of the distinguished house of Aeolian.

Vocalions are priced from $45
Console Period Models from $175

With the Graduola from $125
Upright Period Models from $250

Allowances Made on Phonographs of Other Makes Taken in Exchange.

DRAINAGE BOARD PAY ROLL STILL AT RECORD STAGE

Now Running at Rate of $1,900,000 for 1920.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Since Nov. 1 the drainage board has discharged 344 employes, but they were mostly temporary laborers and mechanics, and the pay roll still remains the largest in the district's history.

Comparatively few persons on the large permanent pay roll have been given the blue ticket. Yet the number of jobs on the permanent pay roll Nov. 1 was 55 per cent higher than the average for the first six months of 1918, and 46 per cent higher than the average for 1918. The jobs Nov. 1 on the permanent roll totaled 893, while the average for the first half of 1918 was 575, and the average for 1918 was 611. The number Nov. 1 was about one-fifth more than the average of the highest year between 1913 and 1918.

Pay Rolls Published Often.

There is no alleged secrecy about this permanent pay roll. It is printed from time to time—supposed to be monthly—in the proceedings of the board. Each of the trustees, who receives the equivalent of $7,500 annual salary, has ample opportunity to read the published pay rolls.

The published permanent pay roll is now running at the rate of $1,900,000 for this year, as compared with a yearly maximum of $1,044,000 between 1913 and 1918. The number of jobs on this permanent pay roll Nov. 1 and its cost this year to that date are contrasted with the yearly average number of jobs on this same roll between 1913 and 1918, together with the yearly cost of the roll, in the following short tabulation:

Year.	Jobs.	Pay roll.
1913	672	$ 388,204
1914	735	968,855
1915	749	1,032,210
1916	733	1,033,853
1917	646	981,202
1918	611	1,044,151
1922*	893	1,642,728

*Ten months only.

It will be noted that the pay roll cost probably will be about 90 per cent higher this year than that of 1918. Part of that will be considered by the public as legitimate and justifiable. The price level has increased in that period and drainage employes, like others, are affected by the cost of living. Increased pay was necessary.

But more than $500,000 of the expected $900,000 increase has resulted from a boost in the number of jobs.

Some Trustees Dissatisfied.

Perhaps some of the trustees would attempt to show that the increase in jobs is necessary, but they have refused thus far to issue any formal statement on the subject. Other trustees have said privately that the district has several abuses which should be eliminated. And there the matter stands.

An agent of a responsible civic organization has been making some inquiries regarding the district's pay rolls. His conversation indicated that he was collecting information upon which to base a recommendation to his association that they ask or do not ask the privilege of making an investigation of the pay rolls. The agent seemed surprised and impressed with the size of the rolls. One of his comments was: "It doesn't seem possible, does it, that the district had useful work for nearly 1,500 employes?"

Charges Outside Benefits.

This number includes persons on both the permanent and temporary pay roll. Charles H. Sergel, a retiring trustee, who did not seek reelection, has openly charged that all of the persons on the pay roll did not work for the taxpayers of the district. He did not reveal, if he has the information, what the nonworkers did do, if anything.

The controlling combination on the board relinquishes its hold Tuesday with the inauguration of the three Democratic trustees elect.

Clemenceau, Gen. Pershing, and Maj. Gen. John A. Le Jeune were read.

BRITON EXPLAINS DE KAY HOLDINGS IN ASIA MINOR

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LAUSANNE, Dec. 2. — The Swiss government at Berne today declined to comply with the American legation's request for the apprehension of John W. De Kay for extradition on the ground that it did not consider that sufficient proof of an extraditable crime had been submitted, suggesting that additional documents and detailed charges be presented.

Belonged to Former Sultan.

Capt. Bennett, a former British secret service operative at Constantinople, who is affiliated with Mr. De Kay, says:

"Our syndicate, the 'Ottoman Imperial Estate,' has purchased and leased holdings in Asia Minor from princes, princesses and others which were all properties formerly belonging to Sultan Abdul Hamid. These properties are located in every portion of the old empire and also include the former sultan's three concessions in the Mesopotamian oil fields on which the Turkish Petroleum company claims options.

Denies Untermyer's Statements.

New York, Dec. 2.—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey today officially denied the statement made by Samuel Untermyer yesterday that it was engaged in a controversy with the heirs of the late Abdul Hamid, sultan of Turkey, over oil lands in Mesopotamia, valued at millions of dollars.

"The Standard Oil company," it was stated, "is not endeavoring to appropriate rights in Mesopotamia or elsewhere that may be legally owned by any other interests."

The company also denied Mr. Untermyer's statement that the American government had espoused its cause.

The state department at Washington yesterday denied that it has opened negotiations with the Swiss government for the extradition of Mr. De Kay.

FREED ON BOOZE CHARGE.

John G. Harris and Frank Cummings, 2736 West Harrison street, charged with violation of the Illinois prohibition law, were dismissed yesterday by Judge John Richardson on the ground of illegal arrest, but Harris was fined $100 and costs for carrying a concealed revolver.

Steinway Grand Pianos

A new shipment of these supreme pianos has just been received. They show the modern refinements which maintain the Steinway as the choice of the great pianists — "the instrument of the immortals." To follow its broadly blazoned history is to become acquainted in spirit with the great souls who presided over the keyboard. Admirers of the Steinway tone will find ever new delight in its rich sonorities and amazing depth and resonance.

Lyon & Healy Apartment Grand

Chicago homes tell eloquently the story of this fine instrument. Thousands daily find enjoyment in its lovely voice. It is a piano which veritably "sings under the fingers." Mellow in timbre, true in range, the tone is sympathetic and winning. The cases are in Sheraton and Chippendale designs, finished in mahogany and Adam Brown. Notable features of this piano are the exclusive Candelectra, Silento, and Junior Unfolding Pedal. Priced at $900 and up.

Washburn Player Pianos

To bring a piano of good musical qualities within the reach of limited purses has always been the aim of this house. How happily we have succeeded may be seen from the Washburn Players now on display. They are remarkable. They are good looking in design, handsomely finished and fully guaranteed. The tone is melodious. If price has been the bar to your enjoyment of a piano, come in and see these instruments. Our terms are most convenient and prices begin at $590.

Duo-Art Pianos

This is the crowning accomplishment in piano construction. It comprises a piano of superior qualities for manual playing, a durable, fresh-voiced player, and a reproducing piano. Either of the first two features commend this instrument. It is the last however which has so awakened the enthusiasm of music lovers. It reproduces, it reanimates the playing of Paderewski, Hofmann, Bauer, and a host of others. Demonstrations daily in the Duo-Art Salons, Fourth floor.

Brambach Grands

Artistic lines blend with perfect proportions in these instruments. The result is charming. Again, the tone is marked by richness, depth and a singing quality which makes even a simple melody a thing of delight. The Brambach is a beautiful example of rare musical merit. But 4 feet 8 inches in length it requires no more space than an upright. Every home may have one. Prices begin at $635.

Pianolas and Player Pianos

Only those who have heard the Pianola can fully realize its astounding performance. Even though you are not contemplating a purchase now, come in. To listen to the Pianola play is a musical treat—an education in the capabilities of the modern player.

DISTRICT JUDGE DECLARES ORAL BETS LEGAL HERE

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Judge Henry J. Sandusky, in the First District court at Cicero, yesterday decided that oral betting on horse racing is not a violation of the Illinois anti-gambling laws.

The decision, forced out by the efforts of the state's attorney's office to avoid convicting John D. McElhatton, an alleged bookmaker, arrested during the Hawthorne race meeting, was greeted by the Illinois Jockey club as a triumph for racing and assurance that racing will continue in Illinois.

Defense Asks Conviction.

The legal struggle before Judge Sandusky presented an odd tangle, the defense urging a conviction and the prosecution declaring openly that no law had been violated. The Jockey club was anxious that the lower court should convict McElhatton in order that the case might be hastened to the supreme court for final decision. The spectacle of the race track prosecuting an alleged bookmaker and the state's attorney defending him furthered the interest.

Attorney John Francis Tyrrell represented the Jockey club which caused the arrest of McElhatton, charged with "bookmaking, pool selling and operating a common gambling house," under sections 126 and 127 of the criminal code, the sections under which racing in Illinois was stopped more than a decade ago. The decision, when racing was stopped, was that a common gambling house was operated—and the evidence upon which the finding was based showed that, besides betting on the races on the tracks a book was operated at which bets were accepted on races in other cities. The racetrack people always have argued that the decision did not forbid wagering on horse races, but the running of a gambling house.

No Law Violated.

Prosecutor Frank J. Matusek, representing State's Attorney Crowe's office, openly defended McElhatton and declared that "no violation of Illinois' gambling laws had been committed." In his statement Judge Sandusky said "that betting is not prohibited by the laws of Illinois."

Attorney Farrell protested and declared a conviction but Judge Sandusky said that "under the system of racing complained of as conducted at Hawthorne race track, no laws had been violated," and added that "the supreme court must decide in favor of the defendant."

Turf People Jubilant.

Whether the decision will be accepted as final or whether the state's attorney will make another case, is uncertain, but the race track people are jubilant and consider the decision a big victory for racing.

Secretary Bourke and Assistant Secretary Tom Murray will leave Chicago Dec. 19 to visit New Orleans, Havana and Tia Juana to interest horse owners in the next Hawthorne meeting. Entrances have been received from Marshall Field that his stable will be in Chicago for the next meeting.

SIKI NOW BARRED FOR FAILURE TO LIE DOWN TO GEORGES—DIAGNE

(Copyright, 1922: By the New York Times.)

PARIS, Dec. 2.—During his speech in the chamber Thursday when Deputy Diagne defended Battling Siki, he made a guarded statement to the effect that the fight between his protégé and Carpentier was framed and that Siki when his hand was roused broke the frame-up. It was because of that, it was said by Deputy Diagne, that Siki had been thrown out of the ring by the boxing federation.

Deputy Diagne now in much more guarded words repeated the same statements to newspapers. Siki, says Deputy Diagne, was punished without being given a hearing and prevented from carrying bread as a soldier in France because "he didn't obey orders given by those who organize this kind of frame-up and rob the public of its money." He didn't lie down in the fourth round as arranged, but, instead, as a blow received, lost his head and beat Carpentier to a finish.

Deputy Diagne received interviewers and could prove this assertion if it should be necessary.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

FOOTBALL SEASON OF 1922.

THE football season just ended has been the greatest in gridiron history from the viewpoint of public interest and number of boys participating throughout the country.

Even those professors who deplore the time and thought expended, which might be, but probably would not be, exercised in classrooms, are accepting conditions more or less willingly without the usual grave wagging of heads.

Colleges are surveyed by prospective entrants quite as much for their athletic success as for their curriculum. This may be called unfortunate by some, but it is true. Colleges of which we once scarcely heard now are known nationally through the medium of athletic success. Successful football teams are good advertising.

We do not deny there may be danger of too much zeal in securing candidates for teams under such conditions. There are hazards in everything worth while. Our idea of faculty duty is to provide sane rules and regulations, possible of enforcement, and then to depend upon the good faith and honesty of rivals in collegiate relations.

There will be occasional scandals, occasional cases of professionalism, occasional breaches of good sportsmanship, but the balance will be on the right side of the ledger.

Football is a great sport!

Exit—Turkey.

O, take back the bird that thou off'rist;
O, take him away, far away!
I'm filled to the brim with that turkey—
He's been served to me day after day.

I'm filled to the brim with the giblets,
The white meat, the dark from the thigh.
The children they turn from him sadly,
Even as we, you, and I.

He first graced the platter a beauty,
As tempting a dish as could be;
Then in slices he came and in salads,
Then he entered à la fricassee!

So bring me some pork chops or some wieners,
Those I'll relish, I give you my word,
But I'm sure not again in my lifetime
Will I crave for a piece of that bird.

Greatest Play I Ever Saw.

Dear Harve: In the Iowa-Northwestern game toward the end of the second quarter Shuttleworth dropped back for what appeared a field goal, yet might have been a fake for a pass.

The ball came high from the center and oozed through Shut's fingers. With Purple forwards charging in to recover, Eddie Rich, Hawkeye quarter, dashed back to the 38 yard line, scooped the ball, spotted Kadesky loose near the goal line, and passed to him for a touchdown. Chuckle.

BAN STEPS ON LANDIS' JOINT MEETING PLANS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There will be no joint meeting of major league magnates at New York Dec. 14 as planned by Commissioner K. M. Landis. Prospects for such a session were knocked into a cocked hat yesterday when B. B. Johnson, American league president, issued a formal call for his circuit's annual gathering to be held in Chicago, Dec. 13.

The National leaguers are scheduled to get together in Gotham on Dec. 12 and Landis, acting on the theory that the American leaguers would gather in the same city on the day following, sent out notice of a joint conference on Dec. 14, but Johnson's move indicates no such gabfest will be held, unless Landis designates a later date.

Ban Has Peeve.

When asked whether he was intentionally dodging a joint conference, Johnson replied that so fas as he could see there was no necessity for the sixteen major owners getting together. He also said that he was displeased with several things National league owners had done in connection with the handling of "in bad" players and added that he might bring this little matter to the attention of the magnates in his league.

One of the things Johnson holds against the parent league is the "Rube" Benton case. Another is the transfer of a "tainted player," as Johnson expressed it, by a National league to an American league club. This occurred two years ago, but the player, whose name is withheld, has since been shipped out of the junior circuit.

Opposes Benton Transfer.

Benton's name came back into the public prints recently when it was announced the Yankees were about to purchase him from the St. Paul club of the American association. Johnson immediately informed the interested parties that Benton was not wanted in the American league. John Norton, president of the St. Paul club, then communicated with Johnson and asked for facts in the case. The latter forwarded his reply yesterday, reiterating his stand on the veteran pitcher.

Benton lost his standing with major league powers through alleged association with players now out of baseball. The New York Giants dropped him unconditionally. A few days later Benton signed with Kansas City. Upon learning this the Giants recalled Benton's release and sold him to St. Paul, where he pitched excellent ball. According to Norton, four big league clubs have bid for the southpaw within the last few months.

Landis Says He's "Boss."

Denied an appeal before the advisory council in the Player E. R. Elsh case, Al Tearney, Western League president, has forwarded letters to Johnson and President Heydler of the National league asking whether the major-minor agreement does not provide for such. Commissioner Landis said the by-laws do not provide for an appeal. In other words, Landis is sole arbiter of disputes.

Landis awarded Elsh to the White Sox on the basis of a "second pick" contract made with Sioux City. The Sioux City club failed to produce proof that any club had been given first choice.

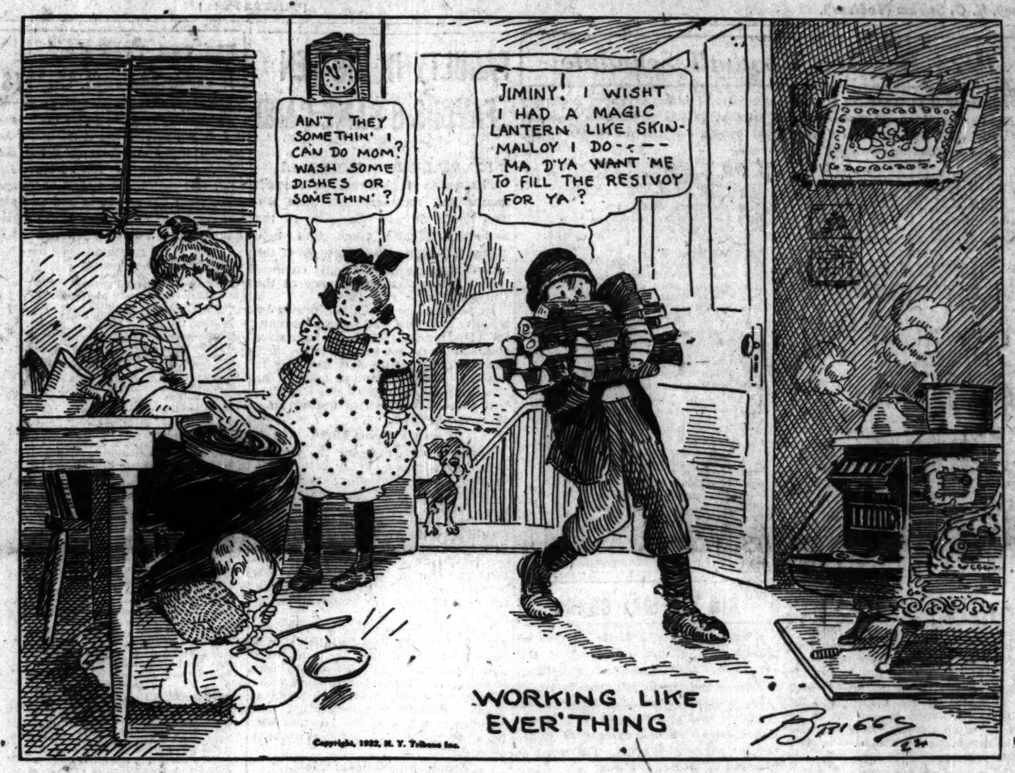
Schaefer-Conti Match May Come to Chicago

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Although no definite date has been set for the match between Jake Schaefer, former world's champion, and Roger Conti, who finished second and third, respectively, in the recent international 18-2 balk line billiard tournament in this city, and the place has not yet been named, there is every reason to believe that they will clash in Chicago early in January.

Alumni to Have Voice in Athletics at Louisiana U.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 2.—Control of athletics at Louisiana State university today passed into the hands of a new athletic council in which alumni will posses equal representation with faculty and students.

THE DAYS OF REAL SPORT



WOLVERINES AND ILLINOIS BREAK GRID RELATIONS

As a result of the schedule meeting of coaches of western conference universities held at the Auditorium hotel yesterday, Michigan and Illinois will not clash on the gridiron next fall. Neither did the Orange and Blue sever football relations with Wisconsin, as was generally expected.

There was no feeling between Coach Yost of Michigan and Zuppke of Illinois. The two great mentors were unable to agree on a date and as a result one of the greatest games of the year will be missed for one season at least. This break was unexpected and was one of the biggest surprises of the meeting, which was featured by all sorts of wild rumors, which had it that breaks would happen between some of the larger schools.

Patch Up Differences.

Coach Zuppke of Illinois and Richards of Wisconsin both asserted there was a misunderstanding over the publicity given certain protested players last fall. They announced also that all differences have been patched up to the satisfaction of all concerned and that the teams will meet at Urbana next fall.

Chicago has been picked to be Illinois' opponent for the opening of the stadium at Urbana next year. The game will be played on Nov. 3, which will be homecoming at Urbana. According to Coach Zuppke, all other games will be played on the old field, and the Maroon clash will be the first on the stadium field.

Michigan to Play Iowa.

Although Michigan and Illinois failed to reach an agreement, Coach Yost of the Maize and Blue, slated a game with Iowa. This contest will be played at Iowa City Nov. 3, and, according to the Wolverine mentor, will be the first meeting of the two schools since 1900, when the Hawkeye institution was represented by a strong aggregation.

Michigan's appearance west of the Mississippi river will undoubtedly be a great boon for football in that section, as thousands will flock from all sections of the Missouri valley to see the Wolverines in action against the great Hawkeye team. This is especially true because neither eleven was defeated in the conference this year.

For the first time in years Chicago will meet Indiana. The game will be played on Stagg field on Nov. 10. Although rumor had it the Maroons would again slate games with Michigan, the Midway director asserted he could not schedule the contest, because he had so many hard games already under contract. Yost was anxious for the struggle, which may be arranged within the next two years.

Buckeyes and Gophers Break.

Ohio State broke with Minnesota and has taken on Purdue. The game next fall will be played at Lafayette, with a return engagement in Columbus in 1924. Indiana and Notre Dame will not meet, but the Hoosiers will go through with their contract to meet West Virginia at Morgantown in 1923.

Bill Spaulding, who had a successful season at Minnesota, was able to book only four conference games, although he was willing to pit his team against any or all in the conference. The Gophers will meet Wisconsin, Northwestern, Iowa, and Michigan. Coach Spaulding believes he will have little trouble in filling his schedule with attractive opponents.

Northwestern secured an attractive schedule, which includes a game with Illinois at Evanston on Oct. 27. Coach Zuppke scheduled this game after it was apparent he could not agree with Yost of Michigan on a date.

Notre Dame Turns Down Grid Game with Gonzaga

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 2.—Coach Knute K. Rockne announced here tonight that the University of Notre Dame football team had declined the invitation of the Gonzaga university team to play at San Diego Christmas.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

How do you rank the leading football coaches of the middle west?

Where Asked.

Central Y. M. C. A.

The Answers.

John Phillips, 353 West Hill street, clerk—I figure Coach Stagg first, Knute Rockne of Notre Dame second, and Yost of Michigan third. I give Stagg first credit because of his work as a line developer and for the spirit he puts into his team. He is also a clever exponent of the forward pass. Stagg is a master coach, and a credit to Chicago sportsmanship.

J. M. Krause, 4831 North Sawyer avenue, Northwestern student—There have been a lot of changes in the popular estimation of coaches this year. Perhaps Coach Yost of Michigan deserves the most credit for his unexpected leap to the fore this season. For a man to be crabbed by the alumni as he was last year, and then turn out the championship team he did this season calls for considerable admiration.

Thomas O'Malley, 1970 Lawrence avenue, bookkeeper—I believe Knute Rockne is the best football coach in the middle west. He has developed some of the greatest forward passers, and was the first to use the running forward pass extensively in winning games. Yost is my second choice. He has always been able to inject pep and hurry-up methods into the team. I would place Stagg third.

Walter D. Baker, secretary, Central Y. M. C. A.—Of all the big coaches this season I think Yost has put the things over farther than any other. Coach Jones of Iowa has come right along as a close second. But I think Coach Yost is there. He's an elderly man, but he has put a lot of surprises over this year.

Bill Clark, 222 East Ontario street, student—I consider Stagg one of the best coaches in the middle west, if not the best. His team defeated the best team in the middle west. Stagg's skill was shown in the gallant fight his team put up against Princeton and Wisconsin.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question P. L. Shelton, 223 South Academy street, Galesburg, Ill., was awarded $5.

APOPLEXY FATAL TO BILL ARMOUR

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—William "Bill" Armour, one of the best known of the old guard ball players and managers, died here today, following a stroke of apoplexy Thursday. He was 54 years old. He broke into professional baseball as a manager in 1896 when he took the reigns of the old Dayton, O., club. He was later given the leadership of the Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers.

TRIBUNE EXPERT PICKS ALL-STAR BIG TEN ELEVEN

Stars of Five Teams Eckersall's Choice.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

In selecting all western conference football elevens to be composed of players who have performed consistently throughout the season, offensively and defensively, the task of choosing the tackles and placing the wealth of back field material in positions where they will be the most valuable, are the hardest for the conference season just closed.

It is the first time in many years, that the Big Ten has not produced tackles who stand out above all others. In former seasons there has generally been at least two whose right to the important positions was unquestioned because their playing in every game was far above that of other warriors occupying the same positions.

Must Have Driving Tackles.

A driving pair of tackles is an absolute necessity to the success of any football team. Their value is being emphasized more and more as the teams are leaning to the open and running styles of attack. They are now called upon to hurry the passers, help smash interference and at the same time protect the holes between guards and tackles. On offense they are at times made eligible to receive forward passes while their many duties on various offensive plays make them among the important cogs in any successful football machine.

As the running attack developed by Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin along with Minnesota will develop the absolute necessity of having guards who can get out of the lead, the interference is emphasized. Fortunately there are two men of such caliber in the conference who have done this to perfection all fall, while others will be made to do it in the future. The open or running attack has so many possibilities that the more men who can get out to interfere for the runner, chances of making ground are improved greatly.

The absolute necessity of having a center who can pass accurately and timely is known to every close follower of football. Complex offensive tactics used by most coaches call for short and long passes, some of which must be slow and others fast. In fact success of every play depends largely upon how fast and sure the ball is fed to the man who is called upon to make the ground gaining effort.

Quarterback in Name Only.

In these days of direct passing, the quarterback in the old sense is extinct. It is simply the name of a position. He is a back the same as the others who are called left, right, or fullbacks to designate the names of positions used ever since football was first played. The so-called quarterback of today rarely handles the ball to feed it to another back. The old rule of the ball having to pass through three sets of hands is obsolete. Smart coaches now realize the quicker the ball carrier gets to the line of scrimmage the better his chances of making ground and the more drive he can get into his effort. Therefore the direct pass is used and the so-called quarterback used in the interference.

Some coaches use their quarterbacks to carry the ball just as often as any of the other three backs and many are called into service to receive forward passes. As a roving offensive player, he is in a good position to direct his team's attack, which in most cases he does. Many coaches, however, want a man of football intelligence to act as their pilot, regardless of what backfield position he plays.

Back Field Must Be Versatile.

Back field players of today must be versatile. The day of the specialist is about gone. A back now must be able to plunge, drive off the tackles or run the ends, not to mention toss or receive forward passes. In other words he must be a player of many deceptive qualifications and such warriors should be chosen for the Big Ten honorary elevens.

Although the term "triple threat" is not countenanced by the close up follower of the game, it is the best way to explain the qualifications of a great offensive back. A man who can kick, run or pass is a most valuable asset to any football squad and efforts are made at the beginning of each season by coaches to develop just such warriors.

The best offense in the world is useless unless the team can perform just as brilliantly defensively. While some mentors contend a strong offense is the best defense, it is not true in the long run. Any team which can tackle and block never will be beaten badly and, for this reason, players selected for these all conference elevens must be strong defensively. They must be quick to scent an opponent's plays and move to the points of attack quickly and direct others of their team to the danger zone. They should always be in the vicinity of the ball and have that cunning to scoop up loose ovals, breaks which have turned the entire complexion of many evenly fought contests.

In other words a player selected for any honorary eleven should be analyzed from every angle of football. He should not be chosen because he is a line plunger only, an end runner or a great kicker. He must combine as nearly as possible all the qualifications which go to make a real football player in every sense of the word. His work in every game should be considered and he should be so placed as to be of most value to his eleven.

Must Fortify Every Angle.

Such an honorary eleven must be fortified in every angle of offensive tactics. Punting, field goal kicking throwing and receiving forward passes line plunging, slanting off the tackles or running the ends are only a few of the many details which such a team must be able to execute. There must be unison in attack and perfect coordination between line and backfield. Such an eleven should also be fortified with tricks so that fast runners could be slipped away at opportune times.

It has been many years since the conference was blessed with such excellent backfield material, men who have performed consistently and brilliantly throughout the season. Their play in most cases, both offensively and defensively, made them marked men in all contests. Despite this handicap they have come through, and for this reason are deserving of the honors.

While some may not agree with the fullback selection, because of the line smashing of John Thomas of Chicago, the honor goes to Gordon Locke of Iowa, whose team successfully defended the championship won last year for the first time since 1900. Locke is also made captain of the team because of the faultless manner he has piloted his eleven through a successful season, featured by the 6 to 0 victory over Yale.

Locke Hard Line Plunger.

Locke is just as hard a line plunger as Thomas. He is a better man in the interference and has made as many gains around the ends as the Hawkeye backs something which the Maroon has not done. On defense, the Iowan is a much more valuable man. Playing in the secondary defense, he generally anticipated opponents' attacks and often met them before they crossed the line of scrimmage. In the Yale game, he tore through the Blue line with as many as three Old Eli players hanging on his back or legs. He did the same in the Ohio, Minnesota, and Northwestern games and scored the lone touchdown against Illinois. He is a natural football player, one of the best ever developed at the Hawkeye institution.

Franklin Cappon of Michigan is nearly the equal of the Hawkeye in all around play and is placed on the second team. In fact, there is little to choose between them, except that Locke is faster and better in carrying the ball around the ends. The Wolverine is a strong defensive player and was one of the reasons why Wisconsin was unable to make much headway with its open attack. It was Cappon's last year and his sterling ability may be gathered from the fact that during his three years of service he has played tackle, end, half back, and full back. Because of his all-around qualifications Cappon is made the general utility player on the first eleven and placed at full back on the second team.

John Thomas is a specialist. He is a line plunger, one of the best in western conference football history, but he does not match up with Locke and Cappon in other football requirements. He has done nobly all fall, his great work in the Princeton game being among his greatest achievements. He has another year on the Midway, and it is hoped he will be used more to advance the oval on other than line drives.

Rollie Williams at Quarter.

Rollie Williams, who led Wisconsin through a season which was made successful by the scoreless tie with Chicago, is placed at quarter back, although he played in a half back's position all year. Last season, Rollie occupied the quarter back position and filled the bill nicely. As previously stated, quarter back is the name of the position, and placing Williams in this given place would not impair his great offensive ability. Any one who has seen the Badger in action this year is well aware of the fact he is entitled to any honor which can be given him. He has been a marked man, but has always delivered. Fearless on defense and dangerous on offense, he was a great player with enough football intelligence to lead the team in any sort of battle.

Irwin Uteritz of Michigan would be given this position had it not been for the wealth of backfield men who must be placed on the first eleven. Utz is a grand little general, the best catcher of punts in the conference and a player who fits into the Yost style of play in a pleasing manner. Barr of Wisconsin, Clark of Illinois and Parkin of Iowa were among the other quarter backs who performed well.

Harry Kipke of Michigan is the outstanding back of the year. There is nothing about football which this player does not know. He is tricky and fast, alert at all times to take advantage of opponents' momentary hesitation and a triple threat performer. He was a menace to all Michigan's opponents in that he could run, kick or pass. He was one of the best punters in the Big Ten and a reliable drop kicker.

Earl Martineau a Star.

Earl Martineau of Minnesota is awarded the other half back position. Like Williams and Kipke, he was handled roughly in every game but always came through with his share of offensive and defensive play. Like Kipke, he is a three way man, his forward passing and open field running always making him a respected player. If it had not been for this player the Gophers would not have had such a successful season.

Shuttleworth of Iowa was another good back who really did not receive credit. Pyott and Harry Thomas of Chicago, McCreery of Minnesota, Palmer of Northwestern, Happenny of Illinois and Klee of Ohio State were other backs who played consistently all year.

Bernie Kirk of Michigan was unquestionably the best end in the conference. The Wolverine, while not of the spectacular type, did things in so easy a manner that his performances were not appreciated. He gathered in forward passes with the ease and grace of a polished baseball player while his keen knowledge of football made it possible for him to move to dangerous points with speed and accuracy. There was nothing about end plays which Kirk did not know. He always turned plays in, drove catchers of punts to the inside, and had an uncanny knack to get out in the open to catch passes. At Ann Arbor he is rated one of the best in Wolverine history.

Tebell Fearless Player.

The other wing position is given to Gus Tebell of Wisconsin, a fearless player, who performed consistently all season. The Badger was everywhere in the Chicago game and played bang-up football against Michigan up to the time he was injured. Like Kirk he knew the play of the position thoroughly, and is entitled to the honors.

Paul Goebel, captain of Michigan's undefeated eleven, was another great end who was injured in the Ohio State game. The injury kept the Wolverine leader from showing his true form in the remaining games. Kadesky of Iowa, Wilson of Illinois, Hanny of Indiana, Eklund of Minnesota, and Strohmeier of Chicago were other reliable players in the position.

Martin Below of Wisconsin, who will lead the 1923 Badger eleven, and George Thompson of Iowa are awarded the tackle positions. While it cannot be said either played up to the form of tackles of recent years, they did about all that was expected of them. Each had plenty of range, covered a lot of ground and in most cases hurried the forward passers. At times they were blocked out of plays, but soon adjusted themselves so as to close the openings.

Fletcher Shows Class.

Muirhead of Michigan was another good tackle, nearly the equal of Below and Thompson. Fletcher of Chicago played consistently all season and he could be placed on the first team with credit. Penfield of Northwestern showed better this year, while Petcoff of Ohio State played a sterling game against Illinois. Swank of Purdue would undoubtedly have shown better if he had been with a stronger team.

James McMillan of Illinois and Paul Minnick of Iowa are given the guard positions. Their ability to get out to lead interference was a striking feature of their play, while they were just as effective on defense. They blocked faultlessly and it was not uncommon for both to get down the field to cover punts.

Pondelik of Chicago was another great guard who should be a tower of strength on the Midway next fall. Other good guards were Meade of Iowa, Pixley of Ohio State, Hohfeld of Wisconsin, and Clay of Indiana.

Ralph King of Chicago is given the center position, although closely pressed by Johnny Heldt of Iowa. With 200 pounds or more, the Maroon was a tower of strength on defense while his passing was accurate and sure. He and Pondelik made a lot of John Thomas' gains possible, although neither received much credit.

Heldt Great Pivot Man.

Heldt was also a great pivot man. He was fast and active for a heavy player, and, like King, his passing was excellent most of the year. In the Ohio State game he covered punts well, and on one occasion recovered a fumbled kick. Oliver Aas of Minnesota was the other outstanding center in the conference.

Such a team would have a powerful running attack, the style which will be used to advantage in coming seasons. McMillin and Minnick could be used nicely to lead the interference with any of the four backs carrying the oval. Kipke and Martineau could be used for triple threat purposes, while Locke could be called upon to run the ends, hit the line from either straight formation or from split backs or delayed plunges. Kipke could be used up throw or receive forward passes along with Kirk and Tebell, while Williams, could be used for any sort of attack. Defensively the team speaks for itself.

THEY LOOK PEACEABLE ENOUGH NOW.

A few weeks ago these football coaches of the western conference football teams were battling each other through their cohorts on the gridiron, but they looked peaceable enough when snapped at their annual meeting which was held at the Auditorium hotel Friday and yesterday. Left to right they are: Top row—Robert C. Zuppke (Illinois), Dr. John W. Wilce (Ohio State), Glenn Thistlethwaite (Northwestern). Bottom row—William Spaulding (Minnesota), A. A. Stagg (Chicago), Howard Jones (Iowa), Fielding H. Yost (Michigan), Jimmy Phelan (Purdue), E. O. Stiehm (Indiana).

FACULTY IN BIG TEN FAVORS 8 GAME CARD

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Permission to play eight football games and recommending that Big Ten teams do not take part in the national collegiate track and field games were the salient features of the annual meeting of the faculty committee of the western conference at the University club yesterday.

In passing the resolution, drawn by athletic directors, the faculty committee added a rider to make it imperative that squads do not start practice until two weeks before the first Saturday in October. This action, if adopted by the various faculties of the Big Ten, will shorten the footbal season from three to ten days.

Coaches Favor Move.

The resolution calls for the playing of football games on every Saturday in October and November prior to Thanksgiving day. This will mean eight football games each season if the resolution is not frowned upon by the faculties of the various Big Ten institutions. Coaches maintain easy games can be arranged for the opening contests and that enough team play can be perfected in the two weeks to put the men in shape for following struggles.

If the resolution meets with the approval of the various faculties it will come back to the Big Ten committee and a majority vote is needed to pass or reject it. Footbal coaches and those closely identified with the gridiron game welcomed the resolution and asserted it will give the mentors better opportunities to develop winning elevens.

Frown on National Meet.

Others pointed out that schedules can be drawn for at least three years in advance in such manner that every eleven will meet the others. The resolution will do away with a lot of jockeying for dates which resulted in Illinois and Michigan being unable to get together for a football game yesterday. This method is now in vogue for the basketball schedule and is working nicely, according to Dr. Cooke of Minnesota, chairman of the basketball association.

The committee acting on the recommendation of the graduate managing committee passed a resolution requesting conference teams to stay out of the national collegiate track and field meet. The graduate committee asserted the national games are a repetition of the Big Ten meet and take prestige away from an established set of games.

Outdoor Games at Michigan.

This action, however, did not meet with approval of A. A. Stagg of Chicago, Tom E. Jones of Wisconsin, and Major John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of Big Ten athletics, the men who have worked so hard to make it a success. Some were bitter in their criticism of trying to abolish a set of games which gave every indication of growing into the country's leading intercollegiate track and field classic. As it now stands it will be up to the Big Ten coaches to send teams into the meet or keep them out.

The annual outdoor track and field meet of the western conference was awarded to Michigan and will be held at Ann Arbor on June 1 and 2. The Wolverine field permits of a quarter mile track and a 220 yard straightaway. The quarter mile will be run around one turn and the half mile around three curves. Athletic Director Yost intends to make every effort to make this year's meet one of the most successful in history.

Prof. Ralph W. Aigler of Michigan was elected president of the faculty committee for the ensuing year and J. F. A. Pyre of Wisconsin re-elected to the office of secretary.

FORM WOMEN'S NATIONAL SPORT CONTROL BODY

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Dec. 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—The National Women's Track Athletics association was organized today at a meeting of representatives of schools and colleges for women from many parts of the country. Its purpose will be to control all interscholastic and intercollegiate sports for girls and women.

CAMELIA SABIE.
[P. & A. Photo.]

Dr. Harry E. Stewart of New Haven, Conn., coach of the American team which competed last August in the first women's Olympic meet at Paris, was elected president of the association, and Mrs. Winifred Merrill, head of Oakesmere school here, was chosen honorary president. Other officers elected were:

Vice president, Katherine Montgomery, Florida State college; secretary, Miss Suranne Becker, Oakremere school; treasurer, Joseph A. D'Angola, New Jersey State Normal school.

To Form Districts.

Under the association's direction, the country will be divided into seven or eight districts, it was announced, and officials appointed to handle women's athletic affairs in these territories.

The supervision to be exercised by the new association, it was pointed out, will in no way conflict with that of the Amateur Athletic union, which at its annual meeting in New York recently voted to take direct control of women's athletics. The women's organization, while retaining separate identity in controlling interscholastic and intercollegiate sports, will cooperate with the A. A. U. in all open competition, which the latter will direct.

The association accomplished six new American records for track and field events, besides recognizing as official the list of world's standards made at both the eastern tryouts for the American team last spring and at the international meet in Paris.

Miss Sabie Has Three Records.

Miss Camelia Sabie of Newark, N. J., a star in the Olympic games, holds three of the American records newly recognized. They are: 100 yard dash, 12 seconds; standing broad jump, 8 feet 3¾ inches; 60 yard high hurdles, 8 4-5 seconds. The other new American records are: Hurlball, 104 feet 2¼ inches, by Nell Carroll, Florida State college; discus throw, 100 feet, by Martha Murdock of Skidmore school, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.; baseball throw, 224 feet 2¼ inches, Miss Eleanor Churchill, Exeter, N. H.

SWITCH CHICAGO SOCCER LINEUP FOR DETROITERS

Chicago and Detroit soccer stars, who played a fast 3 to 3 tie Thanksgiving, will meet at 2:30 this afternoon at Cicero and Roosevelt road. The invaders will present the same lineup that worked so smoothly in the turkey day contest, but the locals have decided on several switches that are expected to strengthen the team.

Vidano, crack Olympia forward, will replace Joe Falconer; "Babe" Kelly of the Brickies relieves Jock Thompson, and George Cant trades positions with Artie Bromley, the former going to left half and Bromley to center half.

LAFAYETTE GETS 13 TO 7 SETBACK BY GEORGETOWN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Lafayette's powerful football eleven was defeated here today by Georgetown university, 17 to 7, in a grueling post-season game. It was the second setback that the Easton, Pa., collegians had sustained in three years and was another of the long list of upsets that have marked the 1922 season.

MIKE GAZELA.

Two field goals, the first by Malley from the 25 yard line and the second by Flavin from the 35 yard line, furnished the margin of the Hilltoppers' victory.

Werts Was Feature.

The outstanding feature of the game was a 75 yard run for a touchdown by Werts. Intercepting a forward pass near his own goal, the Georgetown center sidestepped, dodged and finally armed his way through half the Lafayette team.

The Easton eleven showed a more versatile attack than did Georgetown, but only once did its offensive develop the power to carry the ball across the goal line. Between the 20 yard marks it was able to gain steadily, with its star back, Gazella, carrying the brunt of the battle.

Forward Pass Missing.

There was little forward passing until the last few minutes of play, when Lafayette made a desperate bid for a touchdown and victory. The lineup:

SUBURBAN PREP HEROES AWARDED HONOR BERTHS

Editor's Note.—The appended story on the all-suburban high school team is the result of a careful investigation of the playing of the lads. Football experts and officials who have watched the various games were consulted, and the consensus is presented herewith.

Following the close of one of the most successful seasons in the history of the Chicago Suburban High School conference, which was featured by the tie between Oak Park and Evanston for the championship, stars of the teams in the league have been selected, according to custom, for places on the mythical honorary all-star elevens.

Evanston, Oak Park, and Proviso carried off the bulk of the honors of the season, the Evanstonians and Oak Parkers finishing the year undefeated, having played a 7 to 7 tie in their meeting. Proviso's defeat by Oak Park, 13 to 12, eliminated the Maywood lads from the league championship race, but Coach Ken Coutchie's boys made an impressive showing, defeating Fitchburg, Mass., High in their intersectional contest at Maywood by a lopsided score.

Many Outstanding Stars.

Stars there were a-plenty, and some of the best prep football in the history of the league was played. Almost every team in the league had at least two outstanding players, but it was teamwork and strong support of the star performers by the rest of the team that brought Evanston and Oak Park to the front.

The players on the first and second teams were selected by THE TRIBUNE after careful investigation and after the opinion of coaches of the schools and officials who worked in the league games had been consulted.

Kassel Best End.

Starting at the ends, Charles [Chuck] Kassel of Proviso stands out as the superior of any end in the league. Kassel was a great player last year and in the season just closed showed to even greater advantage. He is a strong defensive player and a great receiver of passes. Sandwick of Deerfield makes a fine running mate for Kassel. All during the year Sandwick showed class. He was also an all-star selection last year. Huston Gray, Evanston, and "Doc" Gordon, Oak Park, are the second team ends, only a order behind the first team players both defensively and offensively.

William "Buss" Ullman, Oak Park, and Isellman, Deerfield, were the best of the tackles and awarded first team honors. Ullman has played four years on the Oak Park team and has shown his ability throughout this long term. Ullman's play this year, however, was the most brilliant of his career and he ranks as one of the best players in the state. Dunn, La Grange's captain, and Capt. Fritz of Proviso, who also is awarded the captaincy of the second team in reward for the brilliant manner in which he generalled his team during the season, are the second team selections.

Lane and Meyer, Guards.

Lane, Evanston, and H. Meyer, Proviso, are awarded the first team guard positions. Meyer's defensive work at Proviso was one of the features of the season, while Lane was equally as strong in the position for the north shore preps. Lewis, Oak Park, although a new man, played a fine game throughout the season, while Grimes, Evanston, also showed fine work, and this pair is picked for second team honors.

When it comes to centers Edgar "Farmer" Madsen of Oak Park has a big edge. Madsen was picked by several coaches and officials as the best of the prep pivot men in the state if not the country, being a big, rangy fellow, fast and a quick thinker. Pabst, Proviso, was only a shade behind Madsen in the opinion of several league officials. He is picked for second team snapper back.

Solheim Best Quarter Back.

"Sig" Solheim, who captained the Evanston team, is placed at quarter back on the first team. Solheim shifted between quarter and half back during the season and showed excellent judgment in selection of plays and also was a great open field runner and line plunger. While on a mediocre team, Robertson of Riverside showed his prowess in every game of the year, and for his brilliant all around work is awarded second honors.

At halfbacks Earl "Rex" Drechsler, Oak Park, and Garth Follett, Proviso, stand out above the rest of the league backs. Drechsler was a much feared performer, being a versatile ball carrier, a punter, drop kicker and a forward pass artist of more than average ability. Wilson, who played both quarter and halfback positions at New Trier, and Williams, the La Grange colored star who worked both at fullback and halfback bertha, are placed on the second team.

Watt at Fullback.

Ted Watt, who was switched from a lineman to the back field by Coach J. L. Rothacher at Deerfield at the start of the season, showed beyond doubt that he is entitled to consideration with all the prep fullbacks by his work throughout the schedule. Watt is a husky lad whose ability to smash the line and drive off tackle gained many yards for the Highland Park team. Ted also was used in many end runs, being agile and fast. Newton, Oak Park, is the second team choice, being rated by many officials as only a shade behind Watt in ability.

In view of their all around brilliant play honorable mention must be given Ward, Thornton, tackle; Johnson, Evanston, end; Tompkins, Bloom, and Kline, New Trier, centers; Davis, Evanston, halfback; and Duffield, Oak Park, quarterback.

Stamford, Conn., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Walter Marks, a six footer of Lindblom high school, Chicago, playing his last year of football for that school, was the hero of a 10 to 7 victory over Stamford High here today.

It was Marks, whose end running eventually enabled him to cross the Stamford line with Lindblom's touchdown in the second quarter, and it was Marks again who twice brought the ball to within scoring distance in the last quarter, with both teams battling in a deadlocked score. The first time Stamford held for downs on its 5 yard line, Marks makig a desperate effort to pick up 10 yards that had been lost by Roberts and Conley, and just failing.

Pass Leads Up to Goal.

When Kuczo punted out of bounds to the Stamford 33 yard line, Carlson threw a 15 yard forward pass to Trimble and then Marks went into action again. He was only human, however, and failed to make the distance. Lester Heidorn, a 16 year old Lindblom junior, then was called on for a place kick, with Marks holding the ball. Heidorn, cool as an iceberg, sent the ball high and true through the Stamford goal and over the cross bar and one of the greatest school boy games ever seen here was won for Lindblom.

Stamford tried desperately to score on forward passes in the closing minutes, and Ungemack failed on a field goal from the 50 yard line.

Besides Marks and Heidorn, Trimble and Carlson shone for the visitors. The latter pair's forward pass was a vital leadup factor to that winning place kick in the closing minutes.

Stamford Scores First.

Stamford scored early in the first quarter and a fumble by Carlson led to the score. Kuczo, Stamford's great little quarter back, who was one of the bright lights of the game, recovered the fumbled ball, and a moment later threw a forward pass to Givanucci for 15 yard gain, this making up a 15 yard penalty. On the next play Giovanucci broke through left tackle for a 30 yard run and a touchdown. Ungemack dropkicked the goal and Stamford was leading, 7 to 0. Lindblom tied it in the second quarter on Mark's touchdown.

Stamford, a much lighter team, was faster and followed the ball better. Stamfords' open game was superior. Connolly, Scalzi, and Kuczo were the outstanding players for Stamford.

Today's defeat was the third for Stamford this year, but the team has as good a claim as any to the state high school title, so Lindblom may justly claim to have beaten a representative championship Connecticut high school football team.

MULLER'S DASH GIVES WESTERN ALL-STARS WIN

Columbus, O., Dec. 2.—"Brick" Muller, the University of California All-American end, blocked a kick, scooped up the ball and ran 65 yards for a touchdown, scoring a 6 to 0 victory for the West over the East in an all-star football game played here today for the benefit of local charities.

SAPULPA OUTSMASHES HYDE PARK BY 7 TO 0

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Southwestern scholastic football triumphed over the middle west here this afternoon when the Sapulpa High eleven defeated Hyde Park, Chicago city champions, 7 to 0, in as pretty a game as ever was witnessed on an Oklahoma gridiron.

It was a battle in which straight football predominated, and Sapulpa, though outweighed nearly ten pounds to the man, conquered the crack Hyde Park aggregation at its favorite style of play. The lone touchdown of the contest came late in the first period when Capt. Lawrence McCready, giant Sapulpa tackle, smashed through the center of Chicago's line and crossed the goal after line bucks and end runs had carried the ball to Chicago's one yard line.

Hyde Park Threatens.

Sapulpa held Coach "Butch" Scanlon's team at a safe distance for the first three periods, but in the final quarter Chicago menaced the Oklahoma goal. Resorting to an aerial attack in the late moments, Chicago moved the ball down the field to Sapulpa's 10 yard line. But there the Sapulpa defense was impregnable and Chicago lost the ball, McCready punting out of danger.

When the game ended Chicago had the ball on its own 44 yard line. During the greater part of the game it was a seesaw battle in midfield, with neither team having much advantage.

Spectators Get Thrills.

Both elevens had been primed for the fray and were on edge, and crashing line smashing, always stopped by beautiful low tackling kept the spectators thrilled. The day was crisp but not cold ideal for the more than 6000 spectators thronging Lee stadium.

The rival captains McCready and Duval were the outstanding stars but the teamwork of the contesting machines furnished the really spectacular moments. Many of the Chicago formations new to this section were mystifying, and the smooth execution of intricate plays brought cheers from the crowd. The lineup:

SAPULPA [7].		HYDE PARK [0].

RECORD ENTRY IN SINAI SWIM

Eighty-seven men and fifty-four women swimmers are entered in the annual ten mile swim of Sinai Social Center, doing a half mile twice a week. They are now in their fifth week, and the entry list, according to Coach Eckert, is the largest yet. Richard Howell, former Hyde Park star, is favored to win the men's event and Ethel Lackie is picked to take the women's competition. Russell Ward and June Epperson are close seconds. The swimmer making the best time in the last half mile will be awarded a gold medal.

ILLINI AND HUSKERS ARRANGE 'MAIL ORDER' GAME AS EXPERIMENT

COACHES ROBERT ZUPPKE of Illinois and Fred Dawson of Nebraska yesterday scheduled a game of football for next Oct. 6 which will be among the most unique in history. The two mentors entered into a gentlemen's agreement whereby they will not scout each other's team.

They will also send to each other diagrams of the plays to be used, together with other information regarding the general play of their men. Neither will start practice before the other and everything will be done to acquaint each other with the offensive and defensive strength of their teams, individually and collectively.

It will not be a test of the caliber of football as played in the two sections, but the game will merely serve as a means of conditioning the players for the regularly scheduled games.

Delegates to the forty clubs in the Chicago Tennis association held their annual business meeting and election at the Hamilton club last night, and reelected Harry S. Knox of the South Side Tennis club as president. The entire slate of officers presented by the nominating committee was elected without dissent, and inducted into office. Prizes and trophies were presented for the events held under control of the city association, and the ranking list for 1922 was made public. Following the business session and annual banquet a lively entertainment was given.

Besides Mr. Knox, the new officers of the city association chosen were Maurice S. Miller of Skokie Country club, vice president; Gilbert F. Stone, Lawchester T. C., secretary, and William S. Braudt, Hamilton Park club, treasurer. The directors, also elected by acclamation, were:

L. D. Leavitt, south park; F. M. Preucil, River Forest; E. C. Delaporte, athletic supervisor, Chicago board of education; J. D. Reynolds, south park commission; A. F. Bennett, South Side T. C.

Walter T. Hayes, Alex M. Squair, and Miss Marion Leighton hold the major positions in the annual ranking list. Hayes headed the men's singles, with Squair rated No. 2, and together they occupy the first notch in the men's doubles ranking. Miss Leighton was No. 1 in women's singles and shared the doubles honors with Mrs. Michel.

HANDBALLERS TO START LEAGUE PLAY TOMORROW

Tomorrow night, on the courts of the Chicago Athletic association, the newly organized Chicago Handball league will open its schedule of games with eight players comprising the league. Avery Brundage of the C. A. A. tops the list. E. F. Lindberg and Harry Burton also represent the Cherry Circle. The Illinois Athletic club will have John Gray, and Charles Clark has been entered by the Wallace system. Three of the strongest contenders will carry the colors of the Kimrock A. C.—Louis J. Nelson, Paul S. Geidel, and Ralph Thorsen.

Play will continue twice a week throughout December and January.

Nebraska Makes No Claim to Missouri Valley Title

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 2.—In view of the fact that Nebraska university emerged from the Missouri valley conference football season in a tie with Drake in point of percentage, the university authorities have issued a statement declaring that claims of the conference title for Nebraska, heretofore expressed in newspapers, have been the opinion of sport writers and critics and are not the claim of the university.

CITY CHAMPS TACKLE DAYTON'S TRIANGLES

Chicago's post-graduate football champion Cardinals, led by Paddy Driscoll, will tackle another formidable opponent at Comiskey Park at 2 o'clock today when they swing into action against the Dayton Triangles, who recently fought the Canton Bulldogs to a tie.

The Cardinals came through their victory over the Bears last Thursday in splendid physical trim and are confident of adding another triumph to their record today, despite the brilliant record of the enemy. Bob Koehler has been plunging in fierce fashion this fall and is expected to tear up the Triangle line, while the return of Milt Sachs to left end has added greatly to the South Siders' defensive strength. Johnny Mohardt's injured shoulder has rounded back into trim.

Prominent among the stars on the Dayton machine are Ken Huffine, former full back at Purdue, who later played with the Staleys, and Sies, an All-American guard who won national fame while at Pittsburgh; Ullery, a Penn State speed marvel, and Bacon of Wabash, star halves for the visitors. Hathaway, well known to conference rooters as an ex-Indiana headliner, will play one tackle.

Chicago's Bears, smarting under defeat in the city championship, will tackle the undefeated Toledo Maroons at Cub park today. The Maroons have "Red" Roberts and two other of the Centre college stars, and the two Steins, famous with Pitt.

The Maroons must win to have a chance to beat Canton out for the National football league championship.

The Bears are preparing for another attempt to defeat the Cardinals. The game will be played next Sunday at Cub park if work of rebuilding it is delayed, and at the Sox park if rebuilding work at the Cup park is progressing far enough to spoil the field.

The Bears are seeking revenge for the Thanksgiving day defeat, feeling they had an off day. Some of the players have offered to play for nothing for another chance at the south siders.

SPEED SKATING TO BE PART OF OLYMPIC GAMES

NATIONAL DATES STAND

ST. JOHN, N. B., Dec. 2.—The Western Skating association of Chicago has notified the Maritime Amateur Skating association that the dates for the United States national skating championships cannot be advanced from Jan. 26 and 27. It is believed certain that the international meet cannot be held here any earlier that the second week in February, as the Canadian national meet at Montreal comes between the Chicago event and the dates for St. John.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

This season will be of especial interest to ice skaters all over the world particularly in the United States and Canada, for at the meeting of the U. S. Olympic committee in Washington last month it was agreed to admit speed ice skating as a major sport in the next Olympic Games which will be held in Paris, France, in 1924.

JULIAN T. FITZGERALD.

With these games recognized as the world's championships skaters all over United States and Canada will strive this winter to make their best showing in the various tournaments this season, which will serve as trials for the selection of the teams which will represent the two countries. Only the best of the skaters of the United States and the Dominion of Canada will be selected.

Make Skating a Major Sport.

When the Amateur Athletic union and Amateur Athletic federation made peace at the Washington meeting, it was planned to admit several sports which hitherto have been rated as minors, to the major list. Among these sports listed was speed ice skating. Figure skating always has been on the Olympic program, but the addition of speed skating is new to the games.

This action of the Olympic committee was due largely to the efforts of Julian T. Fitzgerald, president of the International Skating union, who has been actively connected with the sport for more than a score of years. Although final action of the rating of the sport has not yet been taken by the committee, Fitzgerald declared that only formality is holding skating from the list and that the sport will officially be adopted at the meeting of the committee next month.

Title Meet for Chicago.

The national outdoor speed ice skating championship tournament which will be held in Chicago for the first time in the history of the sport on Jan 26, 27 and 28, the international championships which will be run at St. John, N. B., Canada, the second week in February will go a long way in determining the skaters of the two North American countries who will compete at Paris. The annual Silver Skates and Diamond Medal Derbies of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE which will be staged in Chicago on Jan. 21, also will serve as tryouts, as will the other various tournaments and carnivals which are planned for the winter in various sections of the country.

Locals Hold Titles.

At present, Chicago skaters hold the majority of the championships, and thus Chicago bids fair to have the majority of the skaters on the United States team. With Roy McWhorter of the Alverno A. A., national outdoor champion last year; William Steinmetz of the Norwegian-American A. A., who won the international outdoor championship and the diamond medal which denotes him as the ace of aces, and Edward Reed of the Logan Square A. C., national and international outdoor junior champion, Chicago will be well represented.

Joe Moore of New York, international indoor champion, and Charlie Jeytraw of Lake Placid, N. Y., national champion in 1920, also will strive for places in the Yankee team.

Canada Represented.

Canada's chief representatives will be Miss Gladys Robinson of Toronto, undefeated for the last three years and who holds both national and international indoor and outdoor championships, and Charlie Gorman, St. John, N. B., who has been a consistent winner for the last two seasons. Other Canadian skaters will be picked at the meets this winter.

WM. FINLEY TO SPEAK AT WALTON BANQUET

The Chicago Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America will hold its monthly banquet at the Chicago A. A. at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday night. William L. Finley, author, naturalist and lecturer, will deliver his lecture: "Tide Line to Mountain Top" and exhibit his moving pictures, which are said to be the greatest pictures of wild places and wild life ever exhibited in America. Mr. Finley's pictures extend from the gulf coast to the roof of the Rockies, and have never been exhibited except in Seattle and Portland.

Mr. Finley ordinarily receives $500 for his entertainment, but offered his services free to the Walton disciples. He is the organizer of the league's chapter in Portland, Ore.

League Moving Rapidly.

"This national organization is moving forward rapidly," said Will H. Dilg, president of the league. "During the week we have organized chapters in Washington, D. C.; Catalina Island, Cal., with Zane Grey as president; Los Angeles, with the internationally famed sea angler, James Jump, as president; Kansas City, Mo.; Asbury Park, N. J.; Omaha, Neb.; Dowagiac, Mich.; Portland, Ore.; Westville, Okla.; Chillicothe, O.; Alexandria, La.; La Salle, Ottawa and Sullivan, Ill.

"Recently the Illinois division, comprising all of the Illinois chapters of the league, held a convention in Chicago to devise ways and means to prepare a new fish and game bill for Illinois. The Illinois chapters appropriated $500 so that two nationally famed experts might be engaged to prepare the bill.

Game Bill Before Legislature.

"The bill we will submit and pass before the next Illinois legislature will be the model fish and game bill of the United States. We will also ask for and secure four fish hatcheries and two wild game farms, thus making Illinois' conservation department the equal of any state in the Union."

CRIQUI STOPS MATTHEWS; WILL FIGHT IN U. S.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 2.—Eugene Criqui, continental featherweight champion, embraced all Europe in his title tonight, beating Billy Matthews, lion hearted young English challenger, with a technical knockout in the seventeenth round of a scheduled twenty rounder. Matthews was knocked down time after time and was warmly cheered on leaving the ring because of his pluckiness.

"I am going to America to fight Dundee. He is the only one between myself and the world's championship," Criqui told THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE after the bout.

Matthews fought like a wildcat. In the final round he was knocked down five times, once for a count of seven, and the referee finally raised Criqui's gory glove in token of victory. Matthews refused to quit. Swinging both fists, he pushed away the referee and charged Criqui. Several huskies had to drag him from the ring.

Cardinals Offer $25,000, Five Players for Boley

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 2.—The St. Louis Cardinals have offered $25,000 and five players for Joe Boley, shortstop of the Baltimore International league club, but Jack Dunn, manager of the Orioles, has refused to consent to the deal for the present, it was learned today. The players offered in the deal have not been named, but it was declared they were valued at $5,000 each, making a total of $50,000 offered for the shortstop.

The Cardinals are seeking a short stop to succeed John Lavan, who was incapacitated by illness last season.

Woods and Waters

by BOB BECKER

THE ARTIFICIALLY MADE LAKE DECATUR WILL MEAN MUCH TO SPORTSMEN.

EVERY time we hear about a group of public spirited citizens getting together and establishing a fish preserve or a game refuge we feel like singing out the glad news, because we sure do need "them" things in this state. And it always means better fishing and better hunting in the long run whenever these places are established.

Decatur, Ill., is the latest community to get its name on the roll, as the real sportsmen of that city have taken it upon their shoulders to maintain the newly created Lake Decatur as a fish preserve and a bird refuge. Definite action by the state has been taken to set aside the lake as a preserve and resting place for birds and officials of the game and fish commission have been coöperating in every way possible.

The origin of Decatur lake is rather interesting. The town of that name has always depended upon the Sangamon river for its water supply and of late years it has been inadequate. So it became necessary to impound a sufficient amount of water for the growing city's uses and a dam was planned that would back up enough water to cover 4,600 acres. The whole project has cost more than $2,000,000 and when the lake is formed at the 616 foot level, the height of the dam above sea level, the city will have plenty of water. Enter now the real sportsmen, the real Izaak Waltons and other outdoorsmen. They wanted to establish Lake Decatur as a sanctuary for migratory waterfowl. The game wardens were sympathetic and so were the state authorities.

City officials fell in line with the idea and finally formal action by the state was taken by which the lake was made a refuge for waterfowl. According to C. A. Wait of Decatur, thousands of ducks have alighted on the lake this fall, although it is not near as large as it will be by spring. As long as the birds have a resting place like that they will not be in such a hurry to hike for the south and that means shooting for the duck hunters in that vicinity, if there are any feeding grounds near by. Along the Illinois river the large number of resting grounds and feeding places maintained by clubs results in keeping the birds for weeks and all that time the gunners have some sport.

That Lake Decatur will be a breeding place for fish and under the jurisdiction of the state is welcome news to anglers. The state has already put car after car of bass, sunfish, crappies and other species in the lake which can be used as a sort of "supply" station or hatchery from which fish can be taken and planted in nearby streams and lakes. Pretty nice for the anglers near Decatur, say we. How everybody is working together on this proposition is shown by the fact that one land owner near the big lake has offered the fish culturists the use of a small lake on his land for a special little hatchery.

MEYERS TO SHOW STOPPER HOLD IN KILONIS MATCH

JOHNNY MEYERS.

Johnny Meyers, world's middleweight wrestling champion, will display his famous "stopper" hold for the first time in Chicago Tuesday night when he meets John Kilonis of Norfolk, Va., a persistent challenger, in a finish match, with no time limit or holds barred, to be held at Ashland Boulevard auditorium, under auspices of De Molay lodge Knights of Pythias.

Matchmaker Doc Krone has arranged an attractive program of preliminaries, which will be topped off with a semi-windup between Heinie Engel of Dubuque and Waino Ketonen of Boston. The latter, who has appeared here only once before, hopes to convince Matchmaker Krone that he is a worthy foe for a championship match with Meyers. Engel and the Boston Finn are scheduled to go six rounds for a decision.

Ben Reuben, West Side Hebrew, a "trial horse" among the middleweights, will come to grips with Tommy Cannon, a protegé of Meyers, in the second preliminary of six rounds, while Al Chappell, a member of the Knights of Pythias and a surface lines champion, will collide with George Bretz, an Englewood product, in the six round opener.

The quarrel over a referee finally has been settled. Kilonis agreed to accept Emil Thiry, the official referee of De Molay lodge. He will judge the windup and the contest between Ketonen and Engle, while Harry Berkman of the Jewish People's Institute has been selected to decide the first two matches.

A capacity crowd is expected to witness the matches. Popular prices will prevail, the seats selling for $1, $2 and $3.

Stecher to Take On Hussane Here Friday

Joe Stecher will make his second appearance of the wrestling season in Chicago Friday, when he meets Yussif Hussane at the Star and Garter.

The Power of 5000 Years of Ideas

This is the announcement of a great invention, an invention which helps to produce the most precious and important things in the world—Ideas. The name of that invention is "Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia". Note that name carefully, for it stands for a new force in American life.

The foundation on which this invention is built is as old as the human race. Yet in plan and spirit it is a pioneer creation—the first of its kind. Let us see what that means:

One hundred children are born. Each of them receives the best bringing up its parents can give. Each of them gets the same education. Each of them is trained for the same business or profession ..... What is the result?—Only one of that hundred perhaps ever achieves enough success to stand out from the crowd.

What is the answer? History tells you and your own experience tells you. Whether the chosen task be writing poetry, organizing a business, or running a government, the man or woman who succeeds is the one who has learned to think straight—to take the Facts of everyday life and put them together to form Ideas. Every one of those hundred children learned the same facts, but to ninety-nine of them those facts remained "just facts". The hundredth used those facts to manufacture Ideas. He became an Idea-Man.

They say geniuses are born and not made. That is true. But the most important thing modern child-study has taught us is that every normal child is born with the elements of genius. Those sudden flashes of insight we marvel at in young children are the sparks of unspoiled human intelligence. In the vast majority of cases, however, the tiny flame that flashes up so brightly dies out before the child is twelve years old.

Why does it die? Isn't it because the child's eager curiosity is buried under a mass of dead facts, which the child's brain has not learned to handle? These facts pour in from every side. They are mostly disconnected, meaningless, confusing. They form a maze through which the young intelligence vainly tries to find its way. Soon it grows hopeless, weary, and gives up. The guiding spark is gone.

But suppose those facts come first to the child in their proper order and arrangement! Suppose they come in friendly groups—as Ideas! And suppose the child "catches on" from the very beginning that every one of these Ideas plays a part in a single great fascinating story—the story of life! Wouldn't that keep the spark alive? And wouldn't that child, accustomed to see Ideas in everything, soon learn to produce Ideas on its own account?

That is the task Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia set itself—to present the whole field of human knowledge in Idea-Form. Five years ago the enterprise was born which has just now been completed. The foundation of this enterprise was the conviction that there was not a single department or detail of essential human knowledge that could not be made clear and of thrilling interest to everybody, if only it were presented from the right point of view—the Idea point of view.

Every great Idea since the beginning of time was produced to satisfy some broad human ideal or to serve some practical human purpose. And once we grasp that ideal or that purpose, the Idea itself and the facts which make it up are easy to understand. Idea-teaching is not new. The very greatest teaching has always been Idea-teaching, and the very greatest books have always been Idea-books. But Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia is the first to apply the Idea method systematically to the whole field of human knowledge.

Compton's was put in encyclopedia form because that is the only practical way to give each subject the emphasis it deserves. It was made complete, because an incomplete bit of knowledge is often more dangerous than a fallacy. But every word of the text and every one of its thousands of pictures has been made to serve the one great purpose of stimulating straight thinking. The future belongs to the men and women who know how to think. Compton's is designed to train the thinkers of tomorrow. Into their hands it places the accumulated power of 5,000 years of Ideas.

This announcement is part of a nation-wide plan to place the Compton Idea before the American public with faithful accuracy. Because this task calls for special knowledge and a high degree of educational integrity, the Publishers will retain direct control of all publicity and of the distribution of the work itself. The men and women who represent Compton's will maintain the same high standards.

Highway Pirates Invade Illinois Bond Issue Funds

Change in Law Urged to Curb Freight and Bus Lines.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

ILLINOIS taxpayers are donating a huge annual sum for the benefit of motor transport and passenger bus lines operating over state bond issue pavements, according to announcement made yesterday by Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson. Rapid growth of both freight and passenger transport over the newly paved highways is increasing the loss in revenue every month, officials add, and legislative action soon can relieve the situation.

Ill luck, both for the state highway fund and traffic safety on bond issue pavements, is held in the $13,613 which the secretary of state has been able to collect this year in monthly operating fees from country bus lines and freighting companies, in the opinion of W. W. Miller, chief of the automobile division in Springfield. The collections represent less than one-third of the revenue due from the public carriers under section 9 of the Illinois motor vehicle law and are proof of the irresponsible nature of many motor concerns now engaged in the new transportation movement, he declares.

"Investigators have already been ordered into every part of the state to check up on reasons why the scores of new motor bus and freight lines known to be operating are not complying with the state license fee law," said the division chief in making his report. "They have found that 50 per cent of the concerns are operating over state pavements without the certificates of convenience required by the Illinois commerce commission and that most of the violators are financially irresponsible. Many of the bus lines began their busines on credit and were bankrupt almost as soon as they appeared on the road. When we cause the arrest of this type of operator he usually contrives to change the name of his concern and go right ahead in defiance of the state.

"These irresponsible operators have become a menace to traffic as well as state law violators. In case of accident it has been found that the courts cannot collect damages from the bankrupt firms and many of them commit every driving crime in the calendar. It is next to impossible under the present system to enforce the state law on all points of the 5,000 mile bond issue system."

The report shows that only 125 passenger and freight concerns are paying the required monthly fee for use of expensive pavements. The law passed in 1921 requires a fee of one-half cent a mile for each mile traveled over an improved state by vehicles carrying freight for hire over fixed routes. Motor busses are required to pay a fee of one-twentieth of a cent a mile for each passenger seat in the vehicle, multiplied by the total number of miles traveled. Thus a revenue of 1 cent a mile is required from each motor bus of twenty seat capacity operating over state roads. These additional license fees are payable on the tenth day of each month and become part of the state road fund used to retire the highway bonds and maintain the improved roads.

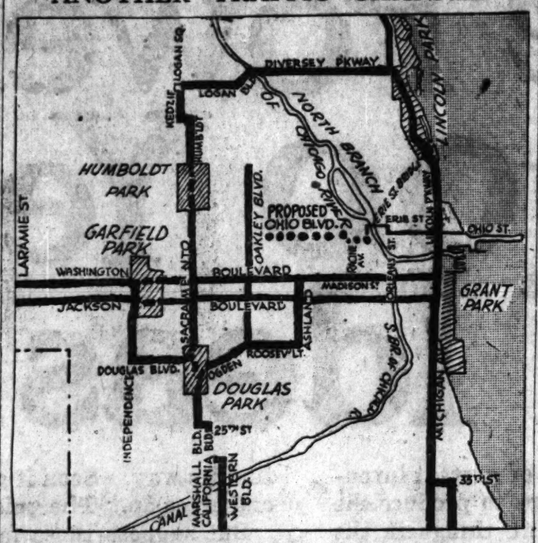
"One of the difficulties in the way of enforcing this part of the vehicle law at present," said Secretary Emmerson, "is the fact that two separate state agencies, the Illinois commerce commission and the secretary of state's office, are responsible for the carriers. Neither freight nor passenger lines can operate legally without a certificate and consequently we have no record of their operation until the certificate is issued.

"The bigger concerns and some of the smaller operators play square with the state and the roads by meeting both obligations, but they find that scores of competitors come into the field, evade both requirements, and thus cut their costs in half. Honest operators cannot meet this sort of competition.

"We believe, too, that the license fee required is unfair to the state, as well as to the honest operators. Many other states require a much higher fee for use of their improved roads. It is certain that busses and freight trucks operating for hire grab the lion's share of pavements, and logical that they should be made to foot the proper costs for the service rendered by the state."

Authorities look forward to a final settlement of this new transportation problem in the coming legislative session. Many officials in direct contact with all angles of the situation favor a state-wide gasoline tax and graduated valuation tax and the revision of the present license system as the equitable solution of the problem.

ANOTHER TRAFFIC CHANNEL



Additional traffic relief for the west side is promised in the suggestion made to city authorities that the "through traffic" street protection ordered for Ohio street from the lake west to Orleans street be extended along Ohio street west of the river as far as Oakley boulevard.

With a large percentage of traffic diverted from Michigan avenue by the new through street system, it is pointed out, Ohio street will become an important cross-town channel, and, if properly protected, can be used by hundreds of cars to avoid rush hour congestion in Washington and Jackson boulevards.

At present the proposed through traffic route will lead west in Ohio street to Orleans and north to Erie street, to utilize the Erie street bridge. After the crossing it turns south one block and west again in Ohio street to Oakley, thence south to Washington boulevard.

West of the river Ohio street offers fair pavement and a wide right of way for through traffic. Engineers declare it can be used effectively following minor pavement repairs.

Road Fund Hit by Proposed Cut in Auto License Fee

DES MOINES, Ia.—Reduction of state automobile license fees 30 per cent is contemplated in a legislative measure now being drawn up by Secretary of State Ramsey, head of the state automobile department.

The bill would repeal the license fee section of the present law and would provide new rates. The rates would be based on the weight and average cost of the car, the average being figured over a period of five years. The fluctuation in the selling prices of cars in recent years renders the present section unfair, in the opinion of Secretary Ramsay, because the fee is based upon the price of the car at the time of purchase, and the majority of cars cost less now than formerly.

In reducing the license fees the money available for roads improvement throughout the state will be cut in like proportion to the cut in fees, as all automobile license money goes into the road fund. Opposition to the proposed measure is looked for in some quarters because of this. Iowa now has about five hundred thousand motor vehicles and the annual license fees are said to be the highest amount paid in by motor owners in any state in the nation.

Getting Rough.

The judges throughout California who handle automobile speeding cases are becoming "hard boiled" and will not countenance speeding of any kind, according to late reports. They have about agreed that 40 miles an hour or better means a jail term, and they are handing out 30-day sentences in the jails now, instead of the usual day or two.

The judges have been accused of bending to "pull," but they are leaning over backward now in an effort to see that no one gets a chance to get away at all.

VALVE CLEARANCE.

In many of the older car models no means of adjusting the valve clearance is provided. By slipping one or more fiber or metal disks of sufficient thickness to take up the excessive play between the bottom of the valve stem and the push rod this trouble may be obviated. A metal retainer cut from sheet metal will keep the disks in place.

Short Season.

The length of the working season is a most important element in road construction and one in which there is considerable variation, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture.

Deducting Sundays only there are 313 working days in the year and Alabama, Mississippi, and New Mexico report that grading is possible on 300 of them. Neighboring states report as follows: Florida, 265; Louisiana, 260, and Texas, 275. Contrasted with these are Maine, with 110; New York, 150; Wisconsin, 153, and western Oregon, 100. In fourteen states grading is impractical after the middle of November, and in some of them at an earlier date.

Prepare Body Show.

Elaborate preparations are being made to make the second annual [illegible] Builders' show in New York a thoroughly representative exhibit. The exposition will be held the week of Jan. 8 to 13 in the 12th Regiment armory. This is the same week as the National Automobile show in Grand Central palace.

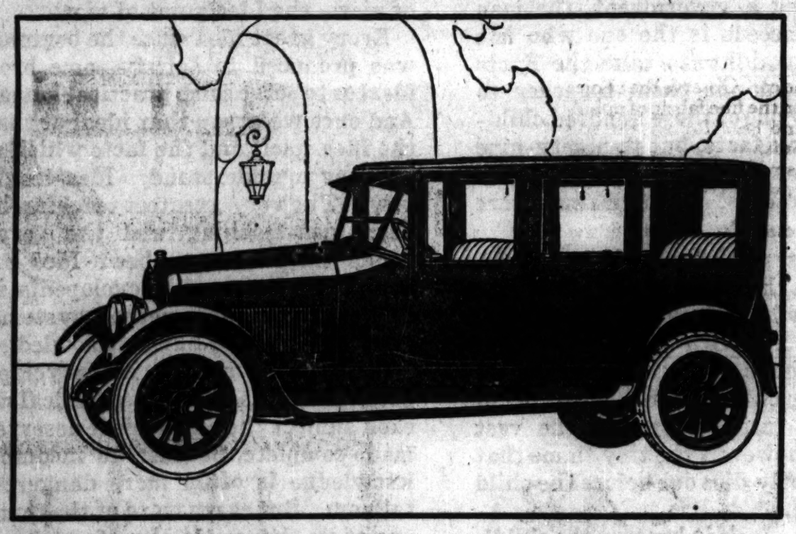
"It costs so little to drive a Marmon"



Now MARMON ALL-YEAR CARS: Sedans, Coupes, etc.—Advanced Styles

One glance at the beautiful Marmon enclosed cars and you realize their advanced style. Then as you examine them your wonder grows at the masterly combination of art and engineering.

The reason for such successful blending is this: Marmon bodies are designed and built by Marmon so as to insure unity with the chassis. Marmons are designed as a whole, not as two separate units. Note the lowness. Note the added roominess.

Sit inside. Observe how Marmon designers have brought unobstructed vision. Here indeed are touring sedans! The coupe, too, has the open effect of a roadster. Examine the other advancements and refinements. Never in all the history of building fine cars have there been such wonderful Marmons.

Behind all this beauty is sturdiness, dependability. And this means economy in maintenance, in operation. No fine cars costs so little to operate. A recent survey of hundreds of Marmons throughout the nation shows the average maintenance cost to be only $4.71 per month! No wonder Marmon owners agree that to drive a Marmon means the finest form of transportation at the lowest cost per mile.

We invite you to inspect these new Marmon enclosed cars. They are now on display.

Closed Car Types Due to Triumph of 1923 Auto Shows

Refinements and Comforts Feature Year's Achievements.

AUTOMOBILE manufacturers and dealers expect the twenty-third national automobile shows this year to be record breakers. The displays will be held in Grand Central palace, New York, Jan. 6 to 13, and in the Coliseum and Armory, Chicago, Jan. 27 to Feb. 3. Every one connected with the industry is looking forward to a prosperous year in 1923.

There have been some changes in the exhibitors' list since the show management issued its preliminary lists. A revised list shows that eighty-three manufacturers will exhibit at New York.

The fact that the show is only a few weeks away has served, as usual, to set the motoring world wondering what the exposition will bring to light. Manager S. A. Miles is now engaged in arranging for an unusual decorative setting for the exhibits.

The visitor to the show of 1923 may go with the consciousness that he is—for the first time—paying homage to one of the world's greatest industries. The production of motor cars and their accessories has gradually crept up from the modest figures of early years until at the present time the industry has gone into third place in the country's commercial standing. Figures indicate that the 1922 aggregate, including the consumption of gasoline and oil, will be in the neighborhood of $4,000,000,000.

Whether or not the coming exposition will disclose anything revolutionary or radical will remain a secret until the doors of the Palace are thrown open on Jan. 6. In every factory throughout the country for months past the brains of the automotive industry have been engaged in the design and production of models for 1923. Away from the drop forges, the whirring wheels, from all the distractions of a noisy plant, the designers have evolved ideas of refinements that will mark the cars to be shown.

It is conceded that the coming display will be dominated by the closed types of cars. More and more the motorist is evincing his desire for the acme of travel, typified by the limousine, the sedan, the coupe, and the various combination of these three standard types put out with more or less whimsical names. Protection from the weather, when protection is needed, explains the great and growing popularity of the closed car, taken in conjunction with improved body design, which in balmy weather permits of all the advantages of an open model.

Each year has brought greater luxury of interior fittings and upholstery, to such a pronounced degree that even the lowest priced cars have needed to make no apology for their lack of riding comfort. It is safe to assume that the models in the coming shows will demonstrate superiority over all previous efforts in this line.

The accessory makers confine their new products to no particular time of the year, but the most important are usually reserved for the national show. Many hundreds of accessory exhibitors are already listed.

NEW GARAGE PRINCIPLE

Driveways leading to each of three floors are included in an experimental scheme worked out in a new Washington (D. C.) garage. Elevators have been eliminated and no runways are needed on any of the floors. Owners declare the arrangement conserves both time and space.
[Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.]

Keep It Running.

It is not safe to operate a car without an anti-freezing mixture in the radiator. Alcohol and glycerin or some compound recommended by a local garage man should be used. However, if the car is operated without such a mixture the engine should not be stopped outside on freezing days.

East Blazes Way to Improved Auto Lighting Methods

WHILE New York state motor officials are still wrestling with the automobile headlight situation, Massachusetts seems to have solved that problem in a fairly satisfactory manner and is now tackling vigorously the tail or rear lights. A new tail lamp law goes into effect on Jan. 1 in that state and the changes which are rendered imperatively necessary by that law have disturbed to some extent manufacturers as well as Massachusetts motor car dealers and owners.

In view of the widespread interest in proper automobile lighting this attitude on the part of Massachusetts in tail lamp legislation is considered important, because it undoubtedly will pave the way for some necessary changes in all of the eastern states and ultimately throughout the country.

This New England state seems to have got the jump in adopting tail lamp regulations on the Illuminating Engineering society which has had a special committee working on that subject with the object of arriving at more exact specifications for proper tail lights than exist at the present time.

This society, working with the standards committee of the Society of Automotive Engineers, adopted specifications for automobile headlights about five years ago, and these have been adopted by the ten states comprising the interstate conference motor vehicle commissioners. They are also in use in other states.

New York is now coming up to the standard of some of these states, and in its revision of lenses has already cast out sixty-seven of those formerly approved, and several others will probably meet the same fate before the end of the year.

Radiator Protection.

Here is a reliable percentage table to govern the use of alcohol in the cooling system for winter driving: At 27 degrees use a 10 per cent solution; at 23 degrees use a 15 per cent solution; at 19 degrees use a 20 per cent solution; at 15 degrees you will need a 25 per cent solution; at 10 degrees the solution should be 30 per cent; at 5 degrees use a 35 per cent solution, and when it gets down to 2 degrees below zero, see to it that you have a 40 per cent solution; at 9 below you will require a 45 per cent solution, and at 18 a 50 per cent solution will be protection.

That Winter Cough.

Coughing in the carburetor, followed by sharp explosions in the muffler, indicates a wrong adjustment of the auxiliary air valve. On the other hand, coughing, followed by a choking down and stopping of the motor, indicates that there is water in the gasoline.

THE EVIDENCE.

"Really," gasped the automobilist, bending over his victim, "really, I didn't hit you intentionally."

"Aw, go on," returned the fallen one belligerently, "whatcher got that bumper on yer car for, if you don't expect to go runnin' into people?"

VELIE
VALUE

What closed car can match this Velie Brougham—at $1795

If we had you here in our salesroom we could sell you this car without saying a word.

First we would lead you up to the front of it and let you obtain your own first striking impression of its aristocratic, head-on view—the smart contour of the bright silvered radiator, the note of quality in the big, drum-type head lamps and cowl lights to match.

Then we would lead you to the side and point out the handsomest profile among the medium priced enclosed cars today.

Then you would step around behind and thoroughly examine the roomy trunk, both outside and in—and be surprised to note that it contains two suitcases and a hat box.

Now open the door and step into the car. Observe the choice interior, the fine fabric of upholstery and head linings, the soft satin finish of the genuine walnut instrument board with its bright, well arranged instruments. Go into the finer details and note that a silver flower vase, a complete smoking set and a vanity case are included in the interior equipment. There are silk curtains at the back and quarter windows and all interior fittings are of frosted silver finish.

Now let us open the hood—in all of your experience with motor cars have you ever seen so clean a six-cylinder engine—entirely enclosed, dust- and dirt-proof?

This is the famous Velie-built motor that is making automobile history, not only because of its famous economy records—up to 26½ miles a gallon. But also because of the unusual features that are bringing about such results—the complete automatic lubrication to practically every moving part and the vibrationless four-bearing crank shaft—features seldom found in cars below the $3,000 class.

Here is a car that combines the passenger capacity of the Sedan, the perfect balance of the Coupe, the road-riding quality of the Roadster and the luggage-carrying space of the Sport model, and at this present price of $1795 f. o. b. factory, it represents an actual money-saving of from one to three hundred dollars.

Come in and see this Velie Brougham. We will be only too glad to demonstrate it at whatever time you appoint.

PAIGE
Master of the Highway

Lithe and eager as the greyhound—is the smooth-running, full powered Paige Six-66. Speed over the highway at 70 miles an hour or better. Top the crest of Hubbard Hill at 35—from a standing start at the bottom—in high gear—and the 70 H. P. motor has ample reserve power for still sharper tests.

To a perfectly balanced mechanism, smoothly and silently operating, is due the unchallenged speedway records of the Paige Six-66. A high pressure oiling system forces three gallons of oil into main and connecting rod bearings every minute. Such lubrication means frictionless smoothness—much power and long life for the motor.

Supreme is the ease with which the Paige Six-66 is handled. Ball-bearing steering spindles, instant brake response, new type clutch and gears so free from pause that the car may be shifted from high to second at 35 miles an hour. And a range of 2 to 70 miles an hour in high gear. More of a motor could not be asked.

The Paige Brougham is the enclosed car par excellence. As a hill climber its ability equals the touring car. It is an all-season car, and is at home on any road. Its smart appearance strikes a universal note of approval. The roomy comfort of its five passengers is assured by a long wheelbase and springs, snubbers, Paige-Timken axles, low-hung body, finely poised weight, and absence of sidesway.

Realizing that more money cannot mean a better performing car, particular buyers are turning to the Paige Six-66. So steadily they come that today the Paige is a leader among cars selling between $2,000 and $11,000. They are influenced by the assured long service and economy in operation. Ask for a demonstration, and prove to yourself that the Paige is lithe and eager as a greyhound.

Deluge of Orders for Closed Cars New Auto Problem

Plants Delayed by Body Shortage and Rail Movements.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 2.—Automobile plants are being held up in production by lack of bodies for the enclosed type of car, around which output now centers. The major plants entered November with sufficient orders to justify production close to the high schedules of the earlier months of the year, but because of the scarcity of bodies curtailment of program was necessary, with orders far in advance. This has proved to be the greatest obstacle, but its reoccurrence is not probable once the additional body plants now in course of construction are in operation.

Orders for closed models are being filled as rapidly as the equipment permits, with shipments regulated by the available transportation facilities.

Another problem which the industry still faces revolves about the question of getting material and delivering cars, and not so much around the question of sales. It is to be expected, however, that sales will soon show a substantial falling off.

Recognition given to the motor bus by municipal governments and railroad executives has resulted in a pronounced increase in production of this type of vehicle.

Railroads were reminded again last week of the urgent need of automobile cars in auto loading territory. This need is evidenced by figures of shipments furnished by the manufacturers. For months the factories have not been sufficiently provided with freight cars to move the finished products.

On comparing figures on carloading, driveaways, and boatloading for the year, the percentage of cars driven from the factories has steadily crept up on the number sent by railroads, until in August it passed nearly all former records.

But winter is in sight, and this will check the driveaways, especially if there be much snow on the highways. Until the present time, conditions have been perfect, and advantage has been taken of the ideal motoring weather. Driveaways will be encouraged and continued as long as possible.

Right now Detroit alone needs 300 automobile freight cars a day. The Michigan Central is turning back to various plants in Detroit an average of 125 cars daily from eastern connections, and fifteen to twenty-five from the Chicago district.

Boat shipments, too, have increased remarkably, and twelve privately chartered boats, loaded to the limit with automobiles, are now plying between Detroit and Duluth, Milwaukee, Chicago, Buffalo, and Cleveland. The closing of navigation is not far off, so a congestion of the finished product is not improbable in the near future.

This will have a tendency toward checking the output, which will be noticeable with the close of the lake traffic, and snow blockades on the trunk highways.

Reserve Stocks.

Gasoline reserve stocks in the United States are the largest in the history of the country and are growing at a much faster ratio than domestic consumption, according to figures compiled by H. J. Lowe, petroleum economist of the bureau of mines, at the request of A. A. A. officials. The present stocks, on which figures were compiled at the end of the first quarter of 1922, were 554,232,000 gallons, which was greater by 20 per cent than for the first quarter of 1921 and 36 per cent greater than for the first quarter of 1920.

While the consumption of gasoline has increased, it showed only 7 per cent more used in the first quarter of 1922 than for the first quarter of 1921, and only 25 per cent more than the first quarter of 1920. Thus, in spite of the increasing number of cars, A. A. A. officials point out, the stocks of gasoline are increasing still more rapidly.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question George L. Buckner, 433 North Waller avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Who is the more responsible for accidents, the motorist or the pedestrian?

Where Asked.

City hall.

The Answers.

Walter Code, 3196 Elston avenue, physician—The pedestrian, owing to the fact that the autoist has so much more to contend with compared to the pedestrian. The autoist has to watch the control of a more or less unwieldy car, and to be on guard against unexpected movements of other cars and other people. The pedestrian has only himself to look after. I have been driving for twelve years and never hit any one, but I have been hit often enough.

Miss Corella Lukens, Sovereign hotel—Neither. Mr. Moonshine is more responsible than either. Mr. Rush is responsible for most of the others. An autoist with a bottle, and the man or woman in a rush—they are the ones who collect the toll. Pedestrian and autoist, they are both the same; both want to get there at the earliest possible second. A minute means more than a life.

W. H. Morrow, 5246 Prairie avenue, claim adjuster—I would say 90 per cent of accidents outside the loop is due to the motorist; 90 per cent of accidents within the loop is due to the pedestrian. There are a good many autoists who because they own a car think they own the street, too. Downtown the pedestrian is entirely too careless.

Miss Florence Canl, 1245 Altgeld street, actress—I don't know who is the more to blame. One wonders that there are not more accidents down town, considering the traffic jam of autos and people. Outside the loop autoists go so fast they couldn't stop within 50 or 100 feet if they had to. Downtown the autos go slow enough, but the people rush in and around, ducking in here and out in the most bewildering fashion.

Clarence W. Stewart, 415 East 71st street, city officer—I'm sort of prejudiced; I'm not a motorist. I imagine the motorist is the more responsible owing to his careless driving and seeming indifference to the pedestrian. He doesn't regard the pedestrians in the least, and acts as though they were perfectly capable of getting out of his way and should do so. People don't run across the street for the fun of it.

Santa Claus Trucks

Arrangements have been made by the postmaster general with the war department for the use of hundreds of motor trucks in all parts of the country for expediting the handling of Christmas mail.

Coördinators of the eight army corps areas, located at Chicago, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Columbus, Houston, and San Francisco, have been advised to furnish postmasters, on request, with available trucks.

Growing Industry.

Automobile road maps have entered the competitive field of calendars, blotters, and almanacs as advertising gifts, according to publishers of motor car specialties, who now are printing these guides to the outdoors by millions, because, they say, the modern American no longer is inclined to sit indoors and study dates since the automobile has paved the way to highways and byways when leisure time arrives.

Publishers of calendars, however, declare the demand for their products is undiminished, pointing out that the motorist must spend some time dating up his trips for the following season.

Uncle Sam Ready to Improve Old Yosemite Trails

In spite of the marked increase in motor travel into the various national parks, practically no funds have been provided for road construction and improvement. The road costs have been taken care of almost entirely out of the limited funds provided for maintenance purposes.

In Yosemite, where the federal government owns and maintains 138 miles of roads, which were for the most part built forty to fifty years ago as mere wagon trails. Later they reverted to the government. No money has ever been appropriated specifically for road construction, except for the building of the El Portal road from Yosemite valley to the park boundary near El Portal a section eight miles in length.

The high mounain roads in Yosemite, such as the Wawona, Big Oak Flat, Glacier Point, and Tioga roads remain essentially in the same condition as when built, unsuitable in every way for present day travel and very difficult to maintain in even reasonable state of repair, according to a recent highway report.

Similar conditions obtain in a number of the national parks, and realizing the absolute necessity of better roads for the use of the hundreds of thousands of visitors who visit the parks annually, the secretary of the interior has submitted to the bureau of the budget for transmittal to congress a road construction budget which calls for an expenditure of $7,296,000 to be expended over a three year period beginning July 1, 1923.

Yosemite's allotment from this amount would be $1,500,000, to be expended at the rate of $500,000 per year. This program contemplates principally the paving of the roads on the floor of Yosemite valley, twenty miles, and the reconstruction and surfacing of the Wawona road, twenty miles; the Big Oak Flat road, fourteen miles, and parts of the Tioga road, twenty-five miles; a total of seventy-nine miles.

With the completion of this program, Yosemite's existing road system will be placed in a condition comparable with the best maintained highways in California.

Chilly Secrets.

Engines are harder to start in winter because gasoline does not vaporize readily in cold air. Before cranking the engine be sure to pull out the choke, if there is one, and if the engine still refuses to start tickle the carburetor—that is, lift the float needle valve from its seat and hold it off until the carburetor floods.

If the engine still balks, pour about a teaspoonful of gasoline into the priming cup of each cylinder, or, if there are no cups, remove the spark plugs. The easiest way to introduce the gasoline is to fill an oil can full and squirt it in. On cold mornings it may be necessary to prime the engine with ether, denatured or otherwise.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

INDUSTRIAL romance is threaded cleverly through the latest United States department of commerce educational film which tells the story of the "valve-in-head" automobile engine from raw material to finished product. The picture, completed in the Buick Motor company plant in Flint, will be released early this month and offered free of charge to universities, schools, clubs, and civic bodies interested in industrial development.

W. E. Stalnaker, veteran of Chicago's Row, has been appointed general sales manager of Earl Motors, Inc., following the recent reorganization of the Jackson plant. Among the first of his official duties is the arrangement of a striking Earl exhibit for both the New York and Chicago automobile shows.

Bruce E. Adams, another Chicago pioneer, has been appointed manager of the Chicago branch for Rolls-Royce, 900 Michigan avenue, succeeding H. S. Hamilton.

President J. J. Cole of the Cole Motor company, completed plans last week to double production of the Indianapolis plant in 1923 and, as a preliminary to revising the schedule, announced a reduction in price on all models of the Cole line.

Seymour B. Cochrane, director of sales for Allison-Rood company, has been elected vice president and a director of the company.

Insurance Victory.

A case of unusual interest to automobile underwriters, which is likely to establish an important precedent, was heard recently in the United States District court at Wichita, Kas. In this case, brought by the Indemnity Company of America to recover a stolen car found in the possession of C. E. Mackey, a banker at Cimarron, Kas., the company was not only given possession of the car, which the defendant had refused to turn over, but recovered judgment for $2,500, covering the depreciation in the car from the time when it was stolen until it was recovered, and the expense involved in recovery, and a further judgment for $500 punitive damages, or "smart money."

Imperial Brass Mfg. Co. Chicago

Double the Life of Your Battery

Start Your Motor Instantly In COOL Weather!

Here is one of the greatest offers ever made to Ford Owners—an IMPERIAL PRIMER which will insure INSTANT STARTING from the first cool day in the fall through the entire winter.

There isn't a Ford Owner who can afford to be without an IMPERIAL PRIMER. No more back-breaking over the crank when the motor balks. No more flooding your engine with the choker. No more heating hot water to pour on the manifold. The IMPERIAL PRIMER does away with all of that, and starts you off with one or two turns of your motor.

Think of the saving on your battery! No need to grind and grind away—for the hot spark in your cylinder has quick-firing vapor to catch hold of. When your battery is only 50% efficient in the winter, when you run less and put less charge back into your battery, the IMPERIAL PRIMER saves charging bills, rental batteries and the wearing down of your plates.

Further, it stops the flooding of your engine. Your choker lets your cylinders get full of gasoline which runs down past the cylinders into the crank case, thins out your oil and vastly increases the wear on your bearings.

Get an IMPERIAL PRIMER today—increase the satisfaction which you get from winter driving. Any dealer will sell it to you and install it in less than an hour—or you can do it for yourself. No cutting of gas line or dash unless you wish. Primer fits right on steering column. No threading, flaring or soldering, for all connections are made with Imperial Compression Couplings. You need it from the first cool day in the fall until the first warm day in summer.

FARM and GARDEN BY FRANK RIDGWAY

HOLLAND WILD DUCK FARM—This snapshot was taken last July in Friesland, Holland, by J. G. Tibma, Laporte, Ind. By transforming ponds on natural preserves into wild duck farms Hollanders are preserving their ducks and furnishing plenty of good mallard shooting for hunters every fall.

Wild Ducks Dying Out; Urges Farms to Conserve Them

WILD game farms may be America's best way of preventing such birds as the duck from going the way of the buffalo, deer, and other animals once common in this country. In many sections flocks of wild ducks become fewer and fewer every year because game hogs violate laws that have been enacted to protect wild game birds, and disregard the "Hunters Keep Out" signs tacked up around farms where birds find their only hiding places.

Unless game laws are more rigidly enforced or wild game farms are more extensively established to replace birds as rapidly as they are slaughtered, duck shooting will be put to an end. If a census of the wild duck family could be taken it would be readily seen that effective enforcement of laws has not been wholly successful in many of the regions once densely inhabited by this water fowl. The wild duck farm idea that is used in some foreign countries and suggested by outdoorsmen may be worth while for some sections in this country.

Just Back from Holland.

As a friend of birds, J. G. Tibma of Laporte, Ind., who has recently returned from Europe, in writing to THE TRIBUNE, says: "I wonder why some scientist does not hit upon a real practical plan of developing and propagating our desirable game birds, the duck family."

Mr. Tibma sent along snapshots taken last summer of duck ponds on game farms near Friesland, Holland where he lived and had a chance to study the ducks and the system used in handling them.

"My opinion has always been that this part of the country should start on a similar plan, which would not only preserve but greatly increase the number of these valuable 'birds,'" he said.

Keeping Ponds Inhabited.

He knows of fifteen or more of these farms with duck ponds in Friesland. The owners of these wild duck farms begin their operations about the first of August, catching as many as 100 to 400 a day in each pond.

In spite of the number of wild ducks caught by the game farm owners every season, he says the country is fairly alive with them.

"I saw this summer numerous flocks throughout Friesland and many hunters making their living by hunting wild birds," added Mr. Tibma. "If it were not for the game laws of Holland it would be a matter of a short time before all these birds would be gone and the country would be barren like ours."

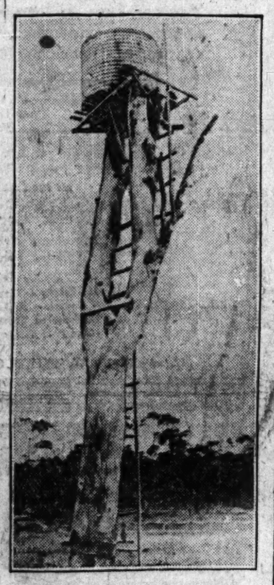
He believes the wild duck farm idea could be handled in the United States in the same manner as the state fish hatcheries are conducted. "It would turn some parts of this country into a bird paradise and an everlasting good to the lovers of outdoors," he says.

DAIRYMEN'S JOTTINGS

After all the campaigning to get farmers interested in pure bred live stock there seems to be a big job ahead, for the scrubs and the grades are still finding welcome stanchions and green pastures over the middle west. Even in Iowa, the great live stock state, only one cow in thirty-three is a pure bred. Iowa ranks high up on the list of dairy states, too.

Consumption of milk will be increased when people realize the value of ice cream as a food and eat it not as a delicacy on special occasions, or during the summer only, but all the year round. Dr. C. D. Dahle, Minnesota university, says a quart or a brick of ice cream, which weighs about 1.2 pounds, is equal to 3¾ pounds of chicken, 1¼ pounds of beefsteak, 14 eggs of medium size, 4-5 of a pound of ham, or 19¾ pounds of tomatoes'

DOWN ON THE FARM



IRRIGATION TANK—This picture was taken "down on the farm" in Australia, and shows how farmers store water in the tops of tall trees to get sufficient pressure to force water over their fields. This tank holds 600 gallons of water, and sets on a platform in the forks of a gum tree thirty feet from the ground. The idea was originated by W. Showels, Brookvale Australia. He uses a three horse power gasoline engine to pump the water from a creek forty yards away up into the tank.

Anti-Tuberculosis Army in Wisconsin Sure of Victory

This is the fourth of a series of articles on Wisconsin's progress in dairying and the strides farmers in that state have made in their campaign to eradicate tuberculosis from herds.

By Frank Ridgway.

THE area plan of testing cattle for tuberculosis is progressing at such a rapid rate in Wisconsin that authorities say they will have the northern half of the state practically free from infected cows within two or three years. Farmers, state authorities, and veterinarians have started out with a determination to make a clean sweep and drive out every infected animal. This anti-tuberculosis army has drawn an imaginary line from Green Bay to St. Paul and believes that within two years they may be able to say that all herds of cattle north of this line have been tested.

DR. O. A. ELIASON.

They have already made a big showing and the work was not begun until 1918. The area test has been completed in fourteen northern counties where the percentage of reactors runs around 1 per cent, compared with 4 to 6 per cent in the southern counties. Farmers in twenty other counties of the state, mostly in the northern part, are circulating petitions, preparing for the area test work.

Area Test Third Step.

Washington Island was the first well marked area where the test was completed in 1919, but Barron, with 68,000 head of cattle, was the first county to complete its testing early last year; Lincoln and Bayfield counties following within a few months. After the passage of the area test law in Wisconsin in 1917, the work was started in Waukesha county with more than 60,000 cattle, but two more townships must be tested before the work is complete.

The area test policy is Wisconsin's third progressive step in clean up work. It has always been a compulsory test based upon the signatures of 51 per cent of the cattle owners in a given area, usually a county, under the provisions of the 1917 law, and 60 per cent under the 1921 law. Wisconsin claims to have originated the area test plan, which has been adopted by the United States bureau of animal industry, the United States live stock sanitary board, and the various states as the most promising method of tuberculosis eradication.

Want to Be Sure.

In explaining the advantages of the area test plan, C. P. Norgard, commissioner of agriculture in Wisconsin, says by this law progressive people of any county and eventually of the state will be able to secure a complete test in spite of a few nonprogressive people who may not wish to test. Such a complete test of any territory will go far, he believes, toward preventing reinfection of clean herds by adjoining tubercular herds, and will also prevent the transfer of animals from untested to clean herds.

"Our policy is first to test every animal and herd in the county, remove reactors, and disinfect the premises," he said. "Then within six months or a year we will retest every herd where reactors are found in the original test. If many reactors are found we expect to retest two or three times until we are sure every animal is clean."

Certified Counties Increase.

Wisconsin already has two counties and will have twelve more by next spring that will qualify as certified counties, making it possible for all farmers in these sections to sell hogs at a premium under the new offer made by the packers at the central markets.

The packers offer to pay farmers an additional 10 cents a hundred on hogs coming from certified counties where the area test work is being carried on. Wisconsin authorities and H. R. Smith of Chicago, who represents the packers, have practically agreed that a county is eligible to be certified when all the cattle have been tested for tuberculosis once, a retest has been made in all herds where reactors were found when the original test was made, and all reactors removed. In addition, authorities think it will be necessary to work out a policy for future testing and maintaining clean herds in order to qualify as certified counties.

Government Pays Expenses.

Barron and Lincoln counties already fulfill these requirements. The following Wisconsin counties are expected to be able to qualify by next spring so that farmers in these counties can sell their hogs at a premium of 10 cents a hundred above the regular market price: Douglas, Bayfield, Ashland, Iron, Vilas, Oneida, Price, Sawyer, Washburn, Rusk, Chippewa and Eau Claire. Washington Island will also be eligible.

Under the area test plan the law not only authorizes a complete test, but it gives authority to control the area tested and keep it free from contamination. In Wisconsin the counties are not asked to pay any of the expenses in making the original cleanup. Some offer to help bear expenses, but men in charge of the work consider it best to have the government pay the cost. After the general cleanup, however, Commissioner Norgard says that counties will probably be called upon to help maintain clean herds.

State Pays for Retest.

"The state will pay the cost of retesting of herds in which reactors appear," Mr. Norgard says. "After that the cost of testing must fall upon the individual herd owner. We are not certain just how this plan will be worked out. The most practical scheme seems to be to raise money in each county by levying a tax on the basis of about 15 cents on each animal in the county and then have the state furnish an equal amount. This would be set aside as a special fund in each county to be used by a state representative in hiring a local veterinarian under competitive bids to test the cattle in each locality. At first the testing would be done about every two years, and not so often later."

Such county and state action, under the control and supervision of the department of agriculture, Mr. Norgard thinks, will more perfectly insure regular testing of herds than if the work were left to the individual owner even under compulsion by the state and county.

Will Ask New Fund.

Dr. O. H. Eliason, state veterinarian and director of the live stock sanitary division of the agricultural department, is in charge of the area test work in Wisconsin. From his headquarters in Madison, the state capital, Dr. Elison is able to work in close harmony with Dr. James S. Healy, in charge of the state federal accredited herd work, and Commissioner Norgard. Through the close cooperation of these three men a tremendous amount of work has been accomplished since the area and accredited herd plans have been put into operation during the last four or five years in Wisconsin.

"The farmers of Wisconsin expect to ask the legislature, convening on Jan. 1, for a new indemnity fund and operation fund for both of these lines of work," said Mr. Norgard the other day." The federal government cooperates with us in furnishing half of the money for operation of accredited herd work and a part of the money for area test work. The federal government also furnishes half of the indemnity paid in the area test and accredited herd work."

Cutting Farmers' Losses.

Live stock sanitary authorities do not hope to wipe tuberculosis completely off the map, but they do believe it is practical to keep it under control by the use of the tuberculin test so that farmers will not suffer such enormous losses directly and indirectly every year, and that the danger of man becoming infected with bovine tuberculosis can be greatly lessened by getting rid of the tubercular cow.

"No doubt we shall always have remains of the disease with us," says Mr. Norgard, "requiring constant testing and sanitary care, but we can expect to be free from the extensive losses in our herds which our farmers today must bear."

BATTLE LINES OF WISCONSIN'S TUBERCULOSIS WAR.—This map graphically shows the progress of Badger farmers' campaign to free the state of tuberculosis among cattle. The black area indicates where the area test has been completed. Petitions, authorizing area testing, are being circulated in the shaded counties; number of accredited herds is indicated by the black numerals, and herds under supervision indicated by the shaded numerals.

Apiarists in Convention.

Legislative needs of the beekeepers of the middle west, particularly in Illinois, will be discussed by Samuel Cushman, president of the Cook County Beekeepers' association, at the annual convention of the Chicago Northwestern Beekeepers' association at the Great Northern hotel here tomorrow and Tuesday. Members of the association are practical beemen in Illinois and surrounding states. C. H. Cale of Hamilton, Ill., is president; J. Frank Haan of Des Plaines, Ill., secretary. Immediately following the close of the Chicago convention many of the delegates will go to Springfield, Ill., to attend a two days' meeting—Wednesday and Thursday—of the Illinois Beekeepers' association at the St. Nicholas hotel. E. R. Root, C. P. Davant, and George E. King, all nationally known apiculturists, will speak at the Springfield convention.

J. M. STRICKLAND—Mr. Strickland of Caterick, Yorkshire, England, is the foreign judge who will pick the grand champion beef animal at the International Live Stock exposition, which opened yesterday at the Union stockyards.

Poultry Breeders Meet.

Leading poultry and pet stock breeders of the United States and Canada will open their fourteenth annual exhibition at the Coliseum next Tuesday. The entire main floor of the building and the annex will be used to furnish space for the exhibits, representing twenty-eight states and three Canadian provinces, according to Theo Hewes, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary of the show. The show will last for six days, closing next Sunday night. Besides the thousands of chickens, turkeys, ducks, and geese, there will be dozens of exhibits of pet stock, including rabbits and cavies. The National Cat show will be held as a special feature of the Coliseum poultry show, on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Poultry houses and runs located on a clay plot where water does not drain off readily are dangerous places for chickens.

Each State Represented.

Judges at the hay and grain show held in connection with the International Live Stock exposition, which opened yesterday, have been selected so that each state is given equal representation. The corn judges are Prof. C. A. Helm, Missouri College of Agriculture; Prof. J. E. Metzger, University of Maryland; Prof. J. H. Petty, Elliot, Ia.; William Webb, Joliet, Ill., and Prof. A. T. Wiancko, Purdue university. Small grain will be judged by Prof. A. L. Stone, Wisconsin College of Agriculture; Prof. A. C. Arny, University of Minnesota; C. C. Cunningham, El Dorado, Kas.; Prof. C. R. McGee, Michigan Agricultural College, and L. H. Newman, Ottawa, Canada. Rudolph Raabe, Fort Jennings, O., and George S. Bridge of Chicago will tie the ribbons in the hay classes.

U. S. SILENCE ON ARMOUR MERGER MAY BE CONSENT

[ON A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—J. Ogden Armour and F. Edson White, vice president of Armour & Co., were in Washington for a few hours today en route to Philadelphia.

The Chicago packing officials were originally here in the interest of the proposed merger of the Armour and Morris companies, details of which were submitted to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and President Harding by Mr. Armour several weeks ago.

U. S. Silent on Merger.

Despite the visit of Mr. Armour and Mr. White, government officials who have been silent on the proposed merger from the beginning had no announcement to make as to the government's decision in the matter. Secretary Wallace did not see either Mr. Armour or Mr. White.

Because of the government's silence, there is a conclusion here that no announcement is to be made, the belief being that the administration has decided not to interfere provided Mr. Armour intends to buy the Morris interests outright for $30,000,000 cash, as has been reported.

Talk with Attorneys.

Mr. Armour would not discuss the matter. Vice President White said that there was nothing to be announced and that no conferences had been held with government officials. They had, however, with attorneys for Armour & Co. who are in touch with developments in Washington.

Chicago School Papers Win in U. of W. Contest

Madison, Wis., Dec. 2.—[Special.]—The Sans Forum of Nicholas Senn high school, Chicago, and Red and White of Lake View high, Chicago, were placed first and second respectively today in a national contest at the University of Wisconsin for magazines published by secondary schools. The Weekly of Englewood High school, the Hyde Park Weekly, the Aitchike, annual of Hyde Park; Tabula of Oak Park, the Parrot of Parker, and Science and Craft Technical also won prizes.

UNTERMYER TO ADDRESS ILLINOIS MANUFACTURERS

E. C. HEIDRICH JR. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Waterways and transportation, cost accounting, immigration, industrial relations, world commerce, and insurance will be some of the topics discussed at the annual meeting of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, which will be held at the Congress hotel on Dec. 14. Police Commissioner R. E. Enright of New York will speak on "The Relation of Street Traffic to Transportation" at 10 o'clock. Samuel G. Untermyer of New York will be the principal speaker at a luncheon and Prof. E. A. Steiner of Grinnel college, Ia., will deliver an address on "America's Immigration Problem."

E. C. Heidrich Jr. of the Peoria Cordage company, Peoria, president-elect, and other new officers of the association will be installed.

SAYS ARCHITECTS MUST SUPERVISE ALL BUILDING

State Issues Warning to City Officials.

Following several hundred complaints received by the Department of Registration and Education of the state of Illinois, against builders and owners for not having their structures supervised by licensed architects during erection, Director A. M. Shelton has sent out letters of warning to the building commissioners of all towns of 10,000 or over throughout the state to enforce the Illinois architectural act.

"As director of the Department of Registration and Education, whose duty it is to enforce the law," his warning reads, "I wish to call your specific attention to the provisions of the law, which are that the supervision of the erection of buildings is as much architectural practice as the preparation of plans and specifications, and that the only buildings costing in excess of $7,500 that may be planned and supervised by unregistered parties are those buildings erected by the contractor's and owner's own employés, and the building must be for their own use. Manifestly, if a portion of said buildings are erected by contract, said owner or builder is not employing his own men and therefore becomes liable under the law.

Urges Coöperation.

"Recently several hundred complaints against owners and builders have been filed with the department. Under the law, each and every person found guilty is liable to a fine of $25 to $200 for each offense, and the courts have ruled in similar cases that each day constitutes a separate offense.

"Will you kindly coöperate with the state department in bringing about a more general observation of the provisions of the law relating to buildings? The department will greatly appreciate your courtesy if you will report all violations observed.

Will Wipe Out a Great Evil.

"This accomplishes what the state architectural commission has been hoping for, for a long time, and when properly enforced by the building departments of cities will eradicate a great evil," said Albert Moore Saxe last night.

Mr. Saxe, a member of the architectural firm of Zimmerman, Saxe & Zimmerman, is a former president of the Illinois chapter of the American Institute of Architects and a member of the new state architectural commission, formerly the board of examiners.

"The technical supervision of the construction of buildings is as much a part of the practice of architecture as the preparation of plans and specifications and is so defined by our law," said Mr. Saxe.

Didn't Follow It Further.

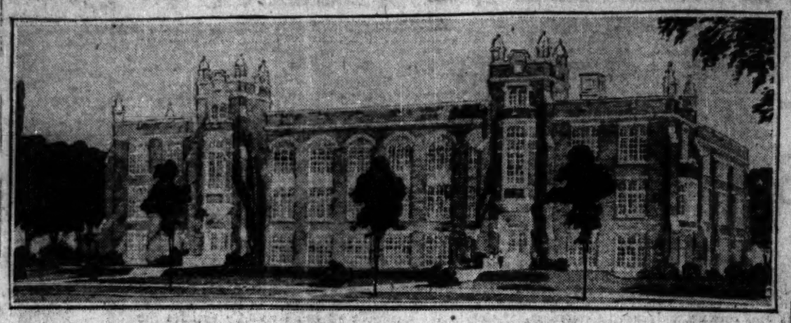
"The various building departments of the state have refrained from issuing permits for buildings unless the plans and specifications were prepared by a licensed practitioner, but they have not, as I understand it, followed the matter further in an effort to ascertain whether or not the remaining portion of the service—namely, the supervision of construction, has been executed by or under the direction of a licensed practitioner.

"This letter from the department not only gives them this authority but requests them to exercise it. Unfortunate catastrophes in the failure of buildings can nearly always be traced to a lack of technical supervision of construction, where in many cases the buildings have been proven to have been correctly designed. The public has been afforded a very great and very necessary protection by this act of the department of registration and education."

ARCHITECT BUYS RESIDENCE.

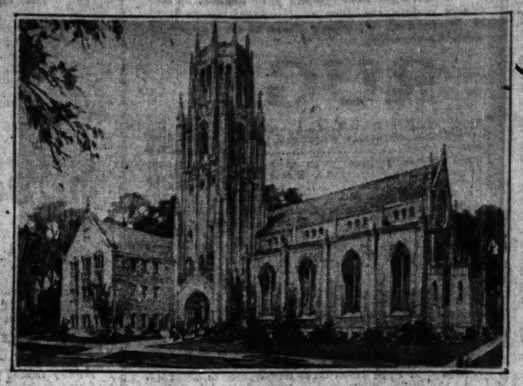
Morris G. Holmes, architect, has bought from Mary B. Warner, through T. D. O'Hern & Co., the brick and stone residence at 5135 Dorchester avenue, 26x134, for $17,500.

La Grange Grammar School to Have Swimming Pool



La Grange's new Cossitt avenue elementary school, between Madison street and Ashland avenue, in the western suburb, designed by Architects Childs & Smith, is an adaptation of the English Tudor. The most striking features are the towers and cathedral windows. There'll be a 20x60 swimming pool in the basement, boys' and girls' gymnasiums, locker rooms, showers, teachers' rest room, nurse and clinic, domestic science and sewing departments, with private dining room, woodworking and science departments. On the second floor are two kindergartens, to be fitted up in the Japanese style, with fireplace, pools, and waterfalls, with stained glass panels in the doors and windows, representing Mother Goose stories, with Mother Goose frieze panels around the room. The school capacity will be 1,000 pupils. It'll be completed by May 1, 1923.

New Suburban Baptist Church.



Architect E. E. Roberts has designed the new home of the La Grange Baptist church, to be erected on the site of the present edifice at Ashland and Bell avenues, in the English gothic. It will seat 450 and have a 125x40 community house in the rear, which will be larger than the main edifice. There'll be a gymnasium, clubrooms, etc. A feature of the church is the ninety foot tower, with space for chimes. Work will start next spring. The pastor is the Rev. E. B. Freeman.

Plan Another Catholic School for River Forest

River Forest is rapidly becoming a Catholic educational center. It was learned yesterday that the eighty acres recently bought by Cremin & O'Connor just north of Division, between Harlem and Williams streets extended, north to North avenue, from John E. The site is only a few blocks east of Rosary college, another Catholic institution.

Woodlawn Theater Men Buy Kimbark; $70,000

Charles Fecher and Fred Nortman, who now operate the Drexel, Lexington, and Harvard theaters on 63d street, have bought the Kimbark at 6240 Kimbark avenue, for an indicated $7,000 from Harry T. Leper, who has owned and operated it for the last decade. It occupies a 50x165 lot and contains, in addition to an 800 seat theater, stores, offices, and a hall. Mrs. Margaret E. Long of McKey & Poague represented all parties.

FANNIE MAY TO OPEN WOODLAWN SHOP—HER TENTH

Woodlawn is to be invaded for the third time within the last month by one of Chicago's big chain of candy stores. The Fannie May company has leased from the Adler properties, trustee, and Sidney Adler, the store at 830 East 63d street for five years from next October at a term rental of $15,000. This is at the rate of $250 a month, or almost three times more than the present tenant, the Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, is paying. Its rental is only $85 monthly. The store is only 12x50 and the new rental is said by Lloyd M. Landeker, who negotiated the lease, to be a record for the district. This will be the tenth Fannie May candy shop in Chicago.

SMOKE UP!

Eugene C. Ecker and associates have designed, financed, and erected the second largest pipe factory in the United States at the northwest corner of Fullerton and Racine avenues. REAL ESTATE NEWS

Some of the Men Who Made the Chicago Real Estate Board the World's Largest

Above are a dozen former presidents of the Chicago Real Estate board who attended the annual dinner given "the men who made the board the largest in the world" on the day before Thanksgiving at the board rooms. There are nineteen ex-presidents living; three of these couldn't attend and four hurried away from the dinner despite The Tribune photographer's plea to wait. Lewis M. Smith, who held office prior to present President John R. Magill, is in California. Wyllys W. Baird and Albert H. Wetten couldn't attend. The modest four who dodged the camera are Edward S. Judd, John F. Wallace, Charles D. Richards, and Adolph F. Kramer. The handsome dozen facing you above are, from left to right: Edward M. Willoughby, Henry A. Knott, Callistus S. Ennis, Perkins B. Bass, Ivan O. Ackley, Paul Steinbrecher, Joseph Donnersberger, Frederick S. Oliver, William A. Bond, George H. Taylor, Frank G. Hoyne, and Valentine H. Surghnor.

HUGE PLANT TO MAKE CHICAGO CANDY CENTER

$5,000,000 Brach Factory Now Under Way.

BY AL CHASE.

Just eighteen years ago—in 1904 to be exact—Emil J. Brach, a Chicagoan, who knew something about candy making and selling, started in business for himself with a capital of $1,000 and a determination to make good on a big scale. His other assets, and they really should have been mentioned before the $1,000, were two sons, Frank V. Brach and Edwin J. Brach. The firm was called E. J. Brach & Sons.

It had a tiny candy kitchen to start with, but from the beginning was a success. It now does a business of approximately $10,000,000 annually and is by far the largest of any candy concern in this country—possibly in the world. One year, and that was only a couple of years ago, the business amounted to $13,500,000. There were two men, Frank V. Brach, now vice president and secretary, had charge of the advertising for a time and declared such a spectacular advertising campaign that his brother, Edwin, president, and his brother, Edward, who is a vice president and treasurer, were startled. Results justified the advertising, however, for it put the Brach concern into a position it has never lost.

"It Pays to Advertise."

"I have never yet seen a more beautiful painting, nor probably a more expensive one, than that which young Brach got up to tell the world about his candies. It's still used and still bringing in results; 60 per cent of the company's business is now done by mail order. The concern has 30,000 accounts throughout the entire United States and Canada.

From the little candy kitchen of 1904 the Brach business has grown to a point where it has several factories scattered about the near north side. Expansion, however, has grown so rapid that it has been found advisable to concentrate in one huge plant. Work has been started on the first of five units which, when entirely completed, will cover the 600x800 tract at the northeast corner of Kinzie street and Kilpatrick avenue. This is covered, will be the largest candy plant in the world.

$5,000,000 Investment. Eventually.

The total investment in land, buildings, and machinery eventually will amount to $5,000,000. The first unit will cost $1,000,000 and will care for work now done by Brach factory No. 2 on Lake and Franklin, also factory No. 1 and offices at 215 West Ohio, and a huge shipping room at the North Western terminal.

An interesting sidelight on the Brach plans is that the new plant will be financed entirely from the company's profits. No stock will be sold, no bonds issued, and no loans of any sort negotiated.

Plant unit No. 1 is completed next year work will start at once on unit No. 2, which will supplant present factory at 211 East Illinois street.

1,250,000 Pounds Weekly.

The present capacity of the Brach plant is 2,000,000 pounds weekly. When the first two units of the new plant are in operation this will be increased to 3,250,000 pounds. The company now makes seventy-five different kinds of candy, all of the popular priced variety. The decorative quality of all the package work advertising, used on candy boxes, pails, cartons, and even wooden shipping boxes, however, is good and shoulders above that used by most of our high priced confectioners. Emil J. Brach paid some staggering fees to artists to obtain his famous beautiful "Canterbury" design for boxes and cartons. But apparently his extravagance has paid.

Frank V. Brach, in spite of his advertising instincts, is extremely modest about his concern. In talking of it he incidentally told some interesting facts about the candy trade in general.

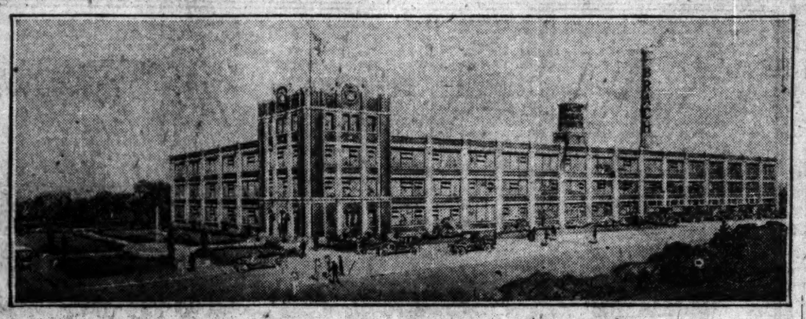
Chicago Second Candy City.

"Right now Chicago is the second candy making city in the country, and one of the world, for no one eats as much candy as we Americans," he said. "This city manufactures 12½ per cent of all the confectionery made in the country, according to official figures. New York still leads; it makes 13½ per cent. We'll soon beat it, however.

"Our factory isn't as large as the largest, but our output is by far the largest in the country. Of course, I suppose when our entire tract is covered we'll probably have the largest candy factory in the world. Right now Philadelphia and one other are the only rivals to Chicago importing the cocoa and making our own chocolate. At present we employ 900, 50 per cent being girls."

In conclusion Mr. Brach frankly admitted that so far as he could determine prohibition hasn't boosted the candy business any—though we'll add that it would if it was really enforced.

First Unit of World's Greatest Candy Kitchen



Architect Alfred S. Alschuler is designing the huge 35,000,000 candy plant of E. J. Brach & Sons at Kinzie and Kilpatrick. The first unit, shown above, will cost $1,000,000 including equipment. It'll be 100x300, and the tower will be used for offices. It will be set back 130 feet from the street, with a young garden in front of it. There'll also be a roof garden, and on the adjoining grounds will be tennis courts, ball diamonds, etc. A separate building is planned for later erection to contain clubrooms, a library, reading room, etc., for employes. Frank V. Brach, who believes in advertising, intends to let the world that daily passes the new plant on the Northwestern railroad know by means of mazdas at night and artistic colored painting by day what they make. The word "Brach," in huge electric letters, will climb the big chimney of the plant. More is told in an adjacent column.

Realty Briefs.

Chicago's biggest realty auction will be held next Thursday at 2:30 p. m. when Uncle Sam puts his big Symington plant at the northwest corner of Ashland and 74th up for sale to the highest bidder. This is said to have cost several millions and was built to turn out 3,500 shells per day. It started on Armistice day and ran three hours, turning out 800 shells, before it was closed. Ralph Gerth of the war department is in charge of the sale. It is reported the Baldwin locomotive works will be one of the principal bidders.

Real estate sales totaling $407,900 in two days are reported by the Chicago real estate auctioneers. Some of them are as follows: Sheridan Eastlake apartments, southwest corner of Sheridan road and Eastlake terrace, twenty-seven flats, for A. Mandelbaum, to A. S. Dyer, for $156,500; three story building at 4649 Sheridan, two stores and twenty-three room hotel above, for I. Hoffman to Aaron Hershinow, for $74,200; southeast corner of Michigan and 43d, to Henry Bloomfield, for $60,000. Mr. Bloomfield plans a big apartment building.

Edgar Martin of Schmidt, Garden & Martin, architects, announces he'll probably begin work next spring on the eight story apartment building at the northwest corner of Delaware and De Witt, to be 50x109.

In furtherance of its plan to be of aid to the housing situation, the Prudential "Insurance Company of America reports 1,628 mortgage loans, totalling $8,268,287, for September and October. These loans, made all over the country, will provide new accommodations for 2,843 families. Since Jan. 1 the loans total $38,383,046, caring for 12,948 families.

The Parmelee company will erect a new baggage transfer and distributing station at 4645-49 Cottage Grove, 75x143, to cost $35,000. Eugene C. Ecker and associates also report a large office and bonded warehouse building, garages and filling station, laboratory, etc., for the U. S. Industrial Alcohol company at the northwest corner of Archer and Western, to cost $100,000.

Start on $100,000 Building at Racine Ave. and 79th

Percy E. Wagner has bought the vacant 175x125 at the northwest corner of Racine and 79th from C. E. Tibbles, for $40,000 and is building a $100,000 store, office and apartment building. Zusch Bros., brokers, also report selling the 150 feet of vacant west of Mr. Wagner's purchase for $30,000 to Ira L. Fleischman for P. E. O'Neil. These are claimed to be record prices for vacant in the neighborhood.

PLAN TALL FLATS AT BITTERSWEET AND LAKE SHORE

With the sale of the vacant 135x115 at the east end of Bittersweet place, overlooking the lake, by the James A. Hart estate to the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, it was learned that a towering apartment building of the Streeterville de luxe type is contemplated by the new owners. Attorney Walter H. Eckert took title for clients whose identity he won't make public at present. He admits they intend to improve with a tall apartment structure, but says definite plans are not yet ready to give out. No architect has yet been engaged. There were sixty revenue stamps on the deed of purchase by Mr. Eckert.

What's Doing on Montrose According to Mr. Rooney

According to B. A. Rooney, realty dealer at 3400 Montrose boulevard, steam shovels are excavating the following Montrose corners: Northwest corner of Bernard, 92x125, two story stores and flats, William Yeschek & Co.; southwest corner Albany, 125x125, stores and flats, Samuel M. Come; southeast corner Sawyer, 100x141, twenty-four flats and six stores by Max Herman.

The following will start in a few days: Northeast corner Whipple, 83x125, stores and flats, Gust Karkazis; northwest Christiana, 34x125, stores and flats, Sturman & Goldberg; northwest Kimball, 28x125, stores, flats and offices, B. A. Rooney.

And in addition to all this activity the business men on Montrose are taking subscriptions for a bank near Kedzie.

'Round the Realty Boards

JOSEPH I. FRANCE

I. Whiteson, chairman of the banquet committee of the Cook County Real Estate board, announces the following additions to the list of speakers for the annual banquet next Saturday evening at the Congress: United States Senator Joseph Irwin France, who will talk on Russia; George Wheeler Hinman Chicago newspaper editor, who will speak on "International Finances and the Allied Debt to America"; Carl D. Thompson will discuss the proposed new Illinois constitution.

Business Manager J. Soule Warterfield of the Chicago Real Estate board issues the following solemn warning: "Names of those who sent in checks for seats at the coming banquet on Dec. 14 will be called in order of their receipt by mail tomorrow at 12 o'clock noon sharp at the board rooms. If the party isn't on hand to step forward and select his table he'll lose his turn. This applies to every one."

No rebel ticket having appeared, it is announced that the regulars, headed by Herman Teninga, as reported in this department last Sunday, have been automatically elected officers and directors of the Cook County Real Estate board for 1923.

CHICAGOANS PLAN DETROIT HOTEL AND 3 THEATERS IN ONE

Here's a suggestion to some of our hotel and theater building gentlemen: Why not combine the two? Of course, we have the somewhat ancient Great Northern, but that's about all. Here comes Detroit with a $7,000,000 fifteen story hotel, with 850 rooms—and three, count 'em three theaters. One will be a big vaudeville house with 2,500 seats, already taken by a big eastern circuit; another will be a 1,400 seat legitimate playhouse, to be operated by one of the two big theater syndicates, and an 1,100 seat intimate type of theater, to be controlled by the other big syndicate.

The local angle to this story is that C. W. and George L. Rapp, architects of the Tivoli, Central Park, Chicago, and countless other big playhouses in Chicago and elsewhere, as well as the new Trianon, said to be the world's most beautiful ballroom, at 62d and Cottage Grove, where the Bal Fantastique will be given, are architects of this big Detroit project.

Louis Smilansky of Detroit will build it, fronting 350 feet on Ohio and 170 feet on Woodward. S. W. Straus & Co. are financing it.

PLANS BUILDING 50 BUNGALOWS AT ELMHURST

Frank W. Moureau, active for several years in subdividing and selling vacant lots in Elmhurst and nearby suburbs, announces that hereafter he intends building moderate priced homes on his subdivisions.

"My program calls for fifty bungalows in Elmhurst to start with," he said. "We've already erected ten sample bungalows, of five rooms and bath, cement basement, and furnace heat. There are two types of homes. Five of these sample bungalows are priced at $5,250 each, and the remaining five at $5,800 each.

"They are being erected on lots 50x75 and 53x205. The terms are $600 cash and $40 per month for the $5,250 bungalows, and $800 cash and $42 monthly for the others.

"We've arranged for financing the erection of fifty of these homes, to be built on our Elmhurst Highlands subdivision, at Elmhurst. The property is improved with water, gas, electric light. The sewers and cement walks will be installed in the early spring."

Mr. Moureau has moved from La Salle street to larger quarters at 80 West Washington.

MORE SERVICE STATION SITES.

The Sinclair Refining company has bought the northeast corner of Rogers and Jarvis from S. Rogers Touhy for $26,000, also the southeast corner of Normal and 69th, from L. Eichberg for $20,000. The Standard Oil bought the northwest corner of 79th and South Park from J. V. Cunningham for $25,000 and the northwest corner of Lincoln and Racine for $36,000.

$1,250,000 Addition to Woodlawn Rialto

Above is the newest addition to Woodlawn's Rialto, a $1,250,000 six story structure at the southwest corner of 64th and Cottage Grove, work on which starts at once. It will contain a sumptuous restaurant with a complete stage and a large dancing floor on the second story. A 176 room hotel will occupy the upper floors. The Garden Building corporation is owner. Jack Lund and Ethel Kendall Lund are stockholders. They may call it the Merry Garden, but the name question is still unsettled. B. Leo Stelf & Co., the architects, announce that they've let the general contract to F. A. Siebold Jr.

A Word from Oak Park

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 1.—I am immensely interested in THE TRIBUNE plan for a wonderful new building. This will be the making of the near north side.

Years ago, while living on the north side, I often deducted an hour or less from the day's plans in order to wander down about these north side streets. They had an appeal—I always imagined the shabby spots remodeled. With others, I suppose, I felt there were hidden and real advantages waiting for genius and the capital.

Since then the Drake, the Wrigley, the Tribune plant, and lesser attractions have paved the way for the coming beauty of this district.

And yet it seems strange that so many of the streets are still neglected. Quaint stucco shops could replace the present shacks at each end of the bridge; two story balcony shops with blue and mauve tile roofs—presenting the "step in" appeal of foreign bazaars. Even a café with veranda service tables for summer, French window upper rooms, from which one could watch the fascinating traffic and the river, maybe as one dined.

So many of the new shabby side streets would make charming and advantageous residence sections. Many of the run down houses could be smartly rehabilitated with little expense. The Walton Tea house, west of the Drake, is an example of this quaint and comparatively easy renovation.

Some of the small lake streets are startlingly peaceful and free from traffic. Gate entrance effects to these, with fountains or dials at the lake ends would make these little residential oases. Fresh paint or stucco, box trees and brass knockers would complete the change.

One can imagine on for this section of the city almost endlessly—let's hope it won't become choked and crowded and "commercialized."

MAUDE WHITTEN.

Beg Your Pardon

Maj. David E. Hannan states that he designed and constructed up to the roof the three story apartment building now being erected at 6543-49 Cottage Grove avenue. As reported in this department last Sunday, Alex. Levy and William J. Klein are now the supervising architects.

EXPERIENCE BIG FACTOR IN BEING GOOD APPRAISER

Paul Loeber Gives Students Pointers.

"One of the foremost requirements of an appraiser, I believe, is a long business experience," Paul C. Loeber told students of real estate at the Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce at the weekly lecture given under the auspices of the Chicago Real Estate board on Tuesday evening. Mr. Loeber is a member of the board's valuation committee, which has broken all records in this country and Canada. It has valued more than $30,000,000 worth of real estate so far this year, with fees exceeding $35,000.

"I don't think an appraiser should be dependent entirely on his fees for a living," said Mr. Loeber. "He should have an independent mind and not be influenced by necessity. An appraiser should consider, independent of any outside influences, all the facts and elements which have any bearing whatsoever on the property before him.

"He should seek the truth as to its value, and not permit himself to be influenced by friendship or sentiment; he should analyze all information possible for him to obtain in the most critical manner and base his conclusions on facts. We should always seek the truth, and only be afraid of making a mistake or going wrong."

Subdivide 14 Acres at North and Harlem Aves.

Here's an item crowded out of this department last Sunday which is of enough general interest to run, even if somewhat late. Talman & Thiele announce that the tract of fourteen acres at the northeast corner of North and Harlem avenues has been acquired and platted into residence lots, 40x204, with some thirty foot business lots on Harlem avenue. The platting of this tract completes the entire sixty-six acres which have been in one family for approximately thirty years. Talman & Thiele have sold approximately fifty acres of the original tract, most of it during the last year. This is just north of Oak Park.

A big week-end supply of hogs, including 13,814 over from Friday, caused a sharp slump in values, the general average dropping 15c to $8.15, lowest since Tuesday, yet 20c above a week ago and $1.45 higher than corresponding Saturday a year ago, when prices were practically lowest in six years. Top at the close of the week $8.35, against $8.20 a week ago.

Over a fourth of the 181,000 hogs received last week were taken by eastern shippers, being the strengthening factor earlier in the week. Speculators also purchased freely, which added tone to the situation. Due to Thanksgiving holiday, receipts last week decreased 34,000, compared with previous week, while the estimated average weight increased slightly, or 232 lbs, against 231 lbs previous week, 222 a year ago, and 215 for the ten year average.

Smallest cattle receipts in nearly two months helped last week's cattle trade, most grades showing 10@30c gain over a week ago, with the general average price of good beef cattle 20c above previous week at $9.65, being $2.25 higher than a year ago.

Sheep Prices Strengthen.

Sheep and yearling values gained strength at the extreme close, with two loads of choice 92 lb yearlings reaching $13.00. Lambs were few on the week-end trade and sold comparatively slowly on a level with the recent high period. Choice lamb values ruled fully 50c above previous Saturday, with feeders steady to strong. Common aged sheep reflected a slight discount, although top kinds sold at an advance. Owing to the Thanksgiving holiday, receipts this week were smallest in nearly three months. Top lambs this week, $15.50, against $14.90 previous week. This week's general average lamb price, $14.35.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 26,000 cattle, 56,000 hogs and 24,000 sheep, against 26,920 cattle, 58,014 hogs, and 27,589 sheep a week ago and 21,903 cattle, 48,121 hogs, and 22,687 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 66,000 cattle, 225,000 hogs, and 84,000 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday range from 50,000 to 65,000. B. Brittain marked 50,000; F. W. Waddell, 52,000; E. R. Gentry, 53,000; Lester Armour and H. H. Moore, 55,000; W. H. Overman, F. R. Burrows, and Edward Morris, 58,000; E. S. Waterbury and R. C. Griffith, 60,000; J. M. Watters, 62,000, and George Chandler, 65,000.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright, 1922: Fairchild News Service.]

LONDON.—Belfast advices report the Cambric Manufacturers' association will continue operations. A committee will draw up a new price list, with quotations 5 to 15 per cent lower than present official quotations. Cheaper cambrics were forced by financial embarassment of several Irish firms and large stocks of linens thrown on the market by the government.

NEW YORK.—Furs for gifts are being featured by retailers more prominently this season than ever before. For several years stores have been encouraging wearing apparel for gifts.

NEW YORK.—Fitted cases, selling for from $10.00 to $75.00 have been favorites among early Christmas shoppers in luggage stores here. A heavy demand for these articles during the past few seasons has led dealers to stock up extensively.

FINANCIAL NOTES

With the end of the current year close at hand, Wall street is beginning to get preliminary figures on earnings of the larger oil companies. Official statements will not be published until around the end of the first quarter of 1923, judging from figures appearing during the last week, the earnings of some of the more prominent companies, because of lower taxes and improved business, will exceed even the best previous year, that of 1920. The Standard of Indiana is expected to show earnings of approximately $61,000,000 on its present capital stock, for 1922. This would be equal to about $50.60 a share on the present stock, or about $28.30 a share on the new stock after payment of the 100 per cent stock dividend declared this last week. Current dividends amount to $4 a share. Figures of the Gulf Oil corporation, made public some time ago, showed that company was earning more than 100 per cent on its old capital, while the same is true of Vacuum. Based on the increased capital, it is calculated that Gulf is earning about $10 a share on the new stock, while the Vacuum is earning between $7 and $8 a share on the increased capital.

October earnings statements of the principal railroads showed up better than had been generally expected, the first fifty-four of the class 1 roads to report showing an aggregate net of $71,200,000 for October as against $44,800,000 in September and $37,800,000 for October of last year.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $517,500,000, a decrease of $46,800,000 from the preceding week, due to the fact that last week contained the Thanksgiving holiday; and also a decline of $15,100,000 from the corresponding week last year, which did not contain a holiday. Balances last week totaled $39,800,000, a decrease of $4,600,000 from the preceding week, but an increase of $1,200,000 over the corresponding week last year. The figures for the week, day by day, follow:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 87,400,000	$ 8,300,000

Lamp Free

42d Anniversary

Forty-two years ago Mr. J. Lewis Cochran, President of Cochran & McCluer Company, came to Chicago from Philadelphia. Firmly believing in the future of our City, he founded this business, which under his guidance and sound business methods has grown until it is recognized as one of the foremost First Mortgage Banking Houses in the country.

How carefully Cochran & McCluer First Mortgage bond issues are selected and safeguarded is proven by our record of forty-two years without loss of a dollar to any investor. In this time there has not been even a foreclosure on any of our bond issues.

Extending Our Service

It is with great satisfaction that we announce the enlargement of our Investment Service covering both cash and monthly payment investing. Our facilities for handling systematic saving and investment accounts are now greater and better than ever. As a special inducement to Cochran & McCluer investors who purchase either for cash or on easy monthly payments a Cochran & McCluer First Mortgage Bond, we are presenting a beautiful Multi-Lite Electric Lamp.

Lamp Free

The Multi-Lite Lamp enables you to have any degree of light you want, from full strength down to "barely glowing" by merely moving the switch. This feature can be had with no other lamp. The style is refined and will be an addition to any household.

7% First Mortgage Bonds

You will have twelve 7% Bond issues to choose from. All are secured by first mortgage on New High Grade Apartment Buildings in choice residential districts on the North Side. Bonds can be purchased for cash, on easy monthly payments, or may be reserved for January delivery. Bonds are in $1,000, $500, $100 denominations.

This will aid thousands, as there is no more suitable Christmas gift than a Cochran & McCluer Bond, or Lamp, or both.

No Salesmen to Urge You

We maintain no force of salesmen to call on prospective clients. Our customers are our salesmen, therefore we are able to give this token of our appreciation to our old customers and as a special inducement to the investing public to become acquainted with us and our service. We want to enjoy the same friendly relationship with you that we do with our old clients. Come in and get acquainted. Do not hesitate because your investment will be small. Our experience has shown that small investments grow large. We want to give you one of these lamps. It may help solve the Christmas problem. Come in and see us.

You will receive the same courteous attention at either of our branch offices, 1125 Bryn Mawr, or 4622 North Western Avenue.

Providing Safe Investments Through Upbuilding Chicago's North Shore

The popularity of the residential section adjoining Lincoln Park on Chicago's North Shore is widely known. The heavy demand for high grade apartments in this neighborhood is due to its close proximity to the Lake with its beaches; to Lincoln Park with its recreational facilities; and to the Loop with its varied attractions. All combine to make this attractive spot one of great convenience, refinement and beauty.

The American Bond & Mortgage Company, which has foreseen the choice and rapidly developing sections of Chicago and other large cities, is offering at present, first mortgage real estate bonds secured by the better grade apartment buildings in this district, including The Embassy, The Churchill, The Marlborough, The Sheridan Surf, and The Harbor View. The successful record of this long established company is convincing proof of the sound judgment of its officers in regard to land values, building costs and rental incomes.

In addition to the sound worth and strong potential earning capacity of each particular property at the time the bond issue is offered, the constantly appreciating value of these North Shore sites will increase the already ample margin of security. This assured safety of principal and interest together with a 7% yield make these American Bond offerings most attractive to conservative investors.

Ask for booklet T123, describing these and other choice issues.

Thousands of investors thruout the United States have purchased from us many millions of dollars of First Mortgage Bonds, secured by improved city properties, and without the loss of one dollar.

You see how the telephone, electric light and other public service companies strive to get small stockholders. Why? Because every stockholder is a loyal friend. That's our idea, too.

Germany Imports More; Exports Show Decrease

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—The trade balance against Germany was considerably increased as the result of a large increase in the imports and a decrease in exports during October, says a semi-official statement made public today. The statement reads:

"German imports during October, according to statistics compiled by the federal government, approximated 531,700,000 gold marks, while export declarations amounted to 289,900,000 gold marks. In consequence of the great increase in imports and a slight decrease in exports the trade balance against Germany was greatly augumented, increasing from about 131,000,000 gold marks in September to 240,000,000 gold marks in October. For the period, January to October, the adverse trade balance is estimated at 750,000,000 gold marks."

Diversification.

Diversity strengthens the investor's position. The wise investor seeks to distribute his holdings over a variety of securities rather than to put all his funds into one or two issues. Clever salesmen specialising in the sale of one security may convince the investor that he is purchasing a sound security, and then urge him to put into it every cent he can raise. They use the argument that if the investment is good, the more money put into it the greater will be the return. That is true providing the investment is good and providing it remains so. But, no matter how good an investment may appear at present, no one can be sure that it will remain so. The securities of some of the strongest corporations of today may become weak and speculative a few years hence. Witness the large number of industrials which have been forced to pass their dividends after paying them for years and the railroads which formerly paid regularly, but which for years have been unable to do so. Conditions constantly are changing and altering the prosperity of various corporations and even whole industries or routes of commerce.

The investor who puts all his funds into one corporation or even one branch of industry stands to lose all through the failure of that one corporation or adverse conditions in that particular industry. On the other hand, if he has distributed his funds over a number of corporations in various industries, the failure of one means the loss only of a portion of his investments. His chances of success are increased, generally speaking, in proportion to the number and diversity of his holdings.

There is a large number of diversified investments from which to select. The four principal groups are the railroads, industrials, public utilities, and government and municipals. The latter include United States government, state, and municipal, as well as the various foreign government securities. Industrials include a very large variety of industries and trades, such as metals, the leather industry, packing and various food products, mining, clothing, automobiles, oil, mail order, and a thousand and one others. Then there are real estate and farm mortgage bonds, federal farm loan and joint stock land bank bonds, banks and insurance company stocks, etc., etc.

With such a variety to choose from, diversification is easy. It is, of course, of prime importance to select a strong representative in each branch in which one intends to invest. Wide diversification of strong investments is the ideal situation for the investor.

MARKET IGNORES BULLISH CABLES; GRAINS GO LOWER

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bearish sentiment predominated in the grain markets, and while there was a small bulge at the opening as the result of bullish cables on wheat from Argntine, the finish was heavy with net losses of ¼@⅝c on wheat, while corn was off 1@1¼c, oats ¼@⅜c, and rye ⅝@1c. Lard declined 10@12½c, with ribs nominally 7½c higher.

Short covering was a big factor in bringing about a strong upturn in all grains early in the week, combined with the prospects of a reduction in the estimated wheat surplus from Argentina, but the undertone was not as strong as recently, and the finish was on a good reaction from the best figures. As compared with a week ago, wheat was ⅛@2⅝c higher; corn up ⅝@1½c; oats, ⅜c higher to ⅛c lower, and rye, 1⅜c lower to 1⅜c higher, the latter on May. Lard finished 2½c higher to 5c lower, and ribs 15c higher.

Support Is Lacking.

Further rains were reported in Argentina, with reports suggesting a further reduction in the yield in the nothern part of that country. Liverpool ignored the break in America the previous day and closed ⅛@¾d higher. There was fair commission house buying of May and July at the start, but the market flattened out later, and it took but little selling by local traders to start values downward. Lack of aggressive support was an outstanding feature a good part of the day, although at $1.16 for May sufficient buying on resting orders was in evidence to check the decline.

Export demand was slow, with little change in premiums in any of the leading markets.

Corn and oats were under pressure a good part of the day and averaged lower. Cash houses sold December corn in small lots, and the December-May difference narrowed in consequence. Local sentiment was bearish, with the lack of speculative interest counting heavily against values for both grains. Country offerings of corn showed a tendency to increase, with one Springfield, Ill., house buying 55,000 bu on overnight bids. Shipping demand for both grains was fair.

Scattered selling was on in rye from the start, and while there was talk of big sales to exporters they lacked confirmation. The seaboard bid within ¼c of a working basis for 400,000 bu.

Provisions Average Lower.

Provisions averaged lower with grains and hogs and on reports of a less active foreign demand for lard. Cash lard sold at 11½c, or ⅝c under the nominal quotation of the previous day. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date is 762,000, against 676,000 last year. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export business in grains at the seaboard was slow, with sales estimated at 100,000 bu wheat, 200,000 bu corn and 100,000 bu rye. There was 100,000 bu rye sold at Duluth to the seaboard for export, and bids were received here for 400,000 bu within ⅜c of a working basis.

Chicago handlers sold 22,000 bu wheat, 390,000 bu corn and 100,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, and 30,000 bu oats and 5,000 bu rye were sold to go to store.

Deliveries on December contracts aggregated 11,000 bu wheat, 31,000 bu corn, 5,000 bu oats, and 490,000 bu rye, while at Minneapolis 30,000 bu wheat was delivered.

Cash wheat premiums were firm at 12@12½c over December for No. 2 red and 2@2½c over for No. 2 hard. Receipts, 40 cars. Kansas City was 1@2c lower, with considerable carried over unsold. Omaha was off 1@2c and St. Louis was unchanged to 1c lower.

An easy undertone prevailed in the cash corn market. Bulk of the offerings was of new grain. New No. 2 mixed was 1@1½c and yellow and white 1¼@2c over December, with No. 3 grades ⅝@1¼c over and No. 4 grades 1¼@2½c under the future. Receipts, 245 cars. Outside markets were weak and unchanged to 2c lower, with Kansas City leading.

Demand for cash oats fair. No. 2 white sold at 1⅛@1¼c, and No. 3 white at ⅝@1c over December. Receipts, 141 cars.

·WORLD'S·GRAIN·MARKET·NEWS·

Grain traders had the impression at the close yesterday that the action of the distant futures in declining the past two days in the face of higher cables and bullish Argentine news suggests that someone is selling enough on the hard spots to more than satisfy all buyers, who appear unable to overcome its effect due to light outside trade.

Locally many of the traders were more bearish on the price than for any other reason. Many are suspicious and are going slower. Those who are favorable to the buying side on all breaks say it is only a question of a short time before the real situation will assert itself and they predict higher prices. With the close of navigation at hand those bearish expect grains to accumulate more freely and have a depressing effect on values.

It is said that the open interest in December wheat, corn, and oats is large. The movement of all grains is above the average and cars are easier over the greater part of the west and central west. But it will take a big accumulation here to fill all the short sales. December rye is well evened up by the deliveries of 1,141,000 bu the past two days.

The car situation is easier throughout the greater part of the grain shipping states and the worst of the shortage is past. More grain is moving in different directions than usual and accumulations are small. In the southwest refrigerator cars are being used for handling grain. Primary receipts of all grains last week aggregated 22,875,000 bu, the largest at this time since 1918, being 5,200,000 bu below that mark. Wheat receipts increased 1,029,000 bu for the week and corn increased 339,000 bu. The latter was 708,000 bu less than last year, while wheat increased 4,088,000 bu and oats gained 2,234,000 bu.

Further reports of locusts invading the province of Entre Rios, Argentina, are being received in private cables. Last year the corn acreage in that section was 200,000.

Soliciting the Services of Four Real Executives

The Better Tires Company, national wholesale distributor of tires and automobile supplies, is desirous of opening negotiations immediately with several men of high executive ability. In the short period of two years The Better Tires Company has forged ahead from a modest beginning to a business calculated in the millions. Our growth has been steady, consistent, and financially healthy. We are now laying out our next year's program. To effectively carry out this program on as broad a scale as we now anticipate we find need of several executives who can, by virtue of their experience, training, character and personality, assume a more-than-average amount of responsibility. To such men we offer a splendid future in a rapidly growing organization that has all the enthusiasm of youth—and is backed by conservative management.

SALES MANAGER—We need a man who is capable of organizing and directing a force of about 100 salesmen—a man of character and personality—a man who knows selling and who can develop the men whom he directs.

SALES PROMOTION MANAGER—Here is an opportunity for a man who knows how to secure business by mail. He will be placed in charge of a department of 25 high grade men whose duties are to develop by mail our present customers. Must be a tactful yet forceful executive.

OPERATING MANAGER—This position calls for an executive that is far more than an office manager. Should have mail order or jobbing experience. The ability to organize, direct and control a great mass of detailed routine is essential. This is a big job for a big man.

ADVERTISING SUPERVISOR—To plan and schedule the work of a large department and relieve the present Advertising Manager for other duties. Must have an all-round training in direct advertising work—plan and execute complete campaigns from the idea to the finished product. A careful, systematic worker with plenty of vision and merchandising sense will be required to fill this big job.

Men of the calibre we are looking for do not ordinarily scan the want ads. That is why we are using this means of reaching them. If you think you are ideally fitted for any one of the positions described above, write us fully about yourself, your experience, salary desired, etc. Your letter will be kept in strictest confidence. Do not call in person or telephone—only applications by letter will be given consideration.

Just a word—to You—

Mr. Investor

Wouldn't you like to establish an IMMEDIATE ESTATE of from $10,000 to $150,000 (payable in cash) for your family and your own old age? Where you would never be required to pay the principal sum, just the interest.

Where you would share in the dividend earnings of a large Company and if YOU lived to old age and needed the money you could, after having had years of protection, call the deal off and take down the bulk of, if not all, the deposits made.

Or receive a monthly life income greater than the same investment would have produced if it were invested in 4% gold bonds at compound interest for the entire period, provided you were 40 years of age or older, at the time of entry (younger ages almost as good results).

In my 37 years of Life Insurance experience I consider this the finest Life Insurance Contract I ever offered, and practically at ordinary life rates—many ages less—backed by one of the best Old Line Companies in the business, now in its 44th year with assets of over $50,000,000.00.

It is open to professional and business men generally, all lines, who are preferred risks and not over 65. For full information just phone or write. (Give age and occupation.)

The New York Times.

New York, Dec. 2.—[Special.]—Today's week-end markets brought no halt in the general recovery of prices on financial markets. Stocks went fractionally higher, the investment bond market was distinctly strong, and the forward movement in the foreign exchanges was perhaps the most noteworthy incident of the day.

It carried sterling to $4.52⅝, thus crossing the previous best figure of the week and year. It also brought the Italian lira to the season's high price of 4.68, reached on Nov. 14, when the "bear speculators" in exchange—who had driven down the rate to 3.83⅛ three weeks before on the theory that the new Fascisti government were dark conspirators—were trying to extricate themselves from their awkward scrape. The franc did not recover today; it fell back fractionally.

Rise in Sterling Is Remarkable.

The relation of market realities to speculative imaginings will hardly be determined for some little time to come. On the whole, the rise in the pound sterling is the most remarkable of all these movements. It is quite as much a psychological as a financial phenomenon; but one wonders whether the British exchequer is at these present prices "accumulating dollars" against the April semi-annual interest date on its debt to our treasury.

There was scarcely any sign on the stock exchange of the week-end realising which is usual after so sharp an advance in prices as has just occurred. Apparently, however, there were some fairly large profit taking sales of stocks bought for speculation early in the week. But even such offerings were quickly taken up for purchasers attracted into the market by the sight of changing values.

Bond Market Also Stronger.

Taken as a whole, the bond market showed more widely distributed strength than on any recent day. Liberty bonds moved up another fraction with the rest. The most active of them and the new treasury 4¼ per cents have gained some ½ point for the week.

One proof of the altered character of these markets was the fact that Wall street appeared to take no interest whatever in the ultimatum solemnly laid down by the Washington "radicals" as to the laws which congress 'now must pass. A little while ago the financial district would have been shuddering at every successive dispatch from Washington on the subject. Today it was able even to see some humor in this league of twenty or thirty public men, the greater number of whom have rarely been able to agree with any one else, and under the leadership of a statesman with whom no one else has ever found it possible to agree.

British Commodity Prices Rise.

The recovery in British prices of commodities which began in October after a virtually continuous decline since September of 1921 is shown by the London Economist's monthly index number to have continued last month, although at a slower pace. The average is still about 1 per cent below what was reached in the middle of 1921, whereas the American average of a month ago had risen 3½ per cent from last year's low level and has probably risen farther during November.

The weekly statement of the clearing house shows an increase of practically $2,500,000 in loans and discounts. Net demand deposits also increased over $35,000,000, now standing at $2,858,000,000. Note circulation and reserve in the Federal Reserve bank of member banks showed gains. These changes were accompanied by an increase of $1,900,000 in the deficit in reserves, so that there was no actual deficit for the week of $7,472,000. Details of the statement, with comparisons, follow:

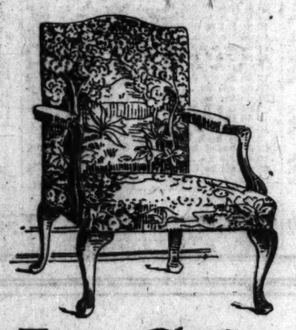
Give to the Home this Christmas

The Furniture Store Holds Lasting Gifts

THE gifts that come from a furniture store are things that will be cherished for a lifetime, often for generations.

For a gift of importance within the family, nothing will give the thrill of the new dining set or bedroom set that has been wanted perhaps for years, or the more comfortable chairs that will make the living-room a room to be proud of.

And for the innumerable lesser gifts that Christmas calls for, the Gift Shop and our collection of occasional furniture offer a hundred and one suggestions for gifts of permanence.



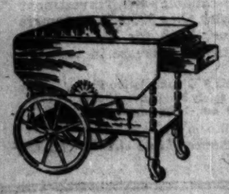
Easy Chairs

A chair makes a nice gift because it can be so personal.

A man wants a good deep chair for reading and often a woman needs a comfortable little rocker for sewing.

And just as a gift to the family to brighten up the living-room and provide another comfortable seat, the chair illustrated is admirable. It is covered in the very fashionable hand-loom tapestry. Price, $196.

Morocco leather easy chairs from $315 to $375; Overstuffed easy chairs from $57 to $185; Occasional chairs from $34 to $340; Ladies' rockers from $25 to $134.

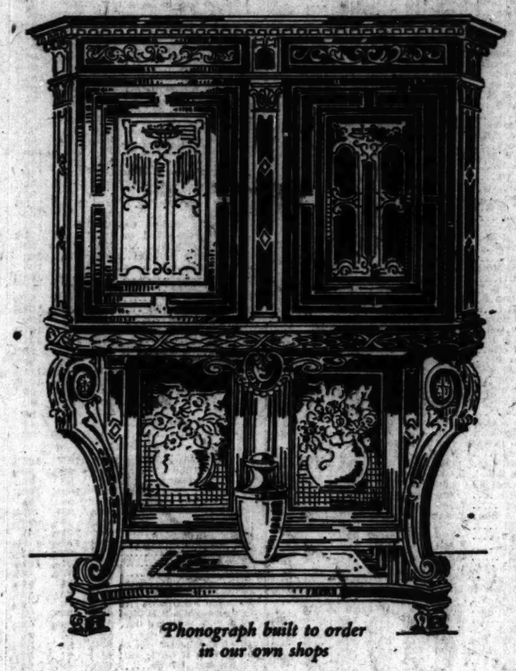


Small Furniture and Occasional Pieces

THE small furniture department solves many a Christmas problem.

Here are the little personal pieces of furniture that make life pleasant, the things one never buys but always waits to be given and then wonders how it was possible to get along without them.

Humidor cabinets	$37.50 to $99
Tea wagons	$37.50 to $165
Phone sets	$14.75 to $44
Nests of tables	$27.50 to $92
Reading chairs	$63 to $375
Chifforobes	$79 to $253
Phonographs	$100 to $600
Imported English furniture	$180 to $425
Desks and Secretaries	$28.50 to $675
End tables and Occasional tables	$9.25 to $105
Smoking stands	$2 to $23
Sewing tables	$8.75 to $154
Gateleg tables	$25 to $127
Ferneries	$19.75 to $68



Phonograph built to order in our own shops

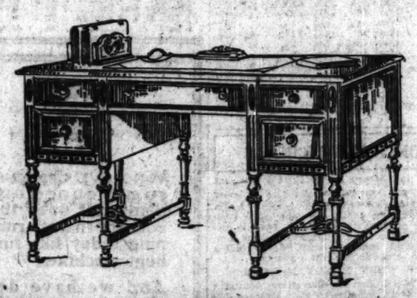
Fine Phonographs

THIS sketch illustrates the completeness of our phonograph service. This Case was made in our own shops for one of our customers whose magnificent home demanded something more impressive than anything ready-made.

Besides being ready to build and equip phonographs, we have an excellent showing of a standard make. Prices are $100 to $600.

The Sofa is the Center of the Living-Room

A good, comfortable sofa can be the making of the living-room. This one will add greatly to the beauty of the room besides providing a fine lounging place. It is of mahogany with a mohair cover and special at $226. Other Sofas from $118 to $760.



Desks and Writing Tables

NOWADAYS housekeeping requires a desk as much as any business. Schoolchildren, too, need desks and often the head of the house wants one as well. In fact, a desk is a pretty safe gift for anyone.

This Tobey-made desk is of walnut, beautifully polychromed, with carved moldings, legs and stretchers. Price, $260.

Spinet desks from $47 to $264; Writing tables from $28.50 to $95; Large table desks from $106 to $633; Chest desks from $52 to $220; Secretaries from $77 to $275.

The GIFT SHOP

Where the whole shopping list can be checked off

EVERY year Gift Shop patrons come back to do a large part of their Christmas shopping in this pleasant, quiet atmosphere.

One of the Gift Shop's greatest attractions is the wide range of its appeal. Here in a single quiet hour one will probably find as many suitable suggestions for gifts as in a full day of tiresome trudging from counter to counter and store to store.

Notice, for instance, the wealth of suggestion in just the few items mentioned below, and then remember that another of the Gift Shop's charms is the irreproachable good taste of everything in it.

Sheffield Silver	$2 to $60	Bridge Sets	$1.50 to $5

Grandfather's Clocks

OLD or new, the hall clock is an heirloom. The minute it takes its place in the house it becomes perhaps the greatest of family treasures.

A grandfather's clock, then, should be selected with the greatest of care, especially because its making calls for a high degree of skill from two widely different crafts, that of the clockmaker and that of the furniture builder.

In presenting our hall clocks and the service incidental to them we call especial attention to our clock department and the very high skill of the men in it.

Few stores in this country have made the effort to become so thoroughly versed in hall clocks and their cases.

Fashions Beauty Contests

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

FANCIES OF THE DAY.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—As the person who was describing it said to me, "A bow of pink and silver finds itself at the front of the dress."

They have a way of describing things to me when I am looking straight at them, but I am just as well content. I think, however, I could have discovered that for myself. And the important thing about it is that it carries an axiom—isn't that what you call the grand truths, universal and eternal, albeit slightly impersonal, that follow a demonstration in geometry? Or is it a corollary?

Anyway, it is one of those things that Mr. Einstein is engaged in upsetting, such as a straight line being the shortest distance between points. He will never upset any of the fundamental truths that govern that bow in its position in infinity, and as for the question of the distances, I would suggest that he walk off some of these angular routes round Paris, and be content with the judgment of the crow.

But my job is to demonstrate the truth which the bow carries and let Mr. Einstein work out his conundrums alone. I should say we are finding the costumes much less "charge" than the buyers found them last year. You know there was scarcely one of these people who could not say "trop charge" as if he had been born in France. Now those who are here are casting about to learn how to say that it would not hurt if there were a little more garnishment on some costumes.

I was going to say that dressmakers seem to be learning a little from the art galleries and to be "setting" their decorations with a little restful space around them. But that would depend on what art galerie you had in mind. Not the Louvre. It might take lessons from the dressmakers in the matter of hanging. But perhaps the galeries in Amsterdam taught one of the grand couturie how to hang that bow.

Bow of pink and silver perching on black velvet frock.

Gold metal with velvet train designed for Queen of Serbia.

Bouffante line for evening is still holding its own.

Stripe of velvet and squirrel fashion these cuffs and collar.

The dress is of blue black velvet, with that one little wistful ornament set on it, dangling a pendant of pink beads.

And so with many costumes. They seem to be merely the soft, restful background, sometimes draped just a little, for a pin jabbing the hip or a buckle without any belt to it. Certainly a sash trimming is one of the fancies of the day. Here for this example of the present mode, a ruffle of gauze finds itself edging the bottom of the skirt, thereby putting the dress out of the running as a useful member of one's wardrobe. The person describing it to me said that the ruffle married into the black velvet, and if so, the ceremony is performed with pink silk embroidery.

As for the throat line, you see they never did succeed in pushing those round necks back into the land of the passe. I think the most useful idea this woman contributes to a practical world is in the unique management of the fur garnishment to her mantle. The entire front of the cape is edged with a wide border of deep white fur which gives the impression of being bound or tied at intervals. The bands that bind it are of silver and pink lame, brocaded in stripes.

The second showing is of a dress made by Redfern for the queen of Serbia, whose mother is the queen of Roumania. The way you can tell it is for a queen is by its train. They always go in for trains, and of a different form than ours. I should think it was almost sufficient reason for not being a queen, when you consider what a bother just a little ribbon train spilling over from your sash can be.

This one is square, and would seem to call for a page at either corner of it. The material is taupe colored velvet, and it is lined with ermine—veritable; not rabbit, which is replacing it so rapidly over here. It must have taken almost all Mr. Redfern's ration of ermine for the season to line that train.

The dress itself might be a debutante's dance frock or a continuation of a blouse I was not long since describing to you, which was of crepe de chine studded with steel disks, like armor. This costume also gives the impression of being a coat of mail, but it gets its effect with cloth of metal in gold.

The third dress is also something practical. I thought it important at this juncture that it should appear just as a little reminder that the bouffant line for evening is not passe.

The other day at Lanvin's a dress in the loveliest shade of blue I have ever seen stood at the head of the stairs for a long time, in a manner that I regarded as not altogether artless, presumably waiting for its turn to appear in the long procession of the models. But I thought it was in a manner holding its own in the face of the season's long parade of straight silhouettes. She has many made along these lines, and so have the other houses.

This one is of pink mousseline de soie embroidered in ruchings of tulle on pink ribbon. The dress is trimmed on one side with a cocarde, an extremely large one, in silver with silver streamers falling from it to a point below the hem.

And now, as the grand finale, for something practical. Here is an interesting and decorative black velvet coat, fresh from the hands of Worth, with squirrel collar and cuffs. The fur is managed in the manner of the day, being put on in strips, alternating with the velvet. If you ask me, I should say it is a style born out of economy. Not, of course, economy for your pocketbook, but for fur. There isn't much of it in Europe, and now you have to pay, not only for it, but for the spot it ought to occupy—that is to say, for the places occupied by the velvet, because there wasn't enough fur in the world to make the garnishment in it solidly.

WHEN KINDNESS TAKES A HAND

HERE is a story of how little it takes many times to change despair to happiness for struggling human beings.

Several months ago we heard of the case of Mrs. C. If ever a family seemed pursued by Nemesis, it was hers. She had one child, her husband, struggling against illness, was spending his last remnants of strength in desperate efforts to work. Mrs. C. had been working, but the prospects of another child foretold the end of that. They were about to be evicted from their furnished room, and then the husband's health failed and he had to give up work. That was the state of affairs in the C. family when human kindness took a hand.

One person gave a bed that was no longer needed at home. Another gave some chairs, a third a rug, and before long the C. family had furnishings for a little home. The home was found—at $13 a month!—and the family moved in. But with what a different outlook! The food burden was lightened by gifts of staples and canned goods. Mrs. C.'s wages were enough now to see them through for six months—and in that time they hoped Mr. C. could recover health and strength. So he went to a sanitarium and Mrs. C. "carried on."

Last week she gave up work in order to welcome her new baby, and Mr. C. came home—not entirely well, but able and eager to take up the provider's burden. Their problems are not solved yet by any means, but kindness had cut down the burden to a weight they could carry, and that was what they needed. They feel themselves on the upgrade now, and barring misfortune will go through the future with happiness and give the next generation children reared in the belief that life is good; children who will be a credit to the country. It is a simple story—but worth while, isn't it? And the makings of more stories of just this sort are below—the appeals of people who need just the little help that made life bright for the C. family. If you can spare the articles asked by one or more of them you will have the making of similar happiness. And won't that be worth while?

Playing Santa Claus.

"Do you suppose any of our kind readers would have a rocking horse no longer in use? I have a little boy 5 years. He has been ill. Now his greatest desire is for Santa Claus to bring him a nice big rocking horse. I haven't the money to buy one, but could fix and brighten it up. Could some one help me make my little boy happy this Christmas? M. E. D."

Making the wish of a child come true—and such a modest one as this is, too—is one of the kindest deeds one can do. Please, some one, look through the storeroom, and send on to this small boy the rocking horse his little heart craves.

This List Is Interesting.

"I have some new shoes to give to some one who could use them—sizes 4½ A and 3½ C; also black suede oxfords, size 3½ A—not new, but fairly good.

"I have an old settee which could be used if the leg were fixed; also a couple of pictures, a scarf, and a helmet. Some patient sleeping out might like them.

"If these are worth offering will be glad to present them when called for or would be glad to mail scarf and helmet. H. H. H."

New shoes should interest girls who can wear size 4½ A or 3½ C. And we know some convalescent who sleeps out o' doors these cold night will be delighted to receive the helmet and scarf. Thank you.

In Need of Clothes.

"I have heard of your work in helping poor people and I would appreciate it if you could help me. I am a widow with three children, all of whom are girls, the youngest is 1 year, the next youngest is 3, and the oldest is 5. We are all badly in need of clothes.

"Mrs. C. N."

It isn't much to ask, is it? I hope some one answers the widow's plea soon.

They Can't Be Separated.

"Have a mother cat and five kittens born Nov. 3. I'd like to find a home for them before severe weather sets in. The kittens cannot be separated from the mother cat. "M. McC."

If you are interested, please make early application.

Asks for Wheel Chair.

"I am writing in behalf of a poor family much in need of a wheel chair. I wonder if any of your kind readers has one no longer in use.

"There are five children in the family and it is impossible for them to meet all the necessary requirements. The invalid child is 11 years old and has to be carried around like a baby.

"It is very hard on the mother.

"Mrs. D."

If you have a wheel chair that is not being used, won't you please let this 11 year old have it, if only for a time?

Sorrow and Sickness.

"I am writing to ask if you know of any one who has a coat or clothing of any kind which she no longer needs. It would be of great use to my sister. Sorrow has broken up her little home. She has two children and her husband is in a sanitarium, suffering from tuberculosis. Her oldest boy of 4 is in a home for cripples with a tubercular knee. Sister works to support the other little boy and herself, but she hasn't a coat and no warm clothes of any kind. She has a terrible cold now—she can't talk—just on account of not having warm clothing. Please try to help her if you can. She wears sizes 36 or 38. Thank you. Mrs. M. W."

Many people throw away clothing that to others would be a boon indeed, and it only needs a plea like Mrs. W.'s to warn us that we are wasteful. The address is at your service, dear readers.

Books to Give.

"I have a number of books in French fiction and text books—which I'll give to any one who will call for them. E. A. M."

Almost Anything Welcome.

"Will some reader help Mrs. S. until she can help herself? Her husband died recently and she has seven small children dependent upon her. She is in great need, and would appreciate anything done for her. Clothing, food, etc., would be welcome.

"Mrs. G."

Seven dependent children! Think it over, my friends, and try to help, please.

Nothing Left for Mother.

"You have helped so many I know you will try to help me. I have two little boys and it takes everything I can get together to buy things for them, which leaves me out. I wonder if some of your readers would have a winter coat, size 36 or 38, that I could have. I will gladly pay postage for it.

"C. E."

Does this remind you of the mother who used to buy things for you before she ever got them for herself? And won't some of you be glad to repay your debt to her a little by helping this generous mother?

Do you remember—of course you do—how your husband proposed to you? Where and how did it happen? Was he scared to death, and weren't you on the verge of nervous prostration, too? For, of course, you knew he was going to do it—or didn't you? Perhaps he isn't your husband, but one of the fellows you had to "turn down." How about that? Tell us about it? This goes double, for we want to hear from the men, too. A dollar for every letter printed. Address Proposal Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

The Queerest Boss I Ever Had

There are good bosses and bad bosses, and then again there are bosses who are just queer. Will you ever be able to forget the queerest boss you ever had? The eccentricities, and the frowns, and the curses he caused you? Was it his attire that yielded the comedy? Some odd personal habit? Some eccentricity that reduced you to despair? Write out your story, using one side of the paper only and outline it as briefly as possible and send it to The Queerest Boss Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter published.

Spur to Business.

My queerest boss was manager of a telephone company. He invariably placed long distance calls C. O. D. After getting his party on the line and talking for a minute, he would ask him to hold the wire; then he would walk leisurely into the long distance room and inspect the records of the call. Returning to his private office at the other end of the hall, he would finish the conversation while the party at the other end of the line wondered why his telephone bill was so large. It certainly annoyed the operators.

A. C. H.

Keeping Her Guessing.

My queerest boss was a young neuropsychiatrist on the staff of a large hospital. On the days he would dictate to me, we would journey by elevator to his office where I sat at the side of his desk facing him. He would take five or ten minutes to hunt for the cases of examinations he wanted to dictate about. While he was hunting, he would invariably sing, "On the level, you're a little devil, but I'll soon make an angel of you." After he had collected all of his paraphernalia he would lean far back in his swivel chair and start to dictate. In about five minutes he would pull out the bottom drawer of his desk and rest his feet on that; in a little while he would pull out the second drawer and put his feet on that; in about twenty minutes out would come the third drawer and he'd rest his feet on that, and finally he would perch his feet on top of the desk. I often wondered if his next move would be to put his feet on my head. C. G.

One of the Vain Ones.

My queerest boss was a man who insisted on wearing extreme shoes. He kept a pair of bedroom slippers in the office and every morning he put them on and wore them around the office all day, changing to his street shoes only at lunch time and at night. One day the janitor carried them off, and he simply went around in stockinged feet until the office boy got back with another pair. L. R. S.

Of an Economical Turn.

The queerest boss I ever worked for was a man just elected to a political job.

I had been in the habit of using shorthand books with a line down the middle of the page. When I went to his office I was instructed to order the unlined books. In taking down his notes, I did not go clear across the page to the left side.

During dictation he would say to me, at least a dozen times, "Save the paper. Stay to the left."

I would have thought nothing of this, but he is wealthy and prominent.

L. S.

Luckily, He Traveled.

My queerest boss favored us only once in a while.

He always wired when he was coming, and once the office was made ready for him. First all desks were thoroughly cleaned out and only the firm's paper left in them. No stenographer dared to keep one personal possession in her desk.

Then all scratch pads were hidden, as the boss was economical and insisted that we use old envelopes for scratch paper. Stenographers bought their own note books and pencils.

When he was in town every one came to work half an hour earlier and waited at night until he had gone. No one ever spoke a word to another unless absolutely necessary, as that was wasting the firm's time. The manager took the boss to luncheon. The boss never was known to pay for them.

A stenographer was ill a week, and the amount was deducted from her monthly salary, although she had worked overtime for three months before. S. C. S.

Stamp Lore

by DORIS BLAKE

IF you stick a stamp upside down on the upper left hand corner of the envelope, your sweetheart may interpret your message to be "I love you." If you receive a letter with the postage stamp stuck crosswise on the upper left hand corner, woe is yours, for that means the sender's confession of allegiance to another. "My heart is another's" is the stamp language interpretation.

If you want to say "Good-by, sweetheart," stick the stamp straight up and down in the upper left hand corner of the envelope. And if you receive a letter so stamped it may mean that he is just going away for a time, and it may mean that he will be gone forever.

When you have made up your mind that you wish to discontinue a correspondence, stick the stamp upside down on the upper right hand corner of the envelope. If you receive a letter with the stamp thus placed you may as well conclude that your letters are not welcome. "Write no more" is love's interpretation of this position of the stamp. But if a letter should come to you with a stamp in the middle, at the right hand edge, unless you wish to give offense, you must get ready to answer at once, for the meaning of this position is "Write immediately."

If his last letter contained a proposal, and you wish not to keep him in suspense any longer than is absolutely necessary, stick your stamp in the center at the top of your envelope and he'll understand and rejoice, for that means "Yes." But sad and heavy will be his heart if you place the stamp in the center of the bottom of the envelope, for that means "No." If he wants to make known to you before you open his letter that a proposal is contained therein, he should stick the stamp at right angles on the upper right hand corner of his envelope, and then you'll understand he is asking "Do you love me?"

If you are already engaged you may stick the stamp upside down on the line with his surname, and he must interpret this as "I am engaged." But if you are willing and want to say "Accept my love," stick the stamp straight up and down on a line with his surname. If you feel quite violently on the subject of the one who is after your heart, stick the stamp on at a right angle in the upper left hand corner of the envelope, for that means "I hate you."

If you cannot stifle the longing to see your loved one, and you're not ashamed to have the world know it, stick the stamp at a right angle on the line with the surname of your beloved. This means "I long to see you."

If you have been introduced to one whose friendship you feel would be a desirable thing, write her a note and ask her if you may call, and stick the postage stamp in the top corner at the right, just as you do when you write a business letter, and your message will mean "I wish your friendship."

Another of the series of articles by Antoinette Donnelly on "The Twelve Most Beautiful Women in America" appears in the Coloroto section of The Sunday Tribune today.

20-Carload Sale of PHONOGRAPHS

At Less Than the Wholesale Prices!!

Small payment Down—Terms If You Wish as Low as $1.00 a Week—Buy now for Christmas Delivery

Extraordinary conditions allow us to offer a return sale of one of the most successful Phonograph Sales ever held in America. Last October we bought 9 carloads and were sold out in 3 days!

Here's the reason why we can sell these splendid machines at such ridiculously low prices: The maker of these machines was heavily indebted to the banks! Money was tight—and the banks forced a liquidation sale! Therefore we have purchased through their agent the 20 carloads above mentioned.

And we bought 20 whole carloads because we know the excellence of these phonographs, the superb motor, the beautiful cabinet work! We know from the way nine carloads went last October that the music loving people of Chicago will quickly absorb this great quantity of machines because the values are without parallel.

Examine the Motor! Look at the Cabinet work! Marvel at the finish and the Price We Ask!

These Phonographs Play Any Make of Record—are guaranteed for one year—same as any other make. Standard motor equipment—can always be repaired if necessary.

THE POTTERS

Blue Ribbon Comics

by J. P. McEvoy

PROLOGUE.

Now, indeed, is a pretty kettle of fish: Mr. and Mrs. Miller, the proud parents of Red Miller, are calling on the Potters for the first time to discuss the impending wedding of Mamie and Red . . . little do they know, however, that Mamie has broken off her engagement with Red, and that Red, heartsick, went out to drown his sorrow and is even now bringing the almost completely submerged remains back to the Potter home . . . what will the Millers say if they see Red like this? . . . what will Pa and Ma say? . . . meanwhile, the Millers, blissfully unaware of the tragedy that impends, are tossing the ball of conversation back and forth with the Potters . . . let us loiter on the sidelines and ponder the result.

Scene: The Potter Living Room.

It is evening . . . the Potter living room has been "fixed over" for the Millers' visit; that is, the piano is now where the couch used to be, and the couch, one of those disappearing beds, is where the piano used to be. Such radical changing, effected three or four times a year, provides Ma with an almost satisfactory substitute for new furniture . . . it is also an almost sufficient substitute for travel and new scenes . . . in the old, old days, Ma, when she tired of her old cave, would have gone out and got another one . . . today, she moves the furniture about . . .

MR. MILLER (tall and dignified, concrete on abstract subjects, abstract on concrete subjects, full of ideas struggling to get into words, like a lot of wriggling youngsters getting into their clothes at a swimming hole . . . somewhat ponderous, wholly impractical):
. . . Yes, but the home, as an institution, is rooted in one of the fundamental instincts of mankind. (Strokes the cord of his glasses proudly.)

PA (a bit fuzzy but eager):
Yes . . . yes, that's right.

MR. MILLER (as if expounding a proposition in which he has nothing more than a purely academic interest):
And young people like my son and your daughter are merely obeying that urge . . . that urge to . . . well, that urge—that—that cosmic urge (beaming on Pa) . . . you understand?

PA (affecting an amused tolerance):
O, yes, yes . . . yes, yes, yes, indeed . . . that comic urge . . .

MR. MILLER (hastily):
O, no . . . not comic, cosmic . . .

The Millers arrive for their visit.

PA (covering up, blushingly):
Of course, of course, I meant cosmic . . . of course . . . a slip of the tongue. (Laughs.) Ha! ha!

MR. MILLER (musingly):
Slip of the tongue, of course . . . lapsus linguae, so to speak.

PA (clear out of his depth):
Yes . . . yes, that's it . . . lapsus—er—er—that's it.

(Makes mental note he isn't going to like this Miller feller . . . why doesn't he talk United States like a real hundred per cent American? . . . cosmic! whatever that means! lapsus—er—er—whatever it is! . . . meanwhile, Ma is studying Mrs. Miller, and vice versa . . .)

MRS. MILLER (one of those middle aged women who refuse to grow older gracefully and who flap futilely and a bit pathetically . . . a face, almost too new and fresh, suggesting a sign "Don't Touch—Wet Paint" . . . inclined to giggle girlishly on any pretext, amusing or otherwise . . . fussy and feather brained, with good intentions but no ability to make good with them . . . was never contaminated with a new idea in her youth, and since then has built her threshold of resistance so high she is immune and safe . . .):
. . . but Harry is only a boy yet! To think of his getting married . . . I . . . I . . . well . . . (Stops, confused by a blur of thoughts.)

MA (cautiously):
Of course, Mamie is young, too, but (proudly) she's the kind of a girl that any man could be proud of . . . And such a lovely disposition!

MRS. MILLER (who looks at you but seldom hears what you say):
I've told him I thought he was too young, but he has his heart set on it, and he's such a determined boy, but yet a very good boy, not at all wild, like so many of them these days.

MAMIE (who is pacing up and down the hall, hoping to head Red off when he comes in . . . mutters to herself):
Not at all wild, eh? . . . O, I hope I can get him away from here before they see he's been drinking . . . and he said he'd be right over . . . O . . . O . . . O . . .

MA (chiming in):
O, yes, Red is a lovely boy . . . we are very proud of Red.

MRS. MILLER (warming up):
I often say how fortunate I am to have a son like Harry . . . so dependable . . . I've never had a minute's worry since he was born. I often think, suppose he was like that Perkins boy, wild, drinking . . .

MR. MILLER (interrupting):
There, there, now, Grace . . . tut tut . . .

MRS. MILLER (with that sweet smile wives wear who "honey" their husbands in public):
Now, dear, you know he does drink, doesn't he?

MR. MILLER (with benevolent tolerance):
Well, just so he isn't our Harry . . .

MRS. MILLER (decisively):
Our boy, indeed! As if our boy would . . .

(Door bell rings loud and long.)

ILLUSTRATIONS -BY- J. H. STRIEDEL.

MA: Now, who could that be?

MAMIE (rushing to door):
It's him . . . it's him . . .

(Sounds of excitement at front door, moving up into hallway, percolate into living room, where the Millers and the Potters sit listening intently . . .)

MAMIE'S VOICE (pleading):
But, listen, listen, dear . . . no, don't come in . . . please . . . no . . .

RED'S VOICE (very jolly . . . too jolly):
'Shlil Mame hershelf . . . Well, well! Blesh lil heart . . . came r' over shee lil shweetheart . . .

MA (aghast):
Why, it's Red . . . and it sounds like . . .

"Hail, hail, gangsh all here!"

MRS. MILLER (stupefied):
It's Harry's voice, but . . . but——

MR. MILLER (jumping up):
What's the matter? What's the matter out there?

(Startling tableau appears in doorway: Mamie trying in vain to keep Red from coming in . . . Red, extremely happy, with hat away back and necktie neatly tied around neck without any collar.)

RED (waving gayly at astounded group . . . vision a bit blurred . . . hasn't recognized parents):
'Lo, folksh . . . (Starts to sing, beating time.)
Hail, hail, gangsh all here,
Mushn shay naughty word, mushn shay . . .
(Eyes focus slowly on confused group and pick out his father and mother . . . shock partially sobers him . . . song stops in midair.)

MRS. MILLER (agonized):
Harry, O Harry . . .
(Sinks into chair with hands over eyes.)

MR. MILLER (striding forward):
Here . . . here! What's the meaning of all this?

RED (beginning to realize the seriousness of the situation):
I wush out wi' fellers, out wish my frien' Perkinsh, nish, nish feller . . . Yuh know im?

MR. MILLER (severely):
Yes, I know him.

MRS. MILLER (to Mr. Miller):
There! what did I tell you about that Perkins boy? And you stood up for him. Now look what he's done. Took my boy out and got him drinking. I bet he did it on purpose. (To Red.) Didn't he? Didn't he?

RED (shamefacedly):
No. I . . . I did myshelf . . . (corrects himself with effort) myself. I didn't know what I was doin' . . . doing, and (defiantly) I didn't care, becaush . . . because Mamie threw me down, and then I didn't care what happened to me.

MRS. MILLER (switching her indignation easily from the Perkins boy to Mamie):
O, she threw you down, did she? And why, pray?

MR. MILLER (angrily):
No wonder she threw him down, if this is the way he carries on.

MAMIE (eagerly):
No, it was all my fault. I listened to a lot of silly gossip, and I broke our engagement. It was all my fault. And then we quarreled. And then Red left and said he didn't care what happened to him, and I tried all day long to find him and tell him I was sorry and to please forgive me, but I couldn't find him. (Breaks down and starts crying.) I couldn't find him anywhere, anywhere—and my heart was broken and I was nearly crazy . . .

MA (putting her arm around Mamie):
There . . . there . . .

MAMIE (between sobs):
And then . . . and then . . . he called up and said he was coming over, and I could tell he'd been drinking, and I knew it was my fault and that I drove him to it, and . . . and . . . and then he came in . . . this way . . . and . . . O, O, I'm so, so unhappy . . . (To Red, tearfully.) O, if you'll only forgive me . . . if you . . . if you only will, I'd . . . I'd . . .
(Chokes up.)

(If he'll only forgive her? The logical thing to suppose would be that he ought to be asking her to forgive him . . . well, well, logical, yes . . . but loverlike, no)

Mamie and Red make up once more.

MRS. MILLER (putting arm around Red's shoulder):
Come . . . let's go home, and we can talk it all over some other time . . .

RED (now thoroughly sober and repentant):
No. I want to square myself with Mamie . . . and Mrs. Potter . . . and Mr. Potter . . . I'm ashamed of myself . . . I . . . I don't know what came over me, but . . . but I'm . . . well, I'm awfully sorry, and I hope you'll forgive me . . .

PA (taking Red's hand):
All right, Red, I understand . . . we're none of us perfect . . . you haven't done anything so terrible, and, anyway, you've been a man about owning up to it.

MA (helplessly):
Well, I'm . . . I'm sorry, too . . . dreadfully sorry, but I guess you were kinda heartsick and despondent and . . . and . . . but you ought to know that drinking only makes such things worse . . . and if you're never going to forget yourself again, why, I . . . I . . . well, here. (Gives him her hand.) There, it's all forgotten . . . don't ever do it any more . . .

RED (turning to Mamie):
Can . . . can you ever forgive me?

MAMIE (throwing her arms around his neck):
Forgive you? . . . why, it was all my fault! (Laughs and cries hysterically.)

RED (manfully):
O, no, it wasn't; it was all my fault.

MAMIE (tearfully):
No, it was mine.

(Mamie's parents and Red's look on with a curious tenderness and a bit of a heartache for their own youth as Mamie and Red make up once more and promise each other faithfully never, never to quarrel again.)

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

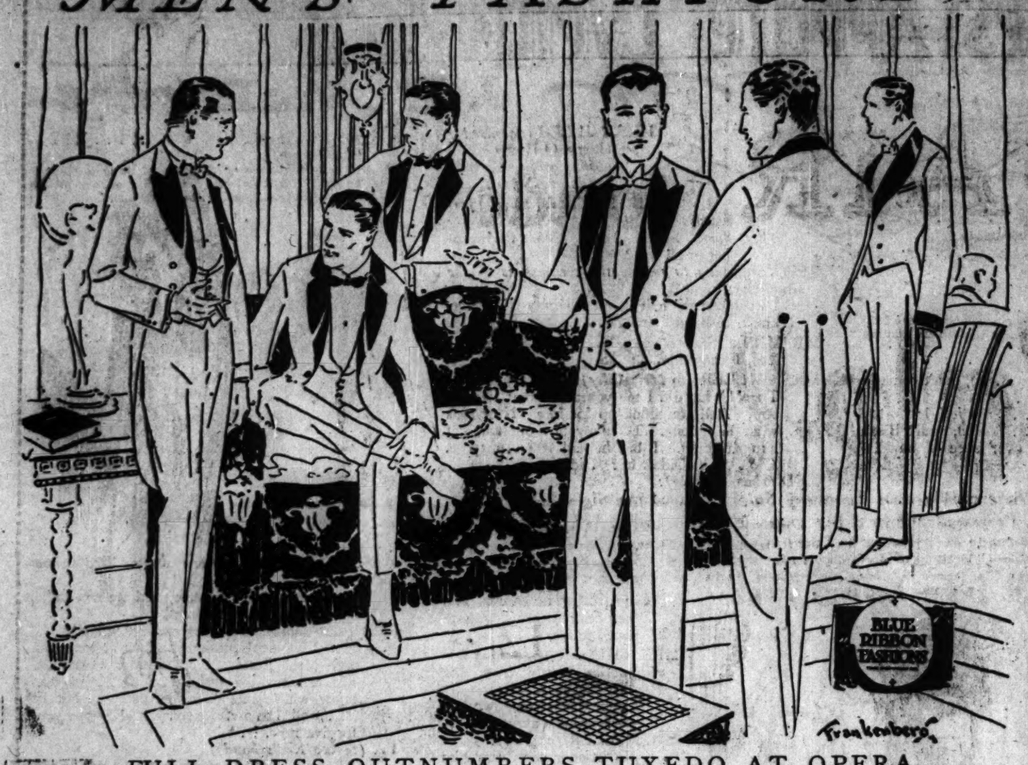
MEN'S FASHIONS



FULL DRESS OUTNUMBERS TUXEDO AT OPERA

By A. T. Gallico.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

This department appears every Tuesday and Friday in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK—[Special Correspondence.]—With the opening of the opera season and the proximity of holiday festivities, the full dress suit must come out of its retreat and visit the tailor, for pressing only, not alteration, since the swallowtail changes from season to season but negligibly. That is, if the wearer himself has not altered in size. But if over the summer strenuous games of golf or tennis, or just hard work, have taken a number of pounds off one, the coat is likely to fit—like some I saw at the opera opening at the Metropolitan this season—not without considerable wrinkles.

Every man has not a full dress suit in his wardrobe. In fact, the average man has so little use these days for a full dress outfit that it seems almost a useless expense to invest, if he already has not one. In this way the swallowtail is rather a problem to the man of moderate means who wants to be well and appropriately dressed upon all occasions, for the reason that unless he has countless relatives and friends who are contemplating evening weddings, or unless he expects to be invited to a dozen or so formal dinners and balls, with a half dozen evening receptions thrown in, the full dress suit is going to hang idle in the closet 90 per cent of the time.

On the other hand, almost every man has one or two occasions during the winter season when a swallowtail is the proper dress. Therefore, if possible, a tail coat should be listed among evening clothes. Of course, the same trousers may be used for full dress and dinner coat, so it is not a matter of two complete suits. That is, if the material is exactly the same in the case of the two coats.

For a formal evening wedding the full dress is the only possible attire, especially if one plays leading man or best man. I have had so many requests for information on this subject I believe there are perhaps a few more men who are wondering what they ought to wear upon a momentous evening of their lives.

A ball or large reception or dinner are other times when a tuxedo is not enough to carry off the formality of the occasion and the dignity of the tail coat is demanded. But such events are not in the life of the average man as numerous as the small dances, theater parties, informal dinner parties, etc., for which the dinner jacket is not only proper enough but more proper than the full dress suit. Overdressing is as unfortunate, if not more so than underdressing.

That is why when a man—especially a young man—writes to me and wants to know whether to get a full dress suit or a tuxedo, as he cannot afford to have both, I recommend the tuxedo, since he will have more use for it, and will feel more comfortable in a dinner coat when the majority of men are wearing swallowtails than in full dress when the tuxedo is the only wear.

The opening night at the opera in New York saw just as many tuxedos on the orchestra floor as swallowtails. But on the parterre floor the full dress held all honors. Not that they were all faultless, but the formality was there. As was earlier mentioned, the suits did not all fit as perfectly as they might have, and there were occasional slips in details, slips to which the wealthy wearers were oblivious or which they felt they could afford to ignore. For instance, there was here and there a waistcoat which came below the bottom of the coat, a style which less affluent men avoid as sloppy dressing.

There was many a pair of trousers which would have been the better for a pair of suspenders. Suspenders are more necessary in the case of evening clothes than business clothes, since the waist line must be well in place, so that there will be no gap, and so that the trousers will hang neatly.

The waistcoats I saw at the opera (worn with the full dress suits) were with scarcely an exception single breasted. But the double breasteds are just as proper. The material may be of white washable material or white broadcloth. There were perhaps more of the former in the opera boxes. Shirts, of course, must be stiff bosomed. One or two studs are equally in favor. Studs and links on the best dressers are extremely plain. If they are jeweled, they are modestly so. Flashy diamonds are out of the running. But small diamonds or pearls and other effects in small jeweled studs are in good taste. When one stud is used, it is either a pearl or a small jewel. Mother of pearl is much seen and is more suited to a moderate income than more expensive jewels.

Collar accompaniments to the swallowtail at the opera were wing and poke in equal numbers. With the tuxedo, the wing predominated. Patent leather dress oxfords outnumbered the cloth top and the patent leather boots. This probably will be the case for all evening occasions this season, as the no-tip oxford is becoming extremely popular.

The shiny high silk hat accompanied every full dress suit on the box floor at the Metropolitan. Black Chesterfields were in the majority for overcoats, with an occasional dress coat or cape.

Materials for full dress suits are dressed or undressed worsteds, with sometimes a self-pattern of stripe, diamond, or diagonal weave. Black is the most usual, but now and then a dark blue suit appears, it being considered that blue at night looks blacker than black.

My Nicest Compliment

What was the nicest compliment you ever received? Was it a tribute to achievements, social gifts, learning, beauty? Was it forthright and blunt, wittily done, or something subtle? Write it out and send it to the Compliment Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

Must Measure Up to Sister.

My nicest compliment came from my younger brother. We were attending high school together, and one day, returning home, we were discussing different girls.

Suddenly he said, "Know how I decide whether a girl is nice or not, Mary?"

"No."

"Why, I always compare them with you." A. H. A.

Spoken with Conviction.

We had been invited to take a trip with friends, and my husband was giving our regrets.

"Well," said our disappointed hostess, "I wish we could find some one to accompany us who is as nice as you and your wife."

"There isn't anyone as nice as my wife," replied my husband. P. H.

Worthy of Trust.

I was going out with a young woman and her mother asked what time we would be home. We said it would be rather late. My love's mother answered that she did not have to worry about how late it was, as she knew her daughter was in good company so long as she was with me. I thanked her. E. G.

More Precious than Rubies.

I may be a little young as yet to be deciding as to my nicest compliment—I am only 4 months old—but mother was so pleased with this she wants to share it.

Mother asked the doctor what he thought of me and he replied, "When the baby came I offered to buy him for $2,000, but now I raise my bid to $10,000."

The best part of all was the tone of voice with which he was told I was not marketable. G. E.

How Miss Morgan Earned More Money

Miss Morgan had a fairly good position. Yet she was not satisfied. She wanted to move up. But somehow, there seemed nothing ahead to strive for in the work she was then doing!

Part of the time she served as telephone operator and part of the time in the general office doing clerical work. The important men in the business scarcely ever saw her—few knew her by name.

One day she happened to read an advertisement of The Illinois School of Filing. It appealed to her as worth investigation, so she sent for the free book—"Finding a profession instead of a job." It gave her an insight into filing she had never had before and answered all her questions.

She could not afford to give up her old position so she studied at night. As soon as she had completed the course she obtained a position offering advancement.

She now feels that she is doing something worth while—that, in filing, she has a profession—that she is no longer "lost in the shuffle," but really amounts to something.

I asked Miss Morgan the other day what she thought of The Illinois School of Filing.

"I think," she replied, "it is a wonderful school. It did so much for me that my two sisters are also taking the course. I wouldn't be surprised if they get even better positions than I have."

Home study course also given. Write for details.

HOLIDAY TEAS.

THERE is something about the teas of today that remind one of the old rhyme of little A, big A, bouncing B. Reception, rout, and soiree seem all to have given away before the tea, great teas and small teas, high teas and home teas—afternoon teas all—according to the latest book on what is correct in such social efforts as "Etiquette, the Blue Book of Social Usage," by Mrs. Emily Post.

This social rectrix begins her chapter headed "Teas and Other Afternoon Parties," as follows: "Except at a wedding, the function strictly understood by the word 'reception' went out of fashion, in New York at least, during the reign of Queen Victoria, and its survivor is a public or semi-public affair presided over by a committee, and is a serious, rather than a merely social event." So it is, so it is, but had you thought about it in just that way?

According to Mrs. Post, the reception people are pompous, formal, learned, dressed up—art critiques talking about technique, Taoists, explorers, excavators. She does not say so, but of course such people do not know food and seldom get it—real food. "Yet the difference between a reception and a tea is one of atmosphere only. A tea, even though it be formal, is nevertheless friendly and inviting." Certainly the holiday teas which are so numerous, should be all that.

Afternoon Tea with Dancing.

Of course Mrs. Post tells what is correct in food for all social affairs, and under teas she gives first "The afternoon tea with dancing," which is something less than a ball, but with lights, curtains drawn, and refreshments served in much the same way. She says:

"At a formal tea, the tea table is exactly like that at a wedding reception in that it is a large table set as a buffet and is always in charge of the caterer's men or the hostess' own butler or waitress and assistants. It is never presided over by a deputy hostess." The menu is limited, and she says: "Only tea, bouillon, chocolate, bread, and cakes are served. There may be all sorts of sandwiches, hot biscuits, crumpets, muffins, sliced cake, and little cakes in every variety that a cook or caterer can devise—whatever will come under the head of bread and cake is admissible; but nothing else, or it becomes a reception and not a tea. At the end of the table or on a separate table near by there are bowls or pitchers of orangeade or lemonade or punch for the dancers, exactly as at a ball. Guests go to the table and help themselves to their own selection of bread and cakes. The chocolate, already poured into cups with whipped cream on top, is passed on a tray by a servant. Tea also poured into cups, but mixed but accompanied by a small pitcher of cream, bowl of sugar, and slices of lemon, is also passed on a tray. Some finds table for comfort if she can."

Afternoon Teas Without Dancing.

Afternoon teas without dancing are something else again, and are "given in honor of celebrities or new neighbors or engaged couples, or to warm new houses; or, most often, for a house guest from another city." There is artificial light in winter, but never in summer; two friends of the hostess 'pour,' or tea and chocolate are passed on trays. A guest may walk up to and talk to the deputy hostess and ask for what she wants. There are little cakes and sandwiches and a great deal of sociability, supposedly informal—but you know how it is—as is the stiffedly informal invitation, "Do come in for a cup of tea."

And now "the every day afternoon tea table," with this statement: "In proper serving, not only of tea but of all drinks of all sorts, even where a quantity of bottles, pitchers, and glasses need space, everything should be brought on a tray and not trundled on a tea wagon!"

And so the tea wagon, convenient for handling laundry to and fro, for wheeling dinners in and soiled china out of the dining room, has lost its prestige, if ever had anything besides its convenience to recommend it! Everything except the food is brought in on a tray, the little plates piled up with layers of napkins, etc., the boiling kettle, the spirit lamp, the slop bowl. The food may be on the tea table, on which this tray is set, or on the shelves of the "curate."

Mrs. Post clings to this rather facetious name for a charming piece of furniture, although many a possessor of this portable piece has never ceased to give it the old and more dignified and suggestive name of "muffin stand." It is no such general purpose piece of furniture as the tea wagon is, but it does give a man at a tea something to do—passing it. In the hands of a pretty maid it seems right also, for she may instantly put it down and attend to something else, as she cannot a tray.

Menu Is Limited.

And under the headings, "Things People Eat at Tea," Mrs. Post tells us what should be on the "curate." She says that the top dish should be a covered one, and hold hot bread of some sort, but you know the napkin is considered quite as suitable by many people for holding hot breads and "things," and nowadays the most dainty and beautiful things in fine natural linen and the coarser laces are made for every conceivable food service, serviettes and holders, and so on.

The middle or second shelf usually holds sandwiches, and the third cake. "Or perhaps all the dishes hold cake; little fancy cakes, for instance, and pastries or slices of layer cakes. Many prefer a simpler diet, and have bread and butter, or toasted crackers, supplemented by plain cookies. Others pile the 'curate' until it literally staggers, under pastries and cream cakes and sandwiches of paté de foie gras or mayonnaise. Others, again, like a marmalade, or jam, or honey, on bread and butter, or on buttered toast or muffins. This necessitates little butter knives and a dish of jam added to the already overloaded tea tray."

Runs in Cycles.

And, further: "Selection of afternoon tea food is entirely a matter of whim, and new food fads sweep through communities. For a few months at a time every one, whether in private house or in a country club, will eat nothing but English muffins and jam, then suddenly they like only toasted cheese crackers, or Sally Lunn, or chocolate cake with whipped cream on top. The present fad of a certain group in New York is bacon and toast sandwiches and fresh hot gingerbread." And so the description goes on, making the statement so often made that a party sandwich is not the sort of sandwich to eat when you are hungry. (The shape or cut of sandwiches gets full attention.)

And one more paragraph must be given in this laying down of rules: "Afternoon tea at a large house party or where especially invited people are invited to tea, should include two plates of hot food such as toast or hot biscuits split open and buttered, toasted and buttered English muffins, or crumpets, corn muffins or hot gingerbread. Two cold plates should contain cookies or fancy cakes, and perhaps a layer cake. In hot weather, in place of one of the hot dishes, there should be a paté or lettuce sandwiches, and always a choice of hot or iced tea, or perhaps iced coffee or chocolate frappé, but rarely if ever anything else."

All the above has been given because not infrequently I receive questions for just such information as is here given, and especially at this time of year. Women are most commonly criticised by men because they cannot "present" food. There is, indeed a great deal of etiquette in the matter. In fact, you can see that even in this matter of tea a whole treatise can be written. There are books of tea recipes—printed in the greatest kind of tea drinking and tea giving—England.

But if one thing shines out more than another in all these lists of foods, it is the fact that good and simple breads are always appropriate, correct, indispensable. For true entertaining with foods, dainty to exquisite, breads are about three-quarters the whole refreshment. They may be plain, or given a meat value with certain sandwiched fillings, or given a cake value with others or a dessert value with jams.

Simplest Quick Muffins.

There are endless adaptations of the baking powder muffin and all charming if we choose to make them so, but to my mind many of these muffins are made with too thick a batter, so that they have a rough surface instead of a smooth one like that of a cup cake. Therefore I scant the flour which is standard for the batter of one cup of liquid to two of flour, and my formula reads: One egg, one cup of milk, one and three-fourths cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder—no more—one scant teaspoon salt, one to four tablespoons sugar, one to three tablespoons of melted butter, added last and thoroughly beaten in. Regardless of funnels we do beat this batter exceedingly well, and when there is not too much flour in it there can hardly be funnels.

Date Muffins.

The plain muffin batter, with four or five ounces of dates, is brought up to exceeding fineness, unless the batter is too stiff, when the whole becomes quite plain eating, whereas a small date muffin may be as exquisite as a perfect bonbon. There are various ways of adding the dates. One way to prepare them is to wash them thoroughly, rub off loose skins, open and inspect in removing seeds, roll up again, cut in three parts, and use these large pieces on top of the muffin or press them down into the batter just before it goes into the oven. Finer cut dates may be stirred into the batter.

Russian Chocolate.

Some people call a chocolate in which coffee replaces the water used in making plain chocolate Russian chocolate. Unless made with great care this may be bitter, but sugar always modifies this, but if the sugar and chocolate are not well cooked together the sugar makes the whole insipid, and there are always the uncertain elements to be considered. Coffees differ enormously in flavor, and chocolates almost as much. At any rate, cream will be needed to soften harshnesses, and there is always the milling to do the same—milling is beating with something comparable to an egg beater. Some of the utensils made just for this are wonderfully attractive.

Hot Chocolate.

A number of items of late have brought to my attention that home hot chocolate is poor. It is not cooked enough. It is not as thick as French and Spanish chocolates. Sweet chocolates may be secured in superior flavors—in the more expensive sorts—but in most cases more than of the bitter must be used to get a thick beverage. In some, but not all cases, nor with all chocolates, an excellent beverage may be made as follows, less being required for the larger quantities: Add one-half cup of water to an ounce of chocolate, stir over the fire constantly for fifteen minutes, add a half cup of rich milk, and cook two minutes. Sweeten to taste. Serve with whipped cream. This may be thinned to taste.

A Bacon Sandwich.

One of the less usual ways to make a bacon sandwich is to put the bacon through a food chopper, then into a cold pan and cook with constant stirring over not too hot a fire until the small bits are almost like popcorn, but never a dark brown. Have ready buttered bread with a piece of leaf lettuce, and dip up with a strainer spoon the bacon on to the lettuce. Into what was half a cup of bacon may be poured a tablespon of vinegar, and a tablespon of sugar added to make this a wilted lettuce sandwich.

NEW DESIGNS FOR TOWELS.

THERE is a new idea in towels that would make them a charming gift. These are not made of linen toweling but of a moderately fine quality of linen. Choose a quality that will be agreeable to use, and you may make them fifteen or eighteen inches wide and about twenty-five inches in length. These measurements are for the finished towel.

At each end a hem of colored linen is set on. Some one of the delicate shades of blue, pink, rose, green, or tan are perfect; and this hem should not be of too heavy a weight of linen, else it will not look well. If the linen for the towel is the right weight, colored handkerchief linen will make good hems. The finished hems should measure two inches in width, and a twenty-five inch towel should be cut twenty-two inches long. This will allow for a half inch seam at each end.

One-half inch up from each edge draw threads for hemstitching, then turn in each edge of hem, not forgetting the corners, and set on over the towel edge, so that the folded hem edges come exactly to the lower edge of the drawn threads. All of this is most particular work, and should be done so slowly and carefully that it won't have to be done twice.

First pin, then baste each edge of the hem in place, then do the hemstitching. On one end of the towel a second line of double hemstitching may be put, this row being one inch above the first one.

A monogram or single initial would be an added attraction, this being placed in the center of the width, near one end of the towel. Or a narrow border in some conventional design, done in cross-stitch in the same color as that used for the hems, would be good looking. This could be done above the second line of hemstitching, or the second line of hemstitching could be left out and the cross-stitch design embroidered across both ends.

Answers to Sewing Questions.

MRS. M. A.: You will find quite an assortment of scallops for borders, both as regards size and shape, and you can do the stamping yourself. The linen for dresser scarfs must have an extra inch allowed on the three sides to be embroidered, and the line clearly marked for the edge of the scallops. Follow the directions that come with the stamping pattern and you should have no trouble in stamping. These scallops are outlined with a single strand of cotton, using a fine running stitch, and the padding is done the same as for any other laid work. Padding stitches must run at right angles to the edge of the scallop.

1543—Woman's House Dress. Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 36 inch material.

1300—Girl's middy dress. Sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1½ yards of 36 inch material for the blouse and 1¼ yards of 36 inch material for the skirt.

1334—Woman's dress. Sizes 36 to 50 inches bust measure. Size 40 requires 5½ yards of 36 inch or 3⅞ yards of 54 inch material with 1½ yards of 36 inch lining and 2¼ yards of binding.

How to Use the Patterns

THE upper side front and back and the short kimono sleeves of pattern No. 1543 are cut in one piece, and the front is cut in one with the lower side front section. And this manner of cutting gives to the waist a semblance of a bolero Eton jacket, particularly if the seams are covered with two parellel bias bands of some contrasting color.

This pattern is intended for a house dress, to be slipped on over the head or finished to close at the left side of the front. The skirt is in one piece, straight and gathered to the waist at a slightly low waist line.

Black sateen is quite a favorite for house dresses just now and the blackness is relieved by trimming with some gaily colored cretonne or putting some bright colored embroidery designs on pockets, sleeves, and the front of the waist. Sateen washes well and is soft and pleasant to the touch. Then, of course, there is chambray, gingham, and percale.

Take one of the lovely shades of pink or blue, and trim with white. Wear white stockings and low shoes and nothing more attractive could be had for a morning costume at home.

Pattern No. 1300 is one of the always popular middy dress patterns, so suitable and serviceable for a school dress for a girl. This pattern is provided with a separate slip-on blouse with long or short sleeves, a one piece plaited or gathered skirt with a straight lower edge, joined to an underwaist that closes down the back, and is perforated for either a round or square neck.

The underwaist would naturally be the first part of the dress to be made. It should have large armholes, an easy fitting neck, and be loose at the waist line. Lay the hems down each back piece and in fitting see that they lap exactly their own width. A fitted facing about two inches wide makes the right finish for the armholes.

The skirt will not be difficult to make, especially if it is gathered at the top. If it is plaited—and the pattern is perforated for plaits—each one must be accurately laid from top to bottom, basted, and pressed.

The slip-on blouse is underfaced at the opening in the front, and the edges are rolled back to form revers. Notches on the front and collar show exactly how and where it is joined there, and if this part of the work is well done a tailored look is given to the dress which adds much to its smartness.

A small monogram embroidered on the left side of the front of the waist will be all the trimming needed. The bottom of the waist is turned up and hemmed.

Pattern No. 1334 is a design especially becoming to large figures, the long lines of the overdress giving a slender effect. There is a separate underwaist closing in the front, to which the vest is attached; and the skirt, the usual straight, gathered kind, is attached to the underwaist.

The overdress is cut in two pieces —front and back—and the pockets may be used or not as one prefers. The full length sleeve is in one piece, and is made with a dart up the outside, from the wrist to the elbow, so as to make it close fitting. Pockets, short collar, and belt complete the costume. Braiding or embroidery may be used to good advantage.

This dress made of wool serge, jersey, tricotine, or twill would make a serviceable dress to wear under a coat on the street during the cold weather.

Sage Tea Darkens Hair to any Shade

WHEN you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost, you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, and look years younger.

Getting His Revenge.

I had a small brother and he and I frequently quarreled. One day it was over a magazine. I succeeded in getting it away from him, and it made him angry.

"I'll get even with you for this," he said.

I just laughed and went on reading.

I was going to a dance at the country club that night, and after I was ready I put some powder on a puff and thrust it into my vanity bag. Then I went to the living room to wait for my fiancé, leaving my bag on the dressing table. I slipped out to the porch from the dance to powder my nose. It was dark there, and I did not have a mirror, so I just rubbed the puff over my face. When I went back into the ballroom every one began to laugh. I couldn't imagine what was the matter.

A girl standing close to me said, "Honey, look at your face."

She loaned me a mirror. I'll never forget what I saw. My face was covered with soot. I looked at my powder puff. It was sooty also. Then I knew that this was brother's revenge.

D. W.

Facing the Evidence.

I live in an upper flat and the moment I step into the hall or down the stairs my landlady, who lives alone downstairs and is eager for some one to chat with, comes out and detains me sometimes for an hour. Sometimes I, too, am eager to chat, but most times she detains me when I am busiest.

The other day, while hanging out some clothes, she started to chat. I was in a hurry to finish my work that morning, as I was expecting visitors for luncheon, so I suddenly broke away from her, saying, "O, dear, I must hurry upstairs, as I left the baby in her high chair and she may fall."

Still chattering, she followed me, saying she would come up if I didn't mind. Imagine my embarressment when entering the kitchen to find an empty high chair and babe sound asleep in the next room, where I myself had placed her.

Killing the Comedy.

My most embarrassing moment happened at school a week ago. Our English teacher was a funny old person and certainly the funniest thing about her was the knob of hair at the back of her head which bobbed furiously when she talked. We girls nearly died at it.

I was famous for taking up dares, so one of the girls dared me to walk up and give the knob a gentle pull, which would make it look funnier than ever. It was decided I'd do this during English recitation, so that all the girls might witness it.

What was my horror to find the knob came off in my hands. E. P.

Accepting with Pleasure.

I was taking a trip, accompanied by my husband, his brother, and wife. We were in a chair car and nearly everyone was sleeping, as it was about midnight. When we neared our destination I went to the mirror at the rear of the car and put on my hat and powdered my face. As I returned to my seat I still had my powder puff in my hand and I reached down and powdered my brother-in-law's nose as I passed. Too late I found I had gone too far, and the man whose nose I had powdered and who was grinning at me was a perfect stranger.

B. E. B.

Out of Sight.

We had a few chickens in a small coop in our back yard. Every afternoon we would life them out and let them run.

Once while doing this I sat on the edge of the coop. When my lap was nearly full of chickens, a board broke and, with a scream, I dropped into the coop with my feet and legs peinting skyward. The coop was so small it was impossible for me to move, and the mother hen, hearing her babies, kept flying at me.

The neighbor on the west was sprinkling his lawn at the time, but when my mother had extricated me he had disappeared. I afterward learned he was so overcome with mirth he ran into the house.

D. R. T.

Pardon Came Too Late.

We were at a wedding reception, where most of the guests were relatives. The bride's uncle sang solo after solo, while the rest of the family applauded and asked for more.

I didn't care for his singing, and was becoming quite bored, when my daughter went to the piano, trying to reach the keys.

"She'll be a musician some day," remarked the singer.

"I'm afraid so," I replied, then hastily changed it to, "I hope so," but it was too late—the relatives were already giving me the icy stare.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Try to Be Fair.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am married and my husband treats me unfairly at times—often says things in anger. I know he loves me and I love him, but I cannot stand his treatment. He works nights and I have accepted automobile rides from a young man I met at a party, but am always home when my husband arrives at midnight. Do you think I am doing right? This young man has offered to help me in every respect, but I do not love him, only I like to go out with him and forget my husband's inhuman treatment. WAITING."

How about your staying home so your husband can forget your inhuman treatment? How about your trying to play the game just a little fairer yourself? You know you are not doing right—heading for the divorce mill, I'd say.

Difficult to Believe.

"Dear Miss Blake: Will you please let me know what you think of a mother who put her daughter out of the house because she bobbed her hair? She had no other reasons to do so. I have been away six months and she has never asked me to come home. I have to live in a furnished room. Some people think that if you live in a furnished room you are not respectable. Would you advise me to go home if she should ever ask me to? JULIA."

I cannot believe, Julia, that a mother would do such a thing. I cannot imagine her putting her daughter out of the house for any reason in the world, let alone so trivial a one as you give. I should advise you to go back home, Julia. Talk the matter over with mother, and see if you cannot be good friends. She needs you more than you do her, dear, for I think her health must be broken and she must be frightfully distraught to do such a thing.

Prefers Other Company.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 18 years old and love a girl named Emily. She says she loves me, but the other night at a dance I saw her in the company of another young man, and it happened to be a dear friend of mine. I was to take her to a show that night, but she told me she could not go out, as she was expecting her uncle from out of town. I wonder if you think I should still go on loving her. I will be much obliged to you if you print this, so she may see it and understand. PAUL."

First, Paul, I don't think you are a regular man to take this means of showing Emily up. Do you think that is taking your medicine like a man? There is something lacking in you, and, while I don't condone the girl's lie about her uncle, it is plain to be seen she prefers other company to yours.

Put Up a Fight.

"Dear Miss Blake: There is a boy I love and I know he loves me dearly. I have been going with him for eleven months. There is a certain girl who is trying her best to win his love from me. Will you please tell me what to do? WORRIED."

I wouldn't let her get him. That is, if the young man is worth the fight, put one up. Not open warfare, however, but be just a little bit nicer than she is, and pretend you do not recognize her as a rival at all.

Green Mountain Boy

The flavor of Vermont maple—at its best

WHY the sap of Vermont maples produces syrup more exquisite in flavor than that from any other part of the country is Nature's secret. But whatever the reason—the fact of its perfection remains and it is that which makes Mayflower Syrup so different from other pancake syrups.

Mayflower Syrup is made right where this "best-of-all" maple can be obtained for it—right where men who know the art of maple syrup making, as it is known only in Vermont, can blend it.

Just enough refined granulated sugar is added to make Mayflower Syrup a trifle more syrupy and richer looking. The utmost care is taken to retain the rich taste of the maple. Vermonters are too proud of the flavor of Vermont maple to spoil it.

You can buy Mayflower Syrup in either cans or bottles in pint and quart sizes. The half-gallon, gallon and five gallon quantities are put up only in hermetically sealed cans. The gallon contains a full eleven pounds; and a pint, one and three-eighths of a pound. To be sure of getting full measure, buy Mayflower.

You can keep this syrup indefinitely, but you'll want to eat it and get more instead of "keeping" it. Be sure to order some today at your grocer's.

PERHAPS you have thought it no longer possible to procure pure maple sap syrup, or maple sugar. It is rarely to be found, but if you ask for the Green Mountain Boy Brand you'll find the real old-fashioned kind — entirely the product of Vermont maples.

Soft maple sugar is also put up in cans under this name and a wonderful delicacy called Maple Sugar Cream, made exclusively by the Welch Bros. Maple Co. It is in the form of a smooth paste, with the "grain" which is characteristic of maple sugar, removed—perfect for fillings, icings and candy.

TERMS OF PAYMENT OF OUR EXTENDED ACCOUNT SYSTEM

We think it is unfair to demand a certain amount of money to be paid at the time a customer makes a selection and the balance due to be paid within a certain period. We feel it is the worthiness of the customer rather than his money that should be given consideration.

Supposing that some one who loves a beautifully furnished home would enjoy the possession of the bedroom suite illustrated above—and suppose that at this time this person did not have a great surplus of money—but that he was reliable—would it be fair to deprive him of this bedroom suite because he could make an initial deposit of no more than $10 or $15? We feel it would be a great injustice. In other words, arrangements can be made to suit your convenience. And, regardless of the amount of the payment or the amount of the purchase, there is NO INTEREST CHARGED.

HERE IS THE INSIDE STORY

The raw material market compels us to take a step which we are powerless to avert. Are we right in our belief that by frankly stating the facts, the public will understand and approve our action as being absolutely necessary?

For more than a year, now, we have been featuring our A B C copper tub Oscillator at $99.

This extremely low price on so high grade an electric washer has been made possible only by its production on an enormous scale in our big, modern $2,000,000 plant.

Ever since last Spring, however, our slight margin of profit on this model has been gradually disappearing.

A glance at the chart opposite—a chart issued Sept. 11th, 1922, by the Brookmire Economic Service, one of the leading business forecasting services of the country—will show you how the cost of almost every kind of raw material has been steadily climbing since the early months of 1922.

Although we would have been fully justified in advancing our price months ago to $115, we postponed such action—partly by placing large contracts for materials, partly by allowing our profit to be almost eliminated.

These contracts, however, expire this month. On the new ones, effective January 1st, we shall have to pay so much more for materials—as indicated on the chart—that a continuance of the $99 price obviously is out of the question.

We have on hand or en route, sufficient materials bought on 1922 contracts to build only a few thousand more A B C Oscillators. As soon as these materials are used, the price must go to $115.

At present we are producing washing machines at the rate of 75,000 a year. If, with this tremendous production, we are compelled to increase our price we do not believe a quality washer of this type can be built for less. When a good copper-tub washer can be produced again for less than $115, Altorfer Bros. Company can make it.

There, bluntly, are the facts in the situation.

We are told by some shrewd merchandisers that we are making a mistake in telling you this inside story.

We have been advised to make the raise quietly, without announcement, trusting to the forgetfulness of the public.

We are said to be guilty of a grave error in taking the public too much into our confidence.

We do not think so—do you?

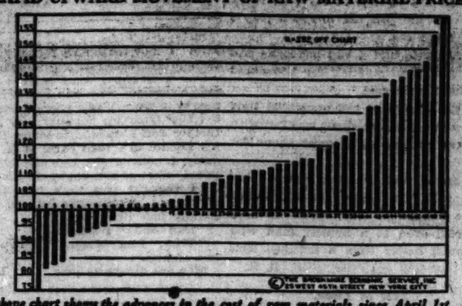
RAPID UPWARD MOVEMENT OF RAW MATERIAL PRICES



The above chart shows the advances in the cost of raw materials since April 1st. Many of these materials enter directly or indirectly into the manufacture of A B C Oscillators, particularly the following: (17) composite hardwoods; (18) pig aluminum; (19) tinplates; (20) bulk gasoline; (22) wire nails; (24) electrolytic copper; (27) tin; (28) sheets; (34) yellow pine; (39) lead; (40) wire rods; (41) spelter; (42) iron bars; (43) Bessemer billets; (44) bituminous coal; (45) pig iron; (46) steel bars; (50) foundry coke.

Save $16—buy it now for her Christmas!

Although we shall permit every A B C copper tub Oscillator produced from our 1922 priced materials to be sold at $99 (provided it is ordered by December 31st), we feel positive that the supply will not last until Christmas.

Each A B C Dealer listed below has been allotted his share of these electric washers. Only on early orders, however, can Christmas delivery be guaranteed.

For your benefit, then, we urge immediate action. Especially if you would make someone very happy this Christmas by the presentation of one of these splendidly built washers.

Right now, a price of $115 would be extremely moderate for such a fine electric washer. There is nothing on the market to compare with it even at $115.

At $99, therefore, this A B C Oscillator is truly a phenomenal bargain. The public, be assured, will not delay in seizing such an opportunity to save $16.

This is, without doubt, the last opportunity you will have for a long time in the future to get so high grade and thoroughly dependable an electric washer as this A B C Oscillator at anywhere near so large a saving.

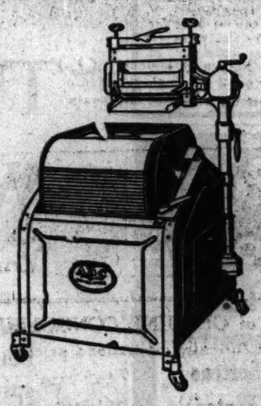
Act this week! Go to your nearest A B C dealer's store and see what a wonderfully well-made and unusually efficient washer this is. Then arrange for a Christmas delivery—payments to be completed in small convenient sums next year.

Visit, phone or write your nearest dealer at once!

A B C OSCILLATOR

ELECTRIC WASHER

$99-



Features as in electric washers of highest price!

Heavy gauge copper tub, tin-lined, regular full family size. Swinging electric wringer of standard make. All moving parts safely yet accessibly enclosed in handsome cabinet. Powerful motor of high-grade make, such as Westinghouse. Machine-cut gears. Quiet, springless mechanism. Angle iron frame—sturdy, rigid. A time-tested washer of marvelous efficiency. Washes clothes clean—quickly. Highest grade construction throughout. Every part guaranteed perfect. The world's greatest value in an electric washer of this popular type.

$1.75 per week

Think of being able to buy a genuine ABC Washer for as little as $1.75 per week—25c a day! While cash prices are quoted on this page, any ABC Dealer will gladly explain how you may reserve an A B C now, have it delivered Christmas, and pay on it next year. The payments—weekly, semi-monthly or monthly—depend simply upon the deposit you wish to make.

Equally remarkable values are offered in A B C washers of three other popular types:

For only $135 you can get the celebrated A B C Super Electric—"the aristocrat of all washers." It excels in every feature. There is no finer washer at any price. Choice of zinc or maple cylinder. (With copper tub, $150.)

For only $95 you can get a single tub A B C Ako Electric, and for only $120 the double tub, twelve-sheet capacity model. These are unquestionably the best dolly-type washers ever produced. (Power models, $65 up.)

"PIGTAILS"—By Mildred Burleigh.

Bright Sayings of Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each children saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Lee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Chuck had been sent to dig potatoes; he was so long about it that his aunt went out to investigate.

"How many hills have you dug, Chuckie?" she asked.

"Well, when I get this one done that I'm digging now and five more, I'll have six," was the encouraging answer. G. H.

Dorothy is afraid of dogs. One day her mother had a difficult time getting her to take a walk, as a big dog was just running past.

"But, Dorothy," said mother, "look at me. I am not afraid."

"Well," said Dorothy, "if you were as far down as I am you would be afraid of big dogs, too." Mrs. R.

Tom was always afraid of dogs.

One day, he and mother met a little dog. Tom got behind his mother's skirt's and Zoe, wanting to cure him of the habit of being afraid, said: "Tom, why don't you play with the dog instead of being afraid?"

Tom replied: "I am. I'm playing hide and seek with him." J. W.

ANSWER TO COMMON ERRORS

Should be pronounced as though spelled "a-dream," emphasis on "dream."

Several boys, including mine, were asked to spend the evening with a neighbor whose parents were not at home. I cautioned mine to be gentlemanly.

Upon his return I inquired if they had behaved. "Sure, the landlord only came up once!" was the reply. C. M. G.

There is a little girl in the neighborhood who is a cry baby, and my niece in expressing her opinion of her, said, "Why, auntie, she even cries when there ain't no sad." G. G.

We have a neighbor who is hard of hearing.

David just discovered that fact the other day and said, "Mother, did you know Mrs. Moore has bad ear sight?" Z. S.

Uncle Ben took Billy to the office with him, also to the bank, and when noon came, took him out to lunch, which Billy enjoyed. "I tell you, it's doing me good to be with the mens," he remarked during luncheon. W. W. C.

Juanita had run off, and when her mother found her she was sitting on a neighbor's porch entertaining the family. She saw the stick, so, putting on her best smile, she said, "Did you come to call on us?" G. T.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

HER ONLY THOUGHT.

PRECIOUS BOY: 'Tis evening and as I sit before the hearth and gaze into the blue-red flames playing around the logs, I can see your dear face so plainly. I almost place my hands there to touch it.

The months you have been gone from me seem an eternity—and these evenings when I sit here alone, without you, life is almost unbearable.

My sweetheart, my lips ache for your kisses so divine. Won't you come back? Can't you hear my heart pleading for your love?

Although the distance between us is great, my spirit is in such close union with yours that I feel I am looking up into those wonderful brown eyes, the mirrors of your soul, and I can place my hand upon your brow, and hear you whisper that my hands are soft as rose petals; then you kiss them, and draw me near to you and embrace me and kiss my lips as no other human lips could kiss them. O, memories! How sad—but sweet and dear to me.

Dear heart! Hear me, I plead with you—do not remain away from me much longer. Just tonight was I thinking of the many happy evenings we had spent together and I can hear your voice singing softly some sweet love song to me. I can see you sitting on the little bench at my feet and I could stroke your black hair.

I love my dear boy so deeply. I am praying each day that the One above will bless and protect you and keep you for me. I am trying so hard to be brave and your love means life to me. Remember you are my only thought and I am truly yours.

Your letters are an inspiration. I love every word of them and many times when I read them my tears blur the words so that I can scarcely read. Dearest, come to me as soon as is possible. Remember I love you with all my heart and soul. Your own beloved. CLAIRE.

Were You Ever Deceived?

Girls! Were you ever deceived by a man? How did you catch him at it? Did another girl tell on him, and did she have anything to do with it? Did everybody in town hear about it, too? Tell all about it and $1 will be paid for each letter printed. Address Deception Contest, The Tribune, Chicago.

Prefers Them Plain.

Six months ago I was engaged to a handsome man and believed in him regardless of his reputation as a flirt.

Ten days before the wedding I thought I would test him and telephoned and in a strange voice made an engagement with him. He was much elated.

About an hour later I called him up again, this time in my own voice.

Would he take me to see a play I just must see.

No, dearie had a bad headache and was just then starting for home and a good night's rest.

Well, I went at the appointed time and there was the sheik waiting with his car shining as it never shone for me.

I gave back the engagement ring and told him I had found I loved some one else. I do, for I am to be married soon to a homely man who is much better than a matinée idol. E. R.

Just in Time.

We met at a dance hall. He took me home and asked to call. I had no objection, as he was nice and good looking.

He proposed after we had been going together two months. I accepted.

One thing seemed peculiar. He called on me only on Friday and Saturday.

Two days before our marriage I had a visitor—his wife. She showed me the marriage certificate and brought her boy with her.

Luckily for me she had found out where her husband was going on Friday and Saturday.

It would have seemed impossible to write this a year ago, but time is a great healer. E. W.

Why She Laughed.

It was while attending college that I met a young man who was a veritable Hercules. Then, too, he was a westerner and affected a broad sombrero in which he was especially noticeable. Indeed, many fair young coeds wore their handsomest smiles when he passed, which I had occasion to notice on my frequent walks with him. Naturally I felt singularly blessed in receiving his undivided attention and was soon hopelessly in love. I had reason to feel my affections were returned.

One week-end I went to visit a former classmate who was teaching in a nearby town. While there I received a letter from my admirer. It was a thriller and I wanted to share it with my friend, so I read parts of it. Suddenly I noticed she was laughing. I asked what she thought so amusing.

"I thought you were reading one of my old sweetheart's letters, for it sounds just like 'Dan.'"

"Dan who?" I asked.

"Why, Dan West. There aren't two of him."

Men are deceivers ever. L. S.

This Is Sad, Indeed.

When it comes to deception, girls can give us the dust any day. I worked for a farmer and fell in love with his daughter. She vowed she loved me and we planned to be married the next month. While I was away on a threshing job she ran away with a summer boarder. She had helped him go my new suit and the wedding ring I'd bought, also my watch and $40 I had saved up for the honeymoon. J. C. M.

What's Wrong Here?

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

10¢ CASCARETS

For Constipated Bowels, Sick Headache, Upset Stomach, Colds, Biliousness, Bad Breath

Your bowels may seem regular—move every day—yet your thirty feet of bowels may be lined with poisonous waste which is being sucked into your blood, keeping you half sick, nervous, despondent and upset. Whether you have headache, colds, sour stomach, indigestion, or heart palpitation, it is usually from bowel poison.

Hurry! One or two Cascarets tonight will clean your bowels right. By morning all the constipation poison and sour bile will move out—thoroughly! Cascarets will not sicken you—they physic fully, but never gripe or inconvenience.

Children love Cascarets too. 10c boxes, also 25 and 50c sizes. Any drugstore.

Ambitious Chicago Women never let a morning pass without a careful reading of THE TRIBUNE. They know they can't afford to.

"That's What I'll Give Her!"

WHAT better gift could you give her than freedom from youth-destroying drudgery of housecleaning—more hours for relaxation and play? What gift would better fit the present day spirit of useful giving?

What would gladden her heart like an electric vacuum cleaner, which will mean more time for pleasurable pursuits, the saving of prized household possessions from the ravages of dust and dirt, and greater health and happiness in her home?

Why not give her a useful, practical present this year—a tireless electrical cleaning servant that works at the cost of a few cents a week—and is always ready!

Why not insure her a spic, span house without the muss and fuss and back-breaking toil of eternal sweeping, beating and dusting?

You can do it with the electric vacuum cleaner. Any dealer or your lighting company will demonstrate this indispensable household labor-saver to you. Furthermore, if you telephone, or call in person immediately, they'll put your purchase aside for Christmas delivery.

Buy it now! Have it for her Christmas morning!

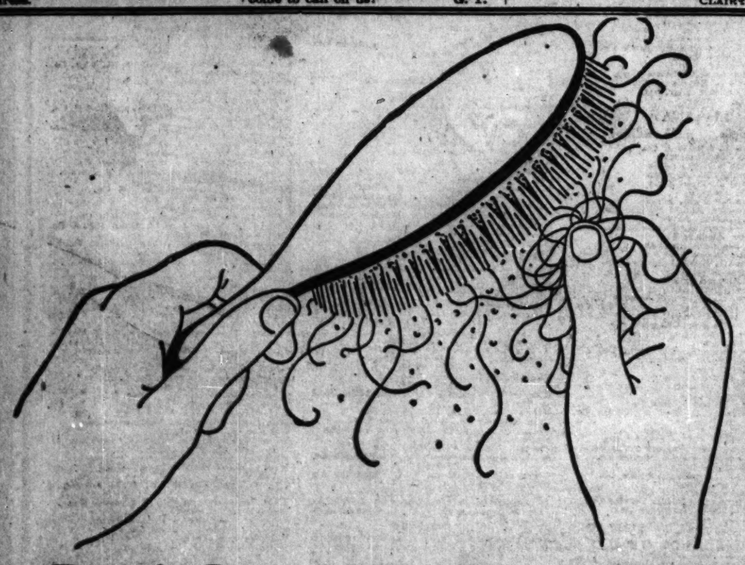
It is the gift of a lifetime—for a lifetime!

In the "Good Old Days" everyone used tallow candles to read by and willow-switch brooms to sweep with.

Today homes glow with light from incandescent bulbs and shine with cleanliness easily maintained by the electric vacuum cleaner.

Think back to these "Good Old Days." Their needless drudgery has been banished forever by Electricity, The Burden Bearer. More convenience outlets in your home will lift even more of your present day burdens. Think it over! Then think of your electric light and power company that makes it possible.

With its handy attachments, your electric vacuum cleaner removes all filth and dirt from tufted upholstery and mattress. It also aerates pillows.



Don't Lose Another Hair!

A 35c bottle of delightful "Danderine" will Save Any Man or Woman's Hair—See Dandruff Go!

Hurry! It's your duty! Each day you see a little more hair coming out and you are making no effort to avoid baldness. What a pity. Falling hair means your hair is weak, sick,—possibly dandruff is strangling it or the hair-root pores in the scalp are not firm and tight, thus wasting the hair-growing oils.

Danderine almost instantly stops falling hair and cleans every particle of dandruff away, then your hair takes on new life, vigor and strength to grow long, thick, strong and luxuriant.

Danderine is delightful—not sticky or greasy. Go to any drugstore now and get a bottle. Use it. Have healthy, heavy, beautiful hair and lots of it.

Presenting One's Living Room with a New Chair Requires Thought for Old Ones

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problem pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

By Anita de Campi.

LIKE a new friend is a new chair in the home—exhilarating and refreshing. It fills one with a sense of anticipation and of experiences to come. Care must be taken in selecting such a new friend, not to make the old ones unhappy with a feeling of shabbiness. In placing a new piece in the midst of old furniture, one must be sure to have it correspond in character and coloring.

Now that the winter days are here, and we have abandoned our porches and lawns to spend more time indoors, we are sure to find that a companionable chair is a thing to be sought for and cherished. It will make our living room seem gay and pleasant.

Upholstered in flowered chintz, a low, old fashioned rocker, with an accompanying sewing table of brown mahogany would invite us to make use of our idle moments. A lamp, with a parchment shade, placed on the table, completes the efficiency, as well as the decorativeness of this arrangement.

A guest chair is of the type so loved by an occasional visitor. Comfortably upholstered, with its back so low as not to disturb her hat, it is an inducement for her to stay "just a little longer" and share all the latest news with us. It is covered in black and silver Italian damask. A little, mirror topped table is enameled black, decorated with silver lines. An accommodating reading lamp helps to make the corner thoroughly enjoyable.

To be used before a colonial secretary is a quaint, ladder backed chair. It is of brown mahogany, matching the secretary, and has a rush seat. As an accessory, it would be a valuable addition to almost any room.

Windsor chairs add distinction and are sure to be satisfactory in living, dining, or bedrooms—or even in hallways. A small, graceful side chair of this type, in mahogany, can be used in a great variety of places. The various types of Windsor chairs, with wood or rush seats, are always delightful. They lend themselves well to paint and enamel decoration.

Mauve and sand are the dominant colors in a sun room. Two incidental Windsor chairs are painted deep turquoise, with edgings of mauve. Figured fabric, combining all of these colors, with accenting notes of henna, is used for the cushions and window drapes. The pane curtains are of sand colored marquisette.

If your living room is lacking in color you could give it the necessary touch by means of an upholstered chair. An easy chair, covered in soft green satin, with a wistaria satin stripe on the side, would be pleasing in a room where tans predominate. It could have an extra cushion of wistaria satin.

A low, overstuffed arm chair, with an upholstered stool and a small drop leaf table, make a desirable group, especially when placed near a bookcase or fireplace. The chair and the stool top could be covered with decorative hand blocked linen, in gay colors. The table should match the wood of the chair and stool.

Great simplicity and dignity characterize a pleasing arrangement in the corner of a living room. A striped satin covered love seat is accompanied by a small Directoire chair and a little table. On the table stands an Italian pottery lamp, with a painted lacquer shade.

The fireplace, in another living room, is made intensely interesting by a pair of overstuffed arm chairs. These face one another, at either side of the fireplace. They are upholstered in old blue damask, and have extra cushions of black and old gold brocade, finished at each end with long, black tassels. The floor cushions are of deep mulberry velour. Each chair has a small side table for the accommodation of smoking accessories and occasional books.

A Chair That Radiates Comfort.

For the informal living room, an hour glass chair is suitable. It may be left its natural color, stained and varnished, painted or enameled to harmonize with some other color in the room. Fitted, then, with bright chints or vivid velveteen cushions, it is sure to result in satisfactory gayety.

French styles may be employed meritoriously in small rooms. Their elegance is in no way dependent upon large spaces for adequate expression. In one corner of a Louis Seize bedroom there is an upholstered arm chair of delicate lines, covered with a simple brocade, in a diaper pattern. At one side is a beautifully designed marble mantel, and at the other a delicate bookcase. The cream colored walls are paneled. Jade green taffeta cushions add their note of color.

The required spot of brilliant color so essential in a hallway is introduced by means of a simple grouping of two chairs and a commode. The commode is dark, rich red, with Italian decorations and moldings of antique gold. At each side stands a walnut chair with a black red pad, corded in chair with a black rep pad, corded in dark colors. Above the commode hangs a reproduction of an antique floral painting.

Painted rush seat chairs of unusual design give a note of festivity to the sunroom. Light and reasonably small, they are particularly well adapted to average sized apartment rooms. With natural colored rush seats, the wooden parts are especially attractive painted peacock blue, with edgings of dull gold. Accenting touches of flame color should be added to the general scheme.

An exceptionally fine Chippendale chair, upholstered in Burgundy brocatelle, improves the appearance of a colonial living room. Its companion piece, a small drop-leaf table in natural colored mahogany, accommodates the indispensable ash tray, glass, or bon bon dish.

Small, low chairs placed in bedrooms have been given the pleasing name of "slipper chairs." In a colonial bedroom, there is one placed at the foot of each of the twin four posters. The seats are of rush, and the mahogany backs barely reach above the foot boards of the beds.

An eighteenth century softwood rocker has a wide splat up the back, decorated with a quaint floral design. The chair is painted black to match an old-fashioned dresser and side chair.

Another colonial bedroom has its side and arm chairs upholstered in an old-fashioned garden design of nosegays. The dominant color of the flowers, peony pink, is repeated in the silk poplin window drapes.

A comfortable grouping is suggested in today's illustration. The overstuffed chair is upholstered in a combination of old gold and black damask and old gold colored satin. The little table and reading lamp are of walnut, and the lamp shade is of parchment.

Answers to Queries.

C. C. C.: Gather the material on rods at top and bottom. Use a French heading for finish.

* *

M. H. C.: For the glass curtains in your living room use heavy sand colored silk gauze, and for the overdrapes use striped casement silk combining old blue, sand color, and mulberry, with hairlines of black. It is not necessary to have the bedroom rug match the one in the living room. Use old ivory silk gauze glass curtains with Du Barry rose taffeta drapes. Combine Du Barry rose and sage green taffeta for your bedspread, bench, and pillows.

* *

H. B.: In the mahogany bedroom have French gray walls and cretonne drapes, with Du Barry rose dominating. Have sand colored walls in one of the maple bedrooms, and an unobtrusive patterned flower paper in the other. Paper the living and dining rooms alike, in two toned ecru.

* *

L. J. R.: For furnishing an apartment living room attractively and inexpensively, reed furniture or wicker fiber furniture is quite effective. It comes in good looking styles and color combinations and fits in well with modern art accessories, rugs, and hangings. An enameled fiber set of furniture in corn yellow, trimmed with scarlet, would be striking. The floor covering could be an ecru and black fiber rug, in large alternating squares, and the drapes of cretonne, in a modern pattern combining corn color, scarlet, black, and olive green.

* *

M. E. L.: French gray paper, with an invisible design, would be suitable for your living and dining rooms.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Dry or hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or frail busted? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice you can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

SIBYL: IF THERE IS NO EYE-strain felt other than the natural tire after a day's work, there is no need of an eye wash. I do advise, however, on the experience of one of the best eye men in the country, applying a warm cloth to the closed lids and letting it remain on for a few minutes. This releases the eye muscles from the set position they have been in, and rests them greatly. In the morning, follow the face ablution by repeating the water application, using cold water instead of hot. I have a little pamphlet on care of the eyes with a lot of useful information I got from the eye specialist before referred to. Send s. a. e. for it, if you wish it.

MARION: I AM CONTINUALLY being surprised with the number of requests for a cure for nail biting. It must be nervousness that makes grown-ups indulge in the disfiguring habit. Pride in nails should help. But if you need something to apply, here it is: Alcohol, 1¼ ounces; chinoidin, ¼ ounce; gum mastic, ¼ ounce, and gum myrrh, 1¼ ounce. Mix, let stand forty-eight hours, shaking bottle occasionally. Apply with camel's hair brush. This can be removed with alcohol or hot water.

This Will Ward Off And Break Up Colds

Just a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin removes the congestion

THE two ailments that people generally regard as of the least importance are in reality the cause of most serious illnesses and of the greatest proportion of deaths.

They are constipation and common colds. Many doctors now believe that colds, tonsilitis, a touch of malaria will cause constipation, instead of constipation being their cause. The fact remains that you seldom have a cold without constipation, due to general congestion. The only way to avoid colds is to keep up your vitality. You usually catch cold in the winter if you are run down. Therefore in cold weather exercise more; eat more fatty foods; drink four to six glasses of water a day; keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

You are also less liable to colds if your system is free from the intestinal poisons of constipation, so empty the bowels regularly with a plain vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves: "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipation? I will gladly let you try Syrup Pepsin. I will also present a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an extended test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

At the first sign of a cold, at the first few warning sneezes, take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin and the congestion will be gone in a few hours. Don't wait until the cold has a grip on you. Mr. Henry Dean, Jr., of Rochester, N. Y., cured a stubborn cold in just that way, and Mrs. Alice Corbbrey of Haskell, Okla., uses it effectively for all the small ills of her family, such as constipation, biliousness, headaches, dizziness, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is safe to give to infants, and all children like it. Before you again resort to cold remedies containing narcotics try a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist will supply you, and the cost is less than a cent a dose.

GOOD morning!

Just think—next time we talk about the best films of the month Christmas will have come and gone and we'll be started on the new year with all it holds for us. Eeny, meeny, miny mo——?

Well, this year hasn't been so bad from the picture standpoint, and looking back over November you will recollect pictures, aside, possibly, from the ones I have selected, that have given you a lot of pleasure and caused your doldrums to silently steal away. Aint?

"TO HAVE AND TO HOLD," co-starring Betty Compson and Bert Lytell, was vivid and picturesque and romantic and heart stirring. It was made from the novel by Mary Johnston. So many times pictures taken from books lack the thing of the original story. "To Have and to Hold" did not. The director knew what he was about every moment and a handpicked cast helped him along. The photography and scenery were of the best.

"EAST IS WEST" introduced Constance Talmadge in the rôle made famous on the stage by Fay Bainter. Miss Talmadge in the robes of the Chinese maiden was good to look at. She loves to "kid" her rôles and her Ming Toy suffered a little perhaps from too much burlesquing. On the whole, though, the picture was satisfactory, being quaint, colorful, well acted and directed. (If you by any chance keep the original movie reviews you will notice that the writer, being hard up for words, quotes herself now and then.)

CONSTANCE TALMADGE.
[Fairchild Photo.]

"THE GHOST BREAKER" featured Wallace Reid. Mr. Reid looked a bit thin, but he did good acting, and he had an interesting story to exploit his efforts. Supported by Miss Lila Lee, as a lady-afraid-of-ghosts he was supposed to hocus pocus out of the way for her, he engineered a racy, merry film from an intriguing start to a finish, pleasing to hero, heroine, and optience, and, of course, utterly devastating to villains concerned, of which there were many.

THOMAS MEIGHAN.

"THE MAN WHO SAW TOMORROW" and "MANSLAUGHTER" both featured Thomas Meighan, who did good work in both pictures. The latter, however, had a far better story as a basis than did the former. The former is listed as a good program picture—the latter as a super-feature with real thought behind it.

"THE MAN WHO PLAYED GOD" was George Arliss in a photoplay made from the original story by Gouverneur Morris. Fascinating, I thought. Held your interest and warmed your heart and satisfied your brain all at the same time. That's filling some bill.

"ARABIA"? Mr. Tom Mix stealing Mr. Rodolf Valentino's stuff in a truly Mixian fashion. It may make a hit with the Mix fans.

"ALIAS JULIUS CAESAR" caused the Charles Ray devotees to heave a sigh of relief. At last their "sad eyed" darling had "come back." Mr. Ray, you know, hasn't been going over vurr' strong in some of his recent pictures. In "ALIAS JULIUS CAESAR" he donned a sheet and a bath towel and showed 'em.

Chicago Does Not Care Much for Wagnerian Opera, and Proves It

By Edward Moore.

PROBABLY no one who observes the phenomena of music and those who make it ever thought that there could be the slightest connection between German opera and American opera. They are so diverse in style, matter, and manner that one would imagine they could be brought together only by the venerable British wheeze, "because there's a b in both." But the Chicago Civic Opera company has found another bond of union between the two, one that touches it on its most sensitive nerve, the box office. The public in large numbers stays away from both.

ROSA RAISA
As Minnie in "The Girl of the Golden West," Tuesday.
[Underwood and Underwood Photo.]

This is no ironic exaggeration, but a perfectly serious statement of fact. "The sixth German city of the world" is declining to support German opera, and as a result German opera is promptly being thrown into the discard.

"Parsifal" has been given twice to such poor houses that it will be given no more. "Die Walkuere" is billed for this afternoon, with a possibility of one later repetition. It then will go into the silence. "Tannhäuser" was listed in this year's repertoire. It is not now so listed. The next time Wagnerian opera is considered, which will not be this season, it will be in a special series, and then only as a result of a special subscription that must be large enough to show that there is some public interest in it.

There has been nearly as much talk, nearly as large a cloud of the dust of propaganda, over German opera as over American opera or opera in English, but the greater part of the activity has been meekly conversational. The present opera management paraphrases the words of "The Young Visiters" famous a couple of seasons ago, in saying that it prefers an activity that will be less mere. They say at the Auditorium that the practice of spending thousands of dollars on rehearsals for a performance that the public shows it does not care to hear is one that adds little pleasure to the contemplation of the balance sheet. They have therefore decreed a prompt discontinuance thereof.

A sordid view of lofty art? Agreed, meine Damen und Herren. But the Chicago Civic Opera company was formed on the theory of bringing the most opera to the most people, and the box office is its best indicator.

Unexpected Seems to Be Rule.

The business of giving opera has more surprises in it than most other businesses. German opera was attempted several times last season, with surprises enough for any season. "Tannhäuser" became a hit and was played a number of times. "Lohengrin" in English appeared only once, consequently without much of a basis for comparison. "Tristan and Isolde" was a large sized failure from the managerial standpoint.

[Mishkin Photo.]

It was by no means ideally cast, which may have had something to do with the lack of public response, though when I ventured to point out as mildly as possible that its greatest musical values lay in the orchestra, my mail was heavier for days afterward with letters that ran all the way from pained expostulation to indignant and whole-hearted scolding. I was assured by the wholesale that art is international and knows no boundaries. This I seem to have a faint recollection of having heard before, but I am still curious to know who started the fantastic fable that I had said there never had been and never would be a German tenor. That was a total surprise.

At any rate, Chicago has proved that it cares little for German opera,

War of Juliets Between Best Friends Full of Promise

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—I will tell you the story as it was told to me. Ethel Barrymore was rehearsing, or was about to place in rehearsal, Shakespeare's "As You Like It." She was to play Rosalind and McKay Morris Orlando, Morris being the eager voluptuary of "Aphrodite" a season back, who is now her leading man in "Rose Bernd." But along came brother Jack with his production of "Hamlet," which sister Ethel saw. Immediately thereafter she decided to substitute "Romeo and Juliet" for "As You Like It," with Morris as Romeo.

ETHEL BARRYMORE.

The assumption being that the actress, seeing Jack was fired with a desire to do something Shakespearean as soon as possible, and, having studied Juliet more or less [she played the balcony scene at an Equity benefit during the actors' strike, with Conway Tearle as her Romeo], she felt that she could get up in the Capulet rôle quicker than she could in any other. But she swore her company to secrecy lest her change of plans leak out.

Suddenly out of a clear sky came the announcement from the Belwyn offices that Jane Cowl also had been secretly rehearsing "Romeo and Juliet" with the intention of producing it before Christmas. This may and may not have been a surprise to Miss Barrymore. But whether it was or not it served to force her hand, and the next day she published her Juliet plans. So now we are in the midst of what the reporters like to speak of as a "war of Juliets." Miss Cowl's Romeo has not been officially named as I write this, but my guess is that he will be Rollo Peters, a soulful lad who was one of the founders of the Theater guild, but who this season played successfully opposite Miss Cowl in "Malvaloca." Peters, at least, is designing the scenery.

Shakespeare Crashes Into Broadway.

It promises to be a spirited and an intense contest, this one of the Juliets, whatever may appear on the surface. Miss Barrymore and Miss Cowl are the best of friends, and both ardent supporters of the Actors' Equity association. But under the skin, so to speak, each has a complete confidence in her ability to read Shakespeare and sound the deeper meanings of Juliet a little more impressively than the other, and each is being coached by older Shakespearean players that nothing may so mar in her reading of her performance that may reasonably be avoided.

JANE COWL.

Miss Barrymore will be advantaged by her lovely voice and her personal charm. Miss Cowl will have a little the better of her in the matter of years and, it may be, in the beauty of the picture she will present. They should read equally well, and be on even terms in the few dramatic scenes the rôle offers.

Broadway is unquestionably stirred. If it is not quite all agog as yet, it is at least approaching the qui vive. And all the ambitious Shakespeareans in town are becoming suddenly enthused. David Warfield is on his way with Shylock and David Belasco's "Merchant of Venice." There is a rumor that Lionel Barrymore, refusing to play the part assigned him in Eugene O'Neill's "The Fountain," will go through with his plan to revive "Othello," and both Lionel Atwill and Norman Trevor threaten to play "Henry V."

Probably somewhere in heaven William Shakespeare is standing around the intersection of Gold street and Pearl avenue boasting to Jonson and the boys of having at last crashed into Broadway.

An Error in Casting.

Mr. Thomas Inaugurates an American National Theater

By Sheppard Butler.

MR. AUGUSTUS THOMAS has launched a plan for an American national theater. He is a dramatist of distinction and a man of ripe experience in all the branches of stagecraft. Moreover, he is the executive chairman of the Producing Managers' association—the official head and arbiter of commercial amusement affairs in the United States. Thus he speaks ex cathedra. His pronouncement, it would appear, gives promise of being the most important thing that has ever happened to the cause of art for art's sake in the drama.

MARTHA BRYAN ALLEN
as the horseback rider in "He Who Gets Slapped," at the Playhouse.
[Merrill Photo.]

He makes known the undertaking that is in his mind, he says, "to answer the questions that come from all over the country as to what I intend to do in this present office to which I have been led." His enterprise, he announces, has assurance of support, not only from various educators, publicists, dramatists, and actors, but also from those who bestowed upon him his "present office." If the producing managers of the United States are actively interested in the establishment of an American national theater, it seems likely that an American national theater will be established. It will, one would think, be a vastly different venture from the "New" and "Little" theaters put forth by the devoted ones in the past.

It is all very exciting.

But what does Mr. Thomas propose? Getting down from inspiration to first steps, one encounters a bit of puzzlement. I have read his confession of faith* several times, and I confess to being somewhat at sea as to what the American national theater will be like.

*In the current Saturday Evening Post.

"Timeliness of Performance, Unanimity of Attention."

Three sources, says Mr. Thomas, are to be drawn upon for the bone and sinew of the new movement:

First—The artistic skill and business acumen of the commercial managers.

Second—The aspirations of the professional players to do better and finer things.

Third—The enthusiasm and widespread organization of the various amateur dramatic clubs throughout the United States.

JOE WEBER and LEW FIELDS in "Republic," at the Garrick

Very well, then. How are these elements to be fused? Why, says Mr. Thomas, the dramatic clubs are to be encouraged to organize themselves on a self-sustaining basis, and are to be given current plays to act in competition with each other and with the professional companies. Amateur stage managers are to make occasional trips to the city to see how the original companies do things. There will be "timeliness of performance, unanimity of attention throughout the country." That will be a national theater.

No doubt Mr. Thomas knows. No individual, perhaps, has a better insight into what the country needs, dramatically, than he. If it is not quite clear on the surface precisely how the skill and acumen of the managers are to be utilized, or the aspirations of the professional actors served, by consolidating and quickening the activities of the amateurs, that may be set down, one assumes, to the peculiar obtuseness of an outsider.

But it does seem a little nebulous. Maybe Mr. Thomas will tell us more.

The New Plays

OPENING TONIGHT.

"Spice of 1922" (Studebaker)—A spectacular entertainment of the New York Winter Garden type, authored by Jack Lait and populated by various survivors of a rapidly changing cast. Of the original players, Valeska Suratt, Midgie Miller, Sam Hearn, George Bobbe, Eddie Nelson, Arman Kalis, and some others remain; the newcomers include El Brendel, Flo Burt, Llora Hoffman, and Nitza Vernille.

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"He Who Gets Slapped" (Playhouse)—A fantastic and, perhaps, symbolic melodrama by the late Leonid Andreyev, variously called "the Poe of Russia" and "after Tolstoi, the most gifted Russian writer." It is concerned with adventures among the members of a circus troupe in France, the chief characters being a mysterious dreamer and philosopher who assumes the motley of a clown, and a girl bareback rider in whose perilous affairs he interests himself. Richard Bennett acts the clown, as he did for the New York Theater Guild last season; Martha Bryan Allen has been moved up from a minor part to succeed Margalo Gillmore as the girl of the fable, and the other rôles have been in all instances newly apportioned.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"La Tendresse" (Blackstone, Dec. 11)—Henry Miller and Miss Ruth Chatterton in a play from the French of Henry Bataille.

"Mister Antonio" (Powers', Dec. 11)—Otis Skinner in a revival of his familiar comedy by Booth Tarkington.

"The Demi-Virgin" (La Salle, Dec. 17)—Avery Hopwood's farce about goings-on among the folk of Hollywood.

"Partners Again" (Selwyn, Dec. 24)—Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr in a new Potash and Perlmutter comedy.

"Shore Leave" (Powers', Dec. 25)—Miss Frynices Starr in a new comedy by Hubert Osborne.

"The Book of Job" (Dec. 25)—Stuart Walker's dramatic arrangement of the Biblical narrative, coming to a theater as yet unannounced.

"Sally" (Colonial, Jan. 7)—The aristocrat of the musical comedies (so they say), with Leon Errol and Marilyn Miller prominently present.

"The Wheel of Life" (Blackstone, Jan. 8)—Miss Elsie Ferguson in a new play of Indian atmosphere by James Bernard Fagan.

The Twelve Best Movies of Month

star cast, had one great advantage. It was "different." Also, it was distinguished by much good work on the part of everybody concerned. If you don't know what a sin flood is, see the picture when it comes to your neighborhood theater.

"ONE EXCITING NIGHT" (again she quotes herself) was Mr. Griffith's jazz baby. The renowned producer let loose. He plunged into mystery and comedy and melodrama all in one. He had his optiences laughing, gasping, shivering, shouting. "ONE EXCITING NIGHT" was one WIZ of a film!

"THE IMPOSSIBLE MRS. BELLEW" gave Gloria Swanson something to do besides look beautiful and she did it nobly.

"THE YOUNG RAJAH"—AH—RODOLFIO VALENTINIO — so romantic-lo, so appealing-lo! In a good story, well directed, photographed, and all the rest.

Well—I've run down. Glad?

["A Star at Large" will be found on page 19.]

Ask Me! Ask Me!

H. C. M.: We'd like to complete your "movie happiness" as you suggest, and will endeavor to print the picture some time in the sweet bye and bye.

CHAPLIN FAN: No much alive, I believe. Exceedingly busy seeing that the carpenters drive the nails in straight on his new house that will be right next door to the Fairbanks' residence at Beverly Hills. He is NOT married. Dear knows, though, he's the most engaged man in the world. (According to reports.) A democratic young man, however—never to the same girl twice.

Y. O. U.: Spank him!

THE KICK KORNER

"Dear Miss Tinée: I want to use your korner to complain about an imposition on the picture going public. I went to see "Don't Shoot," featuring Herbert Rawlinson—expecting to be entertained with a new and interesting picture, instead of which I found myself wasting my time and fifty cents to see an old picture masquerading under a new name—and with some of its best parts cut. Two women came in and sat near me. Soon I overheard one say: "I've seen this thing before," and the other replied, "So have I—they've put it on under a new name. Let's get out." Two more people taken in and another dollar unfairly extracted from the public.

Reader of Your Corner.

[Editor's Note: Things of this kind are often tried ONCE—but seldom a second time. Producers are learning that honesty pays in their business, same as any other.]

Dear Miss Tinee: Because the majority of people in this country are Christians—even if we are not all devout church goers—it is extremely revolting to see the crucifixion of Christ made the butt of a joke, as it is in the "$5 Baby." I can imagine nothing more profane than the subtitle alluding to the figure of Christ on the cross as "Houdini," who will "get out of it some way." I would not want my children to see that picture. You surely did not see that or your review would have carried the sting that you know how to use when necessary.

H. P. D.

[Editor's Note: The picture referred to was St. Sebastian. Just the same, I am inclined to agree with you—though I don't believe any offense was intended.]

Dear Miss Tinée: The picture "North of the Rio Grande," featuring Jack Holt and Bebe Daniels, has been shown at the local playhouse. To my mind the climax of the picture came when Red Star, the newly purchased horse, was led or rather dragged in. To the surprise and wonder of this country audience, Red Star the "King Horse," the "Head of the Herd," turned out to be a poor broom-tailed livery stable mare. P. T. Barnum was some sucker player in his day, but the motion picture game has him looking like a dirty deuce. Yours truly,

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Weaving Substance of Dreams Into Stone and Plaster

By Mme. X.

CHICAGO is nothing if not fashionable. For years she constricted all her vital organs in what we called the loop. In her constantly tightening belt she endured untold agonies, nearly ruining her digestive organs and almost destroying her circulation. But, as small waists were the mode when this band of iron and steel was placed around her young and buxom form, she endured the necessary anguish with a patience and fortitude worthy of a better cause.

When straight fronts came in she did not immediately grasp the full meaning and desirability of the change in modes. It took her some years to realize that she was not only old fashioned but really grotesque. As soon as she did, however, she set to work to discard her former attire and today in Michigan avenue she has the handsomest straight front of any city in the world. And with the new style has come better circulation, lower blood pressure, and improved assimilation and digestion.

Now comes the problem of so dressing her straight front with suitable attire that it shall outshine and outdo all other rival cities. To this end THE TRIBUNE architectural contest has given an impetus whose importance and far reaching influence it is hard to estimate adequately. The extraordinary and entirely novel assemblage of designs for sky scrapers which has been gathered here from all parts of the world, can not fail to be a turning point in this form of architecture which may inaugurate a new era for business structures.

Beauty and Utility.

Almost with one accord the artists competing sent in plans that emphasize the soaring qualities of our modern twenty and thirty story buildings. With extraordinarily beautiful leaps and bounds these submitted designs depict stone, brick, and plaster as the substance of brilliant dreams wherein the famous cathedrals, turreted castles, impressive domes, and the stately palaces of all past history have contributed their inspiration to the dreamer.

That beauty and utility can be lawfully wedded is demonstrated by the design chosen by THE TRIBUNE. That after this any builders of business structures can entirely disregard the outward appearance and concentrate only on the serviceable is hard to believe.

Picturing in Fancy.

After an inspection of the designs submitted to THE TRIBUNE, the fancy pictures to the imagination Michigan avenue from the river northward, to Chicago avenue, that at present desert stretch of great possibilities, as the eighth wonder of the modern world, a highway bordered by amazing spires, domes, towers, assaulting the sky line from their lofty vantage points on the summits of mighty office buildings. When that day comes Chicago's sons and daughters will no longer have to go abroad in search of beauty and splendor and inspiration, as so many of them think they have to do today. Instead they will be able to look on at tourists from the rest of the world assembling here to see what we have done to make our material civilization a part of the esthetic development of mankind.

Apropos of the above mentioned building on the site of old Fort Dearborn, the Chicago Historical society (that valiant custodian of Chicago's honorable past) and the London Guarantee and Accident company (which is putting up the structure) have sent out jointly invitations to the laying of the corner stone of this latest of skyscrapers. The ceremony is to take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock on the southwest plaza of the boulevard link bridge.

The military band from Fort Sheridan will play; William H. Bush will preside; the Rev. John Timothy Stone will give the invocation; Clarence A. Busley, president of the Historical society, will welcome the company in the name of the society; Otto L. Schmidt, John S. Miller Jr., and Thomas J. Condon will make a few remarks, while the principal speakers of the day will be Brig. Gen. George Van Horn Mosely, who will talk on "Fort Dearborn"; Frank L. Loesch, who will talk on "Chicago," and Alfred S. Alschuler, who will speak of "The Building." William Robert Wood of Omaha, Neb., great-grandson of the builder of Fort Dearborn, Capt. John Whistler, will lay the corner stone.

It will be a most interesting and important occasion. Among the guests of honor will be the Sons and Daughters of the Pioneers. Among the latter will be John Wentworth, Frank Hoyne, Thomas M. Hoyne, Miss Catherine Arnold, Roswell Mason, H. E. Hamilton, Edward L. Ryerson, Arthur Meeker, P. F. W. Peck, Potter Palmer, Ferdinand Peck, Charles B. Pike, Robert Allerton, Mrs. Mason Bross, Mrs. F. O. Lowden, and Mrs. George L. Dunlap.

Preserving Chicago History.

In 1831 John Wentworth ("Long John," as he was known in his day) made the address at the unveiling of the tablet which for many years identified the site; and Chicago's most distinguished pioneer of that time, Gurdon Hubbard, drew the flag from the tablet. This tablet will rest in time in the corridor of the building to be erected there. It seems unfortunate that it could not have been incorporated in the outer walls so that the millions who will pass it in the years to come might read it and be reminded of the swift growth of Chicago.

Among the things to be placed in the corner stone will be a blue print of the original design of Fort Dearborn, a photographed copy of a letter written from the fort by Capt. Whistler, a piece of the old fort, and several historical works describing Chicago's early days.

Every effort to preserve and emphasize our history and its records should be encouraged. The present is a devouring and destructive monster, ready to eat its ancestors if they threaten to impede its terrific course through eternity.

Ball of the Season.

Chicago has had many charity balls, but never one quite equal to the Bal Fantastique to which we are all invited next Tuesday evening at the Trianon on the corner of 62d street and Cottage Grove avenue. Besides being set in new and unusually beautiful surroundings, and besides offering to its guests the most brilliant and famous jazz band in the world, that of Paul Whiteman, it calls for our interest and support in that practically every cent the tickets bring in will go direct to the charities to be benefited.

Never before in history did a great enterprise like this have such a small overhead expense. The owner and builder of the Trianon, Mr. Karsaz, has donated not only the hall itself, one of the most stunning to be found in America today, but he has also given the services of the Whiteman band, an attraction to the true dancer of first magnitude.

The ball will have some distinguished and interesting guests. Gen. Dawes is bringing Gen. Pershing, who will be a prominent figure. Most of the dramatic talent in town will also be there. Among the celebrities to be seen will probably be Doris Keane, Grant Mitchell, Frank Craven, Richard Bennett, Allan Pollock and Willie Collier. It is hoped that some of the opera stars will also be present. They are a shy and elusive element in our society and do not seem to hanker for that friendly and cordial welcome which awaits their appearance in non-professional circles. But if they go anywhere it would be to a ball such as this one is to be.

To attempt to give you the names of the fashionables who will be there would be simply to copy the entire social register. It will be the ball of the season. Don't miss it! Tickets can be had at the door.

Gayest of Grandmothers.

Last week two important balls occupied the energies of the gay set, the Bachelors and Benedicts on Wednesday evening and the ball given by "Some Bachelors" on Friday, both at the Congress hotel.

A sequel to the last named is the ball to be given on Thursday evening, Dec. 21, at the Blackstone by "Some Grandmothers."

Did ever a nation breed such grandmothers as ours, such youthful, spirited, good looking, well dressed, gay mothers of mothers? Not in recorded history. And the youngest, handsomest, most delightful are to be found right here in Chicago. They are of the kind to banish the old fashioned dread of the honor which used to prevail. In other days youngish grandmothers used to invent names for themselves which they were wont to teach their grandchildren to use instead of that beautiful word, "grandmother," or the affectionate, if less reverent, "grannie." Today they delight in the latter term and accept the former with a smile, as if to say, "Isn't it ridiculous and incredible?"

And now four of the youngest and gayest of them are inviting their friends to a ball. The hostesses will be Mrs. William James Chalmers, Mrs. John James Mitchell, Mrs. Edward Foster Swift, and Mrs. Charles Garfield King. It is a safe bet that there will be no regrets except from the mourning or moribund.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

Husbands to Be Edgewater Drama Club's Audience

By Kate Webber.

ONE of the interesting smaller clubs of the north side, the Edgewater Drama Study club, is entering upon the eleventh year of its existence, with a program of interesting study along the line its title suggests. Organized in 1912, the chief object of the charter members was to pursue the study of the drama and of dramatic literature. Since that time the scope of the club's activities has broadened to include the study of new movements, such as better American speech, current events, local and national politics, also the relief of the needy and destitute.

The club membership is limited to fifty, and meets on alternate Fridays during the autumn and winter at the residences of members. One meeting each month is set aside as guest day, when professional talent provides a program of unusual interest.

On regular meeting days members participate in the work which is largely of an educational nature. Afternoons are given to the study of the standard dramatists, their lives and works; including the discussion and analysis of current plays. One act plays in which members only take part form an occasional diversion and bring out the fact that there is much latent talent in even the most unassuming members.

This year's gala affair, which is given annually at the close of the autumn activities, will be two one act plays, "Overtones" and "Hyacinth Halvey," to be presented on the evening of Dec. 16, with the husbands of members as guests.

Officers of the club are Mrs. Theodore F. Laist, president; Mrs. Frank R. Morton, vice president; Mrs. W. D. Segar, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles B. Scott, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. J. Johnson, treasurer.

The Daughters of the West End Woman's Club are sponsoring a replica of the Atlantic City boardwalk next Wednesday at the clubhouse, 37 South Ashland avenue, the proceeds to go toward the maintenance of the Florence Crittenden anchorage. Dancing in the evening will conclude the event. Mrs. D. William Davies is president of the organization, an auxiliary of the West End Woman's club, which for years has played an important part in the community.

MRS. HERBERT L. FAIRFIELD.

COLUMBIA CABINETS

1—Stream-line Cabinets
Harmonize delightfully with your home furnishings. All finishes are beautiful and easily kept clean.

2—Automatic Record Ejector
Eliminates the search for the desired record. An ideal place for your choice selections. Automatically cleans them before use.

3—Tone Control Leaves
Loud or soft music as you choose—operates on same principle as pipe-organ control.

4—One-hand Top
Easy to raise and lower without danger of damage or breakage.

COLUMBIA TONE

5—Universal Reproducer which gives natural accuracy of tone because it is constructed to reproduce the proper balance between overtones and fundamental tones.

6—Straight Tone Arm which allows the sound waves to develop fully and naturally—unimpeded by joints and reflections—from the time they are picked off the record till they emerge through the tone arm.

7—Tone Amplifier which assures free and natural amplification. Size and design are the result of 30 years' constant experimentation.

Of all the year, Christmas is the most ideal time to buy a Columbia Grafonola! No other season is so filled with the thrills of gift-giving! On no other day is music so wonderful as on Christmas! Realize what a Columbia will mean in adding joy to the great festival—the dear old songs, the steppy-peppy dance music, the droll comedians!

Mr. Thomas and a National Theater; News of the Stage

In a communication sent out the other day he says the idea is "thus far only a suggestion and it is in that light that I hope you will consider it." So these lines may be both incompetent and irrelevant. Anyway, here's luck!

"He"—Irony or Romance?

Leonid Andreyev's "He Who Gets Slapped," which comes tomorrow night to the Playhouse, has been an object of keen discussion and a good deal of controversy since its importation to America by the New York Theater guild. Oliver M. Sayler, in his newly revised volume on "The Russian Theater," finds it "an ironic and half realistic, half symbolic sketch of the bare and tawdry life beneath the gilt of the circus," and complains that the guild has turned it into "a sentimental and melodramatic romance of the gilt which Andreyev expressly scorns."

Further opinions contributed by Gilbert Emery, Gilbert Seldes, Richard Bennett (who acts the chief rôle) and various others, are thus summarized by the guild:

"A compendium probably would strike poor Andreyev as a worse confusion than the Russian revolution itself. They (the opinions) range all the way from an explanation of the play as a 'dramatization of life's chaos' to its interpretation as a symbol of Russia. The little circus rider is Russia. He who gets slapped, the poor clown, is the Russian idealist and dreamer who can only save her by killing her. The wicked old baron is the old Tsarist régime. And so forth."

"He Who Gets Slapped" was played in Russia in 1916, and has been acted in France, Germany, Switzerland, and briefly, as "The Painted Laugh") in England. It has been erroneously announced as the last work of the novelist and dramatist, who died in exile in 1919. Two posthumous plays by him—"The Dance of the Dogs" and "Samson in Chains"—are to be produced in the United States, it is planned within a year. The Samson play, a tragedy, is said to have been regarded by Andreyev as his most important work.

Gossip of Plays and Players.

Rollo Peters, who played here with Miss Elsie Ferguson in "The Varying Shore," will be the Romeo in Miss Jane Cowl's forthcoming production of "Romeo and Juliet."

Miss Fay Bainter's trial performances of the Monckton Hoffe play variously called "The Painted Lady" and "The Lady Cristilinda," have not been encouraging, and the piece has been called in for repairs. It is told that William Harris spent just $46,000 to find out what it was like, and that he is now inclined to launch something else for Miss Bainter.

When Miss Grace George reaches Chicago this month or next with Paul Geraldy's "To Love," Robert Warwick will have left the cast of three. He cannot live on the road, he says, or is reported to have said, on $750 a week. William Boyd will succeed him and Norman Trevor, the third member of the original cast, will remain.

Mr. Woods, in Chicago last week, announced that Frank Craven and "The First Year" may be followed at the Woods by a production of "A Pearl of Great Price," by Robert McLaughlin of Cleveland. Craven, however, will stay as long as theatergoers in these parts seem to want him.

Miss Marie Doro, who has been at leisure since her New York appearances in William Hurlbut's "Lilies of the Field," will appear next month in another Hurlbut play, called "Made in Heaven."

"Gitta's Atonement," a play adapted from the German by George Bernard Shaw, is to be produced in this country with Mme. Bertha Kalich as its star. It is the work of Siegfreid Trebitsch, an Austrian.

When Miss Patti Harrold was singing the name part of "Irene" in Chicago last season it was promised that she should have a musical comedy of her own by the same authors. She now has it, and is rehearsing it. "Glory" is its name.

Percival Knight is to be the American actor of the title rôle in Bruce Bairnsfather's "Old Bill, M. P.", a sequel to "The Better 'Ole." Incidentally, he proposes to rewrite the play. Charles Coburn had designs on the part at one time, but he is busily and happily employed now in "So This Is London!" which seems to have settled down for a run at the Grand.

MISS EVELYN GERALD.

She is one of the more pictorial principals in the spectacular revue which comes, with many entertainers, to occupy the Studebaker this evening.

Bacon's Successor

JOHN D. O'HARA.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Through the death of Frank Bacon, Mr. O'Hara has fallen heir to the distinction of heading what is known as the original company in "Lightnin'." He has Bacon's part and acts with men and women who were Bacon's associates during more than four years. The company winds up its long Chicago run at the end of this week, but there are other engagements to be filled, and O'Hara, a native of Chicago and a former newspaper man, will help fill them. He played "Lightnin'" in Australia for nearly two years.

go; customs change; churches grow more modern every year, but the church bazaar or sociable continues to flourish, sometimes under one name, sometimes under another. Now it is the Christmas sale at St. Chrysostom's on North Dearborn avenue next Thursday that is absorbing the energies of a numerous group of prominent society women. They may call it a sale instead of a bazaar, but they include in it an old fashioned church supper, which will be in charge of Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock.

Will there be, do you suppose, the oyster that used always to be in church oyster stew? Will there be the chicken salad, the apple pies, the doughnuts and the chocolate cake of the days long gone by? We must go to see what changes time has made in cherished traditions.

There will also be "community dancing" [whatever that means], after supper, which festivity will be in the hands of Mrs. Philip Swift with Mrs William A. Fuller, Mrs. Jack Cochran Mrs. William Kelley, Mrs. William H Mitchell II., Miss Elizabeth Newberry, and Miss Lois Nelson to help her. In charge of the sales tables are the Mesdames G. A. McKinlock, Thomas Hinde, C. G. King, Frank Pagin, William Casselberry, George Ranney, Paul Noyes, J. M. Patterson, and D. Mark Cummings.

The money raised by the affair will be devoted to parish activities.

Old St. Chrysostom was a silver tongued orator who was archbishop of Constantinople in or about the year 345 A. D. and made his name and fame because, unlike his predecessors, he devoted the ample revenues of the church to the establishment of hospitals and to helping the poor.

Triumph of Spirit.

A large part of the activities of the modern society woman seems to be devoted to organising and promoting enterprises with which to raise money to run various extremely useful and valuable charities. Non-society folk have no idea how much strength, vitality, and intelligence of a high order are put into this form of work. For instance, Mrs. William J. Chalmers has the Country Home for Convalescent Crippled Children always on her mind. She has a fine board of helpers, but even so gives herself as ardently to her task as if she ran it alone.

Tomorrow at the Drake there is to be a sale of the toys and other articles made by these touching, eager little crippies. And what amazingly skillful fingers they have in spite of all their disabilities!

Ogden Armour is a liberal contributor to the support of the home, so as a sign of their gratitude the children recently made a miniature copy of one of the big Armour drays that used to be exhibited at every large fair in Europe to the wonderment of the Europeans. They modeled the massive percherons, made the harness, fashioned the trucks, and their varied contents, and presented it to him.

Tomorrow among the many other objects will be a complete and beautiful doll's house with every exterior and interior detail that can be imagined. There will also be many charming articles to serve as Christmas gifts and toys, toys, toys! There is something about the idea of toys made for the healthy, cherished children of the rich by these frail and suffering youngsters that grips the heart. It is of interest that a large percentage of the price of the things sold goes to the children who make them, only enough being kept out to pay for the materials. Each child has a bank account of his or her own. Such a sale is an exhibition of a great triumph of spirit over adversity. Be sure to go to it.

Molding Prospective Housewives.

Even more interesting to the philosopher than the charity which seeks to repair the frail human machine is that one which seeks to prevent trouble before it comes along. Of such is the Association of Housekeeping Centers, an organization which has established three model homes and is affiliated with two others, one at the Ellen Bates center and the other at the Chicago Commons. In these establishments instruction in the housewifely arts is given to girls of all ages. They are taught cooking, washing, house cleaning, bed making, sewing, mending, and all the other arts which go to make that shrine of wholesome national life, the home. They are furthermore instructed in the science of nutrition and the proper care of babies and young children, both of incalculable value, because they take their newly acquired learning home to many an unenlightened, overburdened mother.

[McElliott Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McCabe of 1038 Loyola avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Margaret, to William H. McElliott Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McElliott of 702 Buckingham place. The wedding took place on Wednesday in the Church of St. Ignatius of Loyola. Mr. and Mrs. McElliott Jr. will live in Detroit.

In one center in the neighborhood of the stockyards the kindly women in charge have even included the boys of the district in their ministrations. That part of the city was infested and tormented by a gang which called itself the "murderers" — cheerful name! The center offered to teach the lads all sorts of camp lore and cookery. After some hesitation the proposition was accepted. Put into practice the class was found to be highly appreciated and today the murderers are the guards and champions of that center. These centers also serve as clubs and general counselors for the adjacent residents and many a problem is brought there for solution.

But all this welfare work takes money, and the promoters of the enterprise now are asking their friends and well wishers to buy tickets for the second night of "Sally," which opens at Powers' theater on Jan. 7. Already all the boxes for the performance are sold. It promises to be a fashionable affair. President of the association is Mrs. James B. Baum Jr.

No Christmas enterprise is of more general interest and real value than the sale which the Artists' guild will hold in Gunsaulus hall at the Art institute, beginning Tuesday, Dec. 5, and lasting until Dec. 21. This guild is part of a world wide effort to preserve the hand wrought from being submerged in the vast flood of things made by machines. The former articles have soul, the latter precision. In the realm of the artistic the hand made has and the machine made lacks a prime requisite of a desirable possession when utility is not the sole object of it.

It is this idea of the encouragement of the really artistic that prompts the Art institute to give this sale house room. Articles in silver, bronze, wrought iron, paintings, jewelry, embroideries, and hand dyed things may be found in this collection and will make unique and desirable gifts.

Mrs. F. J. Reichmann is the president of the guild, and the patronesses of the sale are the Mesdames Jacob Baur, William Butterworth, Hubbard Carpenter, John Alden Carpenter, George Higginson, Lyman Walton, and Rockefeller McCormick, and the Misses Eames MacVeagh, Ira Nelson Morris, Martin Ryerson, Charles H. Swift, George F. Porter, F. J. Reichmann, John Schaffer, and William Wrigley Jr.

On Dec. 8 and 15 Mrs. John H. Hardin will serve tea after the Symphony concert in the rooms devoted to this sale. The guild is one of Chicago's enterprises which merits a hearty support both because of its high ideals and personnel.

The Wrap-Around Is So Wonderful a Corset Because It Is Invisible Under the Sheerest Gowns
Third Floor—Dearborn Street

It's especially adroit under the new chiffon velvet clinging gowns which mercilessly show the slightest wrinkle underneath; the fashionable woman never suggests by her appearance that she is corseted; her lines are youthful, flowing, softly graceful.

If you would attain this svelte and lovely contour, you will appreciate a new and charming Warner's Wrap-around, made of brocade or some other lightweight fabric, with just enough elastic to let you WRAP IT and SNAP IT on.

It will not stretch and it will hold your figure just as much as you wish to be held. Yes, a Wrap-Around may be worn successfully by even the full figure, since there is plenty of staying quality in the fabric and the most expert designing behind it. Sizes to 36. We fit it carefully, properly, without extra charge, 1.50 to 8.50

Out of Thin Air

By Guy Lee.

The moments speed, but the thoughts are slow,
The typewriter page is blank and plain;
The hour has come when I must go,
But for an idea I seek in vain.
How shall I fill the required space?
It's a terrible fix, without a doubt,
With certain failure I'm face to face
For I haven't a thing to write about.

The old bean's clogged; the works have flopped;
There's mush where the gray matter should be at;
The rimery's busted; the verse mill's stopped;
The lilter's walked out and left me flat.
When has a bard been so beset?
Was ever a poet in such rout?
I've got a condition that must be met
And I haven't a thing to write about.

I'm up against it; I don't know why;
It is my first and only fliv;
But what can I do since the well's run dry
And never a lyrical drop will give?
What a sad fate for a life begun
In hope and promise—plumb flickered out.
What's this? Jehosophat! why, it's done
And I hadn't a thing to write about!

ART AND ARTISTS

Rich Oriental Rugs Shown at Art Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

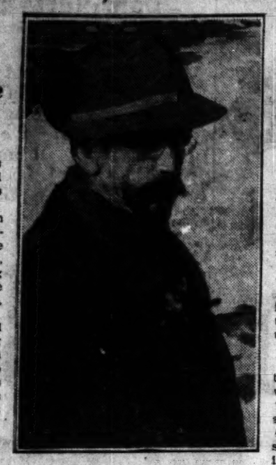
A COLLECTION of oriental rugs that is unique in value and beauty has been placed this week on view in the Art institute. There are seventy-four rugs in the group and they represent approximately as many countries. Some are from Persia, others from Asia Minor, still others from the Caucasus. Among the important weaves illustrated are the Damascene, Ghiordes, Ladio, Oushak, Kuis, Bigano, and Kuba.

A special architectural background has been erected at the top of the long stairs in the institute, against which the wonder of the rugs is set off to excellent advantage. In itself it is striking; in conjunction with the rugs its importance is diminished, but its services as foil are admirable.

The collection is the result of some years' work on the part of James F. Ballard of St. Louis, one of the best known collectors in the country. The entire collection, after its exhibition here, is to be kept permanently in the Metropolitan museum of New York, to which museum it goes as a gift.

Meanwhile, it is here and to be enjoyed to the full. A particular feature of the collection is the prayer rugs which come from Ghiordes and Koulah in western Asia Minor. The finest production from the looms of these cities dates from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The prayer rugs owe their appeal, speaking generally, to the beauty of their coloring—delicate hues are contrasted skillfully with strong, pure colors.

For the layman the larger rugs undoubtedly claim the deeper attention and the greater admiration. The smaller rugs are interesting, but for beauty the longer, wider sweep of weaving catches the eye. In all the rugs, small and large, the harmony of color is perhaps the first detail to note. One or two rugs are striking for the multiplicity of design and boldness of hue, but the majority are restful in pattern and sympathetic in color, dimmed and sweetened a little perhaps by the passing of the centuries.



"Portrait of Charles H. Woodbury," by H. Dudley Murphy, one of the many interesting portraits to be seen in the present annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture at the Art institute. The exhibition closes next Sunday.

The rugs will remain on view until some time in January.

The Association of Arts and Industries has started its drive for a $100,000 fund for the industrial art school, which it proposes to build in connection with the Art institute. A number of manufacturers who see the urgent need for such a school have responded readily, and it is the hope of the association to complete the drive without much difficulty. The association is giving a luncheon tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock in the clubrooms of the Art institute. There will be an exhibit of pottery and ceramics, with a demonstration of pottery making. The speaker, William Wilkins of the Lewis institute, will explain pottery making, with a turner at the potter's wheel. After luncheon Miss Bennett will talk in Gunsaulus hall upon china and pottery, detailing the practical and daily use of ceramics.

Entries for the approaching exhibition of the Art institute alumni, which will open Dec. 15, are now in. These exhibitions take place every five years and this is the second one to be held. About fifteen hundred pieces will be shown. It is interesting to note that in the present American exhibition in the east galleries, which closes next Sunday, there are fifty-six former students of the Art institute school represented.

In the print room of the institute is hanging the famous hundred guilder print by Rembrandt. It is called this because it was sold for 100 guilders [about $36] soon after it was made. It is almost priceless now, its value being placed by some as high as $10,000. The title is "Christ Healing the Sick." John H. Wreen owns the print, together with the other etchings in the group now on view at the institute, the group comprising the Rembrandts and a number of Durers. They will be on view until the first of January. Another rare print is Rembrandt's portrait of Clement de Jonghe, which has a comment on the margin written by Whistler, attesting to his high opinion of the work.

Before the fact of the unveiling of Lorado Taft's great "Fountain of Time" becomes a thing of the absolute past, it may be well to recall the other beautiful pieces of sculpture which the Ferguson monument fund of $1,000,000, left for the erection of monuments and administered by the trustees of the Art institute, has given Chicago. Out of the income from this fund there have already been completed Taft's "Fountain of the Great Lakes," Bacon's "Logan Square Centennial Monument," Bela Pratt's statue of Hamilton in Grant park, French's statue of the Republic in Jackson park, and Edward McCartan's Eugene Field memorial group in Lincoln park.

Leopold Seyffert, an instructor in the Art institute art school and a painter with a goodly number of pleasing paintings to his credit, is engaged upon the portrait of Miss Mellon, a niece of Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury.

Last Wednesday there was an interesting one day show of paintings by former members of the A. E. F. and the U. S. N. in the clubrooms of the Chicago Woman's club in the Fine Arts building.

When the Cor Ardens was originated a year or so ago, as I remember, a pamphlet was issued declaring the intentions and aspirations of the association. No criticism, no juries, no schools, no limits. Individualism rampant. The present exhibit by American members of the organization, which has been shown in the galleries of the Arts club during the last two weeks, amply fulfills the pamphleted intentions. Each of the thirty-five canvases—no, better say all of the thirty-five canvases—are their authors' own. The freedom of style and treatment allowed makes the exhibition an original one, to some intents, but a weak one when you realize how bitterly bound these artists are by their efforts toward freedom.

FLAT-O-FORM

GIVES YOU A FLATTER FORM

The Straight Lines of Youth

Do not follow the "lines of least resistance." Follow the straight, slender lines of youth. You can do it easily—comfortably, too.

Flat-O-Form, a dainty brassiere, is a real necessity to modern dress. It does away with that awkward bunching; gives you that tailored trimness—that figure of fashion. Flat-O-Form gives you a flat appearance from bust to waistline. It can be adjusted to any waistline and gracefully reduces the diaphragm.

The back of the garment is scientifically designed to accommodate any surplus flesh at the shoulder blades.

Flat-O-Form is the new Nature's Rival Brassiere.

ON SALE—DAYLIGHT BASEMENT

German Opera Is Not a Success in This Community

therefore Chicago will not be offered German opera, at least not by the company now at the Auditorium.

Leaning on Italian Side.

As a substitute, and to fill in the chinks, the company plans to lean rather heavily on the Italian side, both artists and works. Claudia Muzio will make her first appearance on Thursday night as the heroine of Verdi's "Aida." She has done much at the Metropolitan, also at the Ravinia summer seasons, where her Nedda in "Pagliacci" set a high mark for the rôle that has been aimed at by other sopranos, but never brought down.

"The Girl of the Golden West" will be performed Tuesday night. It is the operatic, or Italianate version of David Belasco's moving myth about a virtuous road agent, a virginal daughter of the saloon, and a sheriff so villainous that his heart pumps poison instead of blood. Giacomo Puccini wrote the music, and planned it for a best seller, which it is in its native land. Giulio Crimi, Rosa Raisa, and Giacomo Rimini will take the chief parts.

"Rigoletto" is bulletined for Wednesday night, with Cesare Formichi in the name part, Edith Mason as Gilda, and Angelo Minghetti as the duke. Arias and not leitmotifs are the thing this year. Rigoletto instead of the Ring, there will be three jesters in the course of the season, Rimini and Joseph Schwarz taking the part up when Formichi lays it down. A special performance of "Il Trovatore" is billed for Friday night, with Miss Raisa, Crimi, Rimini, and Mme. Homer.

Interesting Item in "Aida."

Last and next to the last acts of opera are generally in the realm of the nonexistent as far as the musical critic of a morning newspaper is concerned. Dead lines exist, and the presses start printing on strict time schedules. But the other night this critic dropped in at the second performance of "Aida" and found an item that would have been recorded near the top of the opening night review, had the aforesaid time limitation permitted being present therefor. It was Ina Bourskaya's Amneris in the judgment scene of the Verdi work.

In one way and another Miss Bourskaya has been one of the most interesting figures in the entire personnel of the Chicago opera. Perhaps the fact that she came to this country from the west instead of the east, thereby omitting the conventionalizing drill of European opera companies, has been one of her assets, because she is one of the most distinctively individual artists in the company. The strict routine of European opera is the best thing, in fact, the only thing for nineteen out of twenty singers; for the twentieth, and if that twentieth has the supreme gift of the personal touch, it is superogratory, perhaps even harmful.

Miss Bourskaya is intensely personal in everything she does on the stage. Even her voice is individual: it sounds like no other voice that was ever heard in the company. A somewhat high and not overly heavy mezzo-soprano, it is not entirely effective in promoting the deep chest tones of the contralto range, but in its own range, which is the greater part of Amneris' range, it has an astonishing facility at depicting emotions and at the same time maintaining a beautiful quality. For the two are by no means identical.

But even her singing, which was of a kind to make a person sit up straighter, was hardly more important than the picture she made. Amneris in this scene might have walked directly out of an Egyptian frieze. Every pose wrists, hands, body, head, was as Egyptian as though the year had been 1922 B. C. instead of A. D. Strangely enough, all this did not seem in the least artificial. One applauded the picture, and had not the least difficulty in believing in it. It was a glorious scene, and the audience was in a fair way also to become what Miss Mae Tinée calls an optience. Of such events is a notable opera season made.

Lottice Howell will sing the rôle of Mlle. Uhlic in Mozart's "The Impresario" at the Selwyn theater this afternoon.

CLAUDIA MUZIO. [Mishkin Photo.]

Claudia Muzio is the Chicago Opera company's most recent debutante. A former Metropolitan singer and well remembered for her achievements at Ravinia a few summers ago, she will make her first appearance with the company at the Auditorium on Thursday night in the name part of Verdi's "Aida."

Easy to install

One of the big advantages of the Royal Automatic Storage Gas Water Heater is that it does not necessitate any special fittings. It takes standard gas and water service connections; no separate meter required. And it takes very little time to get this remarkable heater into the home and in operation.

A recent Chicago installation where speed was essential was completed in two hours—and the heater was a big one for heavy commercial duty. Besides costing less to buy and operate, the Royal costs less to install.

Now in operation in actual operation at Chicago Show Room 175 No. Dearborn St.

Here and There with the Melody Makers

American opera is still in the field. The first performance of "The Snow Bird," by Theodore Stearns, has already been cited. In addition the American Grand Opera company sends word that it has engaged Arthur Dunham as principal conductor, and that Arthur Nevin's opera, "A Daughter of the Forest," is being prepared for performance.

Erika Morini, who was more of a sensation last year than any of the young crop of violinists, will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week. She will appear twice, playing Spohr's Ninth Concert and Saint-Saëns' "Carmen" Fantasie neither of them heard often these days. Mr. Stock will conduct one of the novelties he secured in Europe last summer, Reger's variations on a Mozart theme, also Weber's Overture to "Abu Hassan" and the Dohnany Suite.

The product of an orchestral school that of the Bush conservatory, will make its first downtown appearance a Orchestra hall tomorrow night. Richard Czerwonky is the conductor, and the concert is announced as the first of a series of four. Robert Quick, violinist; Fyrne Bogle, pianist; and Vilas Johnson, baritone, all artist students of the conservatory, will be the soloists.

The MacDowell colony of Peterborough, N. H., has just issued a Who's Who bulletin narrating its experiences of the last half dozen years. With the writers, painters, sculptors, and interpretative artists who have at one time and another taken up quarters there this column is not particularly concerned, but it also tells of some thirty-three composers who have gone there to create music. Among them are the names of Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, Rossetter G. Cole, Mabel W. Daniels, Henry F. Gilbert, A. Cyril Graham, Harold Henry, Edgar Stillman Kelley, Arthur Nevin, Seneca Pierce, Wintter Watts, and Camille W. Zeckwer, all known here either in person or through their works. It is the finest tribute that Edward MacDowell could have had.

Translated Opera Today.

Opera in English will have its turn this afternoon at the Selwyn theater, when "The Impressario," by Mozart, will be presented by the Hinshaw company. It is labeled as an opera comique, but this is perhaps not the correct designation, since it is hardly of a serious enough nature to be thus classified. Percy Hemus is starred in the performance, with Thomas McGranahan, who used to be a soloist with the Paulist choristers, also in the cast, likewise Hazel Huntington, Lotice Howell, Gladys Craven, and Francis Tyler, who is business manager, stage manager, and incumbent of the rôle of Mozart. As Mrs. Malaprop says, he is, like Cerberus, three gentlemen at once.

HELEN FREUND.
[Dagierre Photo.]

Helen Freund, colgratura soprano, will be the soloist with the Chicago Theater Symphony orchestra at the theater of the same name this noon. She will sing the Polonaise from Ambroise Thomas' opera, "Mignon."

THE NEW HALL OF FAME

Exclusive Brunswick Artists

Hear Them in Your Own Home

The world's music critics have acclaimed a new Hall of Fame—great artists of today, succeeding those of yesterday. Chamlee, Easton, Danise, Godowsky, Dux, Ney, Huberman, Strauss—are names high among those comprising it—names on the lips of cultured people the world over.

To know them is to be conversant with the events of the day; to be musically well informed.

In common with the present trend of artistic acceptance, they have chosen Brunswick as the most fitting means of perpetuating their art—a tendency so marked in musical circles that Brunswick now is looked to for the premiere recordings of great artists.

By means of new methods of recording and of reproducing, Brunswick brings phonographic music into the realms of higher musical expression.

Hence, you will find the Brunswick Phonograph in the homes of foremost musicians, critics and educators both in America and abroad. And great artists today record for Brunswick.

21 handsome models to choose from this year
All styles—all woods—all finishes

Brunswick Phonographs are made in 21 attractive models—cabinet, console and period designs. You will find among them a design to meet exactly your individual requirements. A price to suit your purse. At terms you will find very convenient.

All embody the exclusive, patent-protected features which make The Brunswick dominant in musical circles today—the phonograph accepted by music critics the world over as the highest peak of musical reproduction.

Note particularly these two Brunswick advantages

They put Brunswick far in the lead in fidelity and naturalness of tone reproduction. They are obtainable on no other phonograph.

(1) All-Wood Tone Chamber

Just as a fine old violin owes its value to rare woods, properly shaped and balanced, so the Brunswick Tone Amplifier—made entirely of seasoned hollywood, skillfully smoothed and rounded—gives The Brunswick the clear, mellow tones for which it is famous.

(2) All-Record Reproducer

This universal reproducer—the Brunswick Ultona—plays any make of record with just a turn of the hand. There are no "attachments." Nothing to "put on" or "take off."

These stores open evenings

All the newest Brunswick models are now on display at the stores named below. And for leisurely shopping, all are open evenings.

VAUDEVILLE WIT

RIALTO.

Burns and Larkin:

"Do you believe men are descended from monkeys?"

"No, but I think women are."

"What makes you think women are descended from monkeys?"

"Because they are such 'tailbearers.'"

"You're a pretty wise kid, aren't you?"

"If you were alone I'd invite you to have a bite to eat."

"O, that's easy. There's an up to date department store right down at the corner and they'll check the child."

"Perhaps they'll also check its yelling?"

"You don't like babies?"

"No; give me baby dolls."

"Good-by."

"O, don't leave me long."

"Look out that I don't leave you short."

"Don't worry. My uncle left me all his money."

"How nice."

"Only I don't know where he left it."

"You certainly are handsome."

"Well, seeing is believing."

"Not always. I see that you have a pretty complexion, but I don't believe it."

"You're insulting."

"Can't you see I was only trying to get your goat? Why, if you weren't a married woman, I'd propose to you myself."

"I'm a widow."

"That settles it. Me for you."

"Perhaps you have a sweetheart already?"

"I thought I did until last week, when I sent her a letter proposing marriage."

"And how did she answer it?"

"All she sent me by way of reply was a collar."

"A standup collar?"

"No; a turndown."

WAR OF TWO FAMOUS JULIETS STIRS BROADWAY

Nightingale" [nee "Greatness"] at the Empire theater, had also decided to enter the Juliet contest and bring her own balcony.

I see no good reason why Jobyna should not enter. She is as courageous as any of them, and there certainly would be a great deal more to her Juliet physically than there will be even to that of Miss Barrymore. And Miss Jobyna, I'm thinking, will need the money. Still, there have been many kind words written of her bid for stardom in "The Texas Nightingale." It seems to me that it is a pretty awful play. Not so much in Zoe Akins' writing of it as in the casting and the playing.

Miss Howland is a good character comedienne. She loves to be chorus girly and rough—and she can be as rough as the best of them, as those of you who saw "The Gold Diggers" should recall. She is amusing, too, with a good sense of broad comedy. But when she tries to play the rôle of a temperamental prima donna—the greatest Brunnhilde of her day—and to apply to her the comedy methods of the original variety hall gold digger, she evolves a character that is only a little better than caricature and considerably less than human.

And when she attempts to slip gracefully into scenes demanding sentiment and heart values she is too unskilled and inexperienced in her art to make the transition at all convincingly. Hence we have a high comedy rôle with a low comedy finish, and a play that should be an observantly and carefully written character comedy is turned into something much resembling high burlesque.

Helton Too Good.

Casting Percy Helton as the prima donna's son did not help any. He is too good. Playing a sort of human microbe, a thin voiced, swivel tongued, physically stunted poet, young Helton makes the lad so unattractive that there is no emotionally pleasant reaction to his discovery of a father among his mother's discarded husbands, or to his sporadic outbursts of a craving for affection.

The story is of an awkward Texan, Hollyhock Jones, who, as Brasa Canava, achieves celebrity in the opera, marries four husbands, and is considering a fifth. The problems concern her attempt to prevent her undernourished offspring's marrying a brainless flapper and son's protest against his mother's threatening affair with a violinist. The one successful husband of Brasa's four, the second, who also happens to be her boy's father, takes a hand as a sort of referee, and at the end promises tentatively to remarry the singer. Cyril Keightley plays the husband, Georges Renavent the violinist.

Classicists Still Protesting.

As the "Hamlet" enthusiasm simmers we find Jonn Barrymore still credited with the sanest and most understandable of recent Danes, with the only objection to his modernized interpretation raised by the ancient and honorable classicists who long have been convinced there is but one way of playing the older rôles. "I'm glad they have the good grace to speak of it as 'Barrymore's Hamlet,'" they sputter; "it certainly isn't Shakespeare's."

But the only violations done the text that have caused anything like a general complaint are three—and these are counted no less than "absurd."

First, the ghostly light that serves in place of the ghost that Shakespeare dictated should enter accoutered as the late king upon the battlefield.

Second, the employment of the chorus idea in presenting the play within a play wherein to catch the king's conscience.

And, third, the burying of Ophelia in what it is pretended is a sort of courtyard of Elsinore. Having been used for a room in the castle through many previous scenes, the audience is given the impression that Ophelia is being laid away, if not in the living room, at least in the throne room of the castle, just abaft the fireplace.

Thus, it is argued, Robert Edmond Jones, designer of the scenery, in place of concentrating attention upon the play, as the moderns insist so loudly should be done, is in reality destroying the possibility of illusion by deliberately playing tricks with the scenery. Meantime, there is only standing room to be had at the "Hamlet" performances, and oftentimes not that.

However attractive you may be, it is possible to make yourself lovelier if you use the complete "Pompeian Beauty Toilette."

First, a touch of fragrant Pompeian DAY Cream. This is a vanishing cream that when worked well in is a protection for the skin against wind, sun, and dust—a delicate foundation to which powder adheres evenly, and from which it will not easily rub off.

Then, apply Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. It makes the skin beautifully fair and adds the charm of a delightful perfume.

Now a bit of Pompeian BLOOM for a softly glowing color. And do you know that you should always experiment in the placing of rouge? Study the contour of your face. Perhaps you will look better with more color on the cheek-bones. Perhaps it is the center of the cheek where a deeper shade looks well.

Lastly, dust over again with the power in order to subdue the BLOOM. And instantly the face is radiant with added youth and beauty.

Before retiring, cleanse the face thoroughly with Pompeian NIGHT Cream (a cold cream). In the morning you will find the lines of fatigue have faded and your skin will be soft and velvety.

Pompeian FRAGRANCE, a talcum powder, smooth and refreshingly perfumed, brings you charm.

Pompeian Beauty Powder, Day Cream, Bloom, 60c each; Night Cream, 50c; Fragrance, 30c. At all toilet counters.

A STAR AT LARGE

By Mae Tinee

INSTALLMENT XI.

[Taken thoroughly appreciated every installment threatens to be the last.]

By Mae Tinée.

The Goofus divorce was consummated with amazing celerity and silence. Before Maria Goofus realized she was a plaintiff—she was a divorcée. The alimony she had dreamed of resolved itself into a neat cash settlement of $5,000. She gasped for air, took soundings, and resolved she'd let the money stay in the bank, and remain right where she was, where rents were low. Besides, when the butcher came to call it would mean merely a matter of a few steps for him. The butcher hoped he would some day step into the place left vacant by Goofus. Had he only known, his chance of escape from said she was small. Maria had had him listed, catalogued, and filed away years long ago.

Her only regret regarding the divorce was that it had been accomplished so quietly. She had a feeling of having in some way or other been shot through a cannon in the wrong direction.

In the meantime things were happening thick and fast in the life of the ex-husband.

To begin with it had been decided that his name was one not exactly calculated to interest or arouse sentiment. The Godfrey was not so bad, but the Goofus was certainly an appendage for a youth destined by the Giltwater establishment to set feminine hearts aflutter and cause exhibitors to yelp "More! More!"

What to call him! An ambitious press agent suggested Gondolia as a surname.

"Gladys Gay and Godfrey Gondolia hitch up well," he said. "And 'Gondolia' flips the imagination. Venice—gondolas, guitars, moonlit waters, the grande passion in a romantic environment, the——"

"O, shut up!" said Giltwater pettishly.

"Yes, sit down, Goofus. That's a hell of a name you got."

but you got to have sense aind it? Godfrey Gondola. Flips the imagination—eh? Sure! I want to call out the life saving crew. The boat is rocking. Gondola!"

Mr. Giltwater chewed on his cigar in brazen imitation of Theodore Roberts, whom he resembled not at all, being squat and dark and beady eyed. Gladys Gay, who was in on the conference, spoke gently:

"Mr. Giltwater."

"You got the floor, Gladys."

"You know there's an awful lot of class to that boy. Maybe he can't talk the king's grammar like I can, but when he comes into the room he somehow makes you wonder if you got too much lipstick on and you feel kind of funny like maybe you ain't holding your teacup right. I read novels about the gentry all the time and that's what Godfrey is like, Gentry. 'Gladys Gay and James Gentry' wouldn't be so worse, could it?"

The president of the company pushed a buzzer. A boy in livery apeared.

"Find Mr. Goofus and tell him to come here," he commanded. The boy bowed from the waist as he had been taught to do and disappeared. Mr. Giltwater was strong on the service stuff. He liked service and he liked it with bells on.

Perhaps he was no Romeo. But, believe him, he had the dough—and as long as he had it it would buy what

In a brief few moments the boy ushered in Godfrey Goofus. Godfrey was a bit perturbed, but his manner was easy.

"You sent for me?"

"Yes, sit down, Goofus. That's a hell of a name you got."

"It is," replied Godfrey calmly.

"We change it—eh?"

"No hard feelings about that," smiled Godfrey. Miss Gay's eyes warned. She loved his smile.

"Like 'James Gentry'?"

Gladys gave him an anxious high sign.

"Yes," answered Goofus. Giltwater frowned, but almost instantly his face cleared. Somehow he liked this nobody better for leaving out the "sir."

"All right—Jim Gentry you are," he said. He turned to the press agent.

"Get busy with him. Photograph. Interviews—you know. Going to feature him. Make a splash. G'bye."

The conference was over. Gladys Gay, James Gentry, and the press agent filed out of the room.

Giving the Soft Answer.

A commotion in the street caused a kind hearted woman to look out, and she was indignant to see a fish peddler beating his poor old horse.

Leaning out of the window, she called to him: "Stop! Stop! Haven't you any humanity?"

"No, ma'am," politely responded the fish peddler, touching his hat. "Nothing but shad and porgies today."

A. B.

Fifty-Fifty.

An elderly woman got into a taxi. The driver seemed to be doing some queer stunts, so the passenger opened the door and said, "Won't you please be careful. This is the first time I have ever been in a taxi."

"Mum, you haven't anything the better of me. This is the first time I ever drove one," was the answer.

A. H.

Down on the Farm.

"O," exclaimed the fair boarder as a couple of calves scampered across the meadow. "What pretty little cowiets?"

"Yew air mistaken, ma'am," said the old farmer. "Them's bullets." D. B.

Explained.

Teacher—Johnny, can you tell me why it is that when you stand on your head the blood rushes to it but when you stand on your feet it does not do that?

Johnny—Cause your feet aren't so empty, teacher.

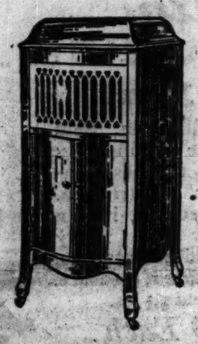
THE INSTRUMENT OF QUALITY Sonora CLEAR AS A BELL



The Imperial $150

Over a Half Million in Use

THE greatest proof of Sonora's value is its popularity, but back of that popularity is the Sonora tone which has revolutionized phonograph history.

Such exceptional clarity and charm of reproduction early won the applause of musical leaders. Then one by one a vast public listened, became convinced, and desired to own "the Highest Class Talking Machine in the World". Between the Sonora model that is exactly suited to your needs, and an inferior machine, there may be no difference in price. The difference in satisfaction, in pride of possession, in purity and fineness of tone is incalculable.

Sonora's loyalty to an ideal has won the public's loyalty to Sonora. It is worth your while to hear the new Sonora models.

Best Sellers of the Ages

By James O'Donnell Bennett

Fiftieth paper—Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter."

THE EYES OF HAWTHORNE.

BY EDITH M. THOMAS.

From whence those eyes, that poignant gaze,
O Spirit wont to walk the ways
Leading, through labyrinthine gloom,
Into those soundless courts of doom,
Where haggard souls not mercy plead,
But that, through stripes, they may be freed
From the keen goad within the breast,
By Conscience ever deeper pressed!

One else there was whose orbs of sight
Envisioned, thus, eternal Night,
With gaze as poignant, as serene,—
One else there was—the Florentine!
In realms from mortal knowledge veiled,
Have ye not, kinsmen, met and hailed—
The spark of swift recognizance
Forth-flashing in one mutual glance!

THERE are two representative works of American art which come as near perfection as, perhaps, it ever is granted man to bring his achievements.

One is the capitol in Washington.

The other is the romance of "The Scarlet Letter."

In 1849 Nathaniel Hawthorne, then 45 years old and a petty official ($1,200 a year) in a petty town, sat down in an upper bedroom to write "The Scarlet Letter." It was the seventy-third year from the foundation of the republic.

Precisely seventy-three years have passed since the bleak winter in Salem which brought the composition of that book, and during those seventy-three years—as during the seventy-three that came before them—no work of literary art so nearly perfect, no other book like it, indeed, has been written.

The statistics are not a bit of curious lore merely. They are extremely significant, for their lesson is that masterpieces—that the books which are best sellers of the ages because they are the best books of the ages—are not readily written, nor often. Such statistics are heartening, too, for they show us plain, honest folk who strive honestly to find our way to true literature—they show us that the truest literature is not a quantity so abundant as to discourage our striving. With the best and truest we shall come into intimacy close and fond if we rigorously put aside all else.

Art is sternest with her dearest children. The builders of the capitol were fifty years finding their way to that serenity which, for him who will stand in silence before the pile, is its essential word to the citizen. And Nathaniel Hawthorne was twenty-five years learning how to write "The Scarlet Letter."

Open the book almost at random—not necessarily to one of the supreme passages like the midnight vigil of Hester and Arthur and Pearl on the scaffold of Hester's ignominy, not to that astounding chapter XVII., so fraught with sacred intimacy and awe that perusal of it sometimes will strike the sensitive reader as almost an intrusion, not to that last page which is like strains of organ music remotely heard, but to a page more nearly in the key of the book as a whole. I select for the moment the page toward the end of chapter XVIII., whereon is told how the forest takes an elfish child into its arms as one of its own and how its denizens seem to recognize her kinship with themselves. Few fancies could contain more perils than this fancy. A dozen betrayals are in it—the temptation to fine writing, the peril of excess, the danger that the whole thing will be reduced to namby-pamby, and the peril most likely to befall—that the intention will evaporate under the hand and that only some words prettily strung will reach the reader. But here, from this page I copy, come a kind of soughing from the tops of bending trees, and a rustling under foot, and quick moving lights from the eyes of wild creatures, their little cries, their furtive movements. I detect no effort. The words ripple down the page—no, better, seem to float down upon it, leisurely, quietly, wafted by a force invisible and unheard. I marvel—and, marveling, I ask myself how a poor amateur in words can dare ever to write any more words—when I see how with six one-syllable words this master suddenly, quite unobtrusively, humanizes the cumbrous, puissant forest so that it shall mother the child. "As well as it knew how" are the words. No stroke, I should think, could be more homely, and yet I wonder whether any other six words in the language could have been brought together for the creation of an effect so poignant. And the words "his domestic tree" in the lines about the squirrel! Not at the first reading of the page does one cease reading in order to hold that upon the tongue, for at the first reading the eye is gliding along with the gliding words. Later one lingers upon the technical delights.

But let not bepraisement incumber pleasure. This is the page:

> The great black forest—stern as it showed itself to those who brought the guilt and troubles of the world into its bosom—became the playmate of the lonely infant as well as it knew how. Somber as it was, it put on the kindest of its moods to welcome her. . . . The small denizens of the wilderness hardly took pains to move out of her path. A partridge, indeed, with a brood of ten behind her, ran forward threateningly, but soon repented of her fierceness and clucked to her young ones not to be afraid. A pigeon, alone on a low branch, allowed Pearl to come beneath, and uttered a sound as much of greeting as of alarm. A squirrel, from the lofty depths of his domestic tree, chattered either in anger or merriment—for a squirrel is such a choleric and humorous little personage that it is hard to distinguish between his moods—so he chattered at the child and flung down a nut upon her head. It was a last year's nut, and already gnawed by his sharp tooth. A fox, startled from his sleep by her light footstep on the leaves, looked inquisitively at Pearl, as doubting whether it were better to steal off or renew his nap on the same spot. A wolf, it is said—but here the tale had surely lapsed into the improbable—came up, and smelt of Pearl's robe, and offered his savage head to be patted by her hand. The truth seems to be, however, that the mother-forest, and these wild things which it nourished, all recognized a kindred wildness in the human child.

"Air," as Bishop Quayle said in one of the happiest of phrases—it comes in his essay on Hawthorne's style—"air is not more pellucid."

Long before Hawthorne became famous Longfellow reviewed "Twice Told Tales." Capitulation to the witchery of Hawthorne's style was not a routine matter then. Because the review thus has historical value, and because Professor Longfellow did very deftly describe what he called "the fresh and transparent beauty" of Hawthorne's writing, the review is worth quoting from. Of a style that is neither intricate nor ornate, and that still eludes most description, there is this description:

> It is as clear as running waters are; indeed, he uses words merely as stepping stones, upon which, with a free and youthful bound, his spirit crosses and recrosses the bright and rushing stream of thought.

For a writer so given to musing, Hawthorne is amazingly compact. Sometimes, but without encumbering, a passage will take its place on his page like a marble frieze. Chapter XX—"The Minister in a Maze"—unfolds the excitements, the wayward fancies and mad impulses which crowd and torture the soul of Arthur Dimmesdale during the period in which that soul dwells in hypocrisy, trembles on the verge of confession, and yearns for flight. An insane impulse to blight virginal purity as he has blighted and blasted himself seizes him as he passes in the street a Puritan maid. The thought of what she is, and of what he is in her ideal of him, rushes through his mind. That spiritual tumult is a medley of chaste images and impure imaginings. But Hawthorne's expression of it has a marmoreal steadiness and definiteness—

> She was fair and pure as a lily that had bloomed in Paradise. The minister knew well that he was himself enshrined within the stainless sanctity of her heart, which hung its snowy curtains about his image, imparting to religion the warmth of love, and to love a religious purity. . . . So—with a mightier struggle than he had yet sustained—he held his Geneva cloak before his face and hurried onward, making no sign of recognition, and leaving the young sister to digest his rudeness as she might. She ransacked her conscience,—which was full of harmless little matters, like her pocket or her workbag—and took herself to task, poor thing! for a thousand imaginary faults; and went about her household duties with swollen eyelids the next morning.

Persons who take their opinions on art and morals from persons who most stridently express opinions on art and morals, long have had some befuddled notion that "The Scarlet Letter" is a morbid book. Strident persons always say the obvious, easy thing about works of art and morals, and the obvious, easy thing to say about this masterpiece is that it is a tragedy of conscience. To say that is to say less than half the essential thing that ought to be said, and often said, about "The Scarlet Letter." The book, in its grandest aspect—in the aspect that made so careful and so gifted a craftsman and critic as William Dean Howells say that "in its kind it remains sole and it is hard to see how it shall ever be surpassed, or even companioned"—is no tragedy. It is a triumph of expiation. It does not cease with tragedy. Nay, it but begins there. It fulfills the supreme mission of tragedy, and that mission is redemption, the finding of the soul by a being whom error has betrayed and affliction has marked. Hester is triumphant in expiation wrought out in the face of the society whose well-being an act such as hers affects to disastrous issues even as surely as such an act violates the purity of the soul of the individual doer of the deed. Dimmesdale is triumphant in expiation wrought out in the face of death. Hester's was the nobler, the harder way.

"A lie," said Hester Prynne, "is never good even, though death threaten on the other side." The fundamental meaning of "The Scarlet Letter" is as childlike as that. The spiritual intricacies of the tale—the solemn, tender walk hand in hand with the Everlasting—as in very truth Nathaniel Hawthorne does in this book seem to walk—the celestial witchery by which the wail of tragedy is blended at the last with the note of triumphant expiation cannot, perhaps, be better indicated in a little article like this than by quoting the words Dimmesdale speaks to the magistrates and elders when they would take Hester's child, and his child, from her:

> "She recognizes, believe me, the solemn miracle which God hath wrought, in the existance of that child. And she may feel, too—what, methinks, is the very truth—that this boon was meant, above all things else, to keep the mother's soul alive, and to preserve her from blacker depths of sin into which Satan might else have sought to plunge her! Therefore it is good for this poor, sinful woman that she hath an infant immortality, a being capable of eternal joy or sorrow, confided to her care—to be trained up by her to righteousness—to remind her, at every moment, of her fall—but yet to teach her, as it were, by the Creator's sacred pledge, that if she bring the child to heaven the child also will bring its parent thither! Herein is the sinful mother happier than the sinful father. For Hester Prynne's sake, then, and for the poor child's sake, let us leave them as Providence hath seen fit to place them."

Austerity, now in the strain of bitter woe, now in a strain of grieving meditation, the tale moves on. It utters itself now in passages that are as sincere and strong as steel, but as dramatic as the tirades of a French play. Its economy of means is one of the miracles of literature. There are but four essential characters—Hester, Dimmesdale, Pearl, and Chillingworth—and only they are elaborated, and always coupled with so much reticence of treatment is a reverence for language that gives to language the dignity of an ancient strain from the lips of worshipers wholly trustful.

At the last quietude—deep, abiding calm—like the calm of the sea when it rests after storm:

> And, as Hester Prynne had no selfish ends, nor lived in any measure for her own profit and enjoyment, people brought all their sorrows and perplexities, and sought her counsel, as one who had herself gone through a mighty trouble. Women, more especially—in the continually recurring trials of wounded, wasted, wronged, misplaced, or erring and sinful passion—or with the dreary burden of a heart unrelieved, because unvalued and unsought—came to Hester's cottage, demanding why they were so wretched, and what the remedy! Hester comforted and counselled them as best she might.

BOOK NEWS from LONDON

By Sidney Dark.

[Editor of John O'London's Weekly.]

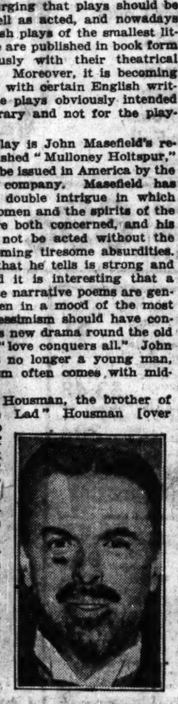
LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—As I anticipated, the dramatized version of Joseph Conrad's "The Secret Agent" has proved at least a partial failure, and I should suppose that it is unlikely it will be produced in the American theater. Conrad has no knowledge of the stage, and the consequence is that not only does his play lack dramatic grip, but the distinction and charm of the novel are both almost entirely lost.

ST. JOHN ERVINE.

For many months St. John Ervine has been urging that plays should be read as well as acted, and nowadays most English plays of the smallest literary value are published in book form simultaneously with their theatrical production. Moreover, it is becoming the fashion with certain English writers to write plays obviously intended for the library and not for the playhouse.

Such a play is John Masefield's recently published "Mulloney Holtspur," which is to be issued in America by the Macmillan company. Masefield has invented a double intrigue in which men and women and the spirits of the departed are both concerned, and his play could not be acted without the ghosts becoming tiresome absurdities. The story that he tells is strong and human, and it is interesting that a writer whose narrative poems are generally written in a mood of the most desperate pessimism should have constructed this new drama round the old thesis that "love conquers all." John Masefield is no longer a young man, and optimism often comes with middle age.

Laurence Housman, the brother of "Shropshire Lad" Housman [over twenty-five thousand of his "Last Poems" have now been sold in this country], uses dialogue, dramatic dialogue, as a means of interpreting and rapidly portraying historical character. He did this with remarkable success in his "Angels and Ministers," which he described as "Four Plays of Victorian Shade and Character" and in which, by means of a few pages of audacious and vivid dialogue, he made Queen Victoria almost as actual and human as she appeared in Lytton Strachey's biographical study.



LAURENCE HOUSMAN.

His new book "Dethronements" is, in a sense, a sequel to "Angels and Ministers." It consists of three dialogues, each concerned with disillusionment and disappointment. In the first, Parnell talks to his wife a few days before he dies. In the second, Joseph Chamberlain, paralysed and bitter, talks to the ever urbane Lord Balfour. In the third, Mr. Housman, still more daring, makes Woodrow Wilson pour out his soul to Mr. Tumulty, immediately after he had ceased to be president. It seems to me Housman has an extraordinarily acute appreciation of the tragedy of Woodrow Wilson—which is certainly the tragedy of Europe even though it may not be the tragedy of America.

I do not suppose that the name of John Owen is known in America, and indeed it is little known here. But I have no hesitation in saying that he is already to be numbered in "the third line" of novelists who really matter and that, if he lives, he is certain to gain a great reputation among the makers of English fiction. His new novel, "Robert Gregory," may be described as the story of a mean soul. Gregory was born mean. His mother was a fretful domestic slave, his father a selfish domestic tyrant. When he was a boy Gregory's life was lived in a dreary, poverty stricken suburb. He revolts against his surroundings, but his revolt is fatuous and ineffective. He always wants to rise, but he lacks power, he lacks persistence, he lacks courage. So he ends exactly where he began.

JOHN MASEFIELD.

Mr. Owen is not unsympathetic, but he scorns conventional sentimentality. He is not unaware of the drab tragedy of his hero's life, but he paints it as relentlessly as though he were a Russian, and his book leaves the reader with something of the same shudder at the pitifulness of human life that one gets from Dostoievsky. Every character in "Robert Gregory" is clearly individualised and the book is a genuine achievement.

The reference to Dostoievsky reminds me that Mrs. Constance Garnett has finished her remarkable English translations of Tchekov, published in England by Chatto & Windus, and is now busy translating Gogol. A correspondent, by the way, writes me from Germany that Maxim Gorki is ill and not likely to live until the end of the year. From the same correspondent I hear Frank Harris is writing his autobiography.

A collected edition of Edwin Arlington Robinson's poems has been issued here with an introduction by John Drinkwater, who says that "whereas most of his fellow countrymen who are poets see man beset by society, which is circumstance, he sees man beset by his own character, which is fate." One English critic says Mr. Robinson's poetry is "the harvest of a quiet mind for a quiet ear, and it is passing strange to think such a large, placid, philosophic book, so full of pensive beauty, and yet so valiant for truth, should have grown up silently, invisibly, in a city like New York, walled up to the sky and roaring like the sea night and day."

Probably few foreigners would agree that the English are a humorous race (though we certainly are), but no one would deny the English love for sport. Hunting is traditionally associated with English country life though, as a matter of practice, hunting is exclusively the amusement of the aristocrat and the profiteer. Still all Englishmen like to read about hunting and like to picture themselves how good a thing it must be. At the beginning of every hunting season the publishers invariably issue a number of illustrated books on hunting lore and hunting song. Perhaps the best of them this year is "Galloping Shoes," by Will H. Ogilvie, a volume of good open air verse, admirably illustrated.

It is a remarkable tribute to the Irish temperament that, despite the turmoil of politics and the murder and sudden death which remain common incidents of daily life in Ireland, a humorous book of remarkable quality should come to me from Dublin. It is called "Rhyme and Reason," and it is written by C. H. Bretherton, a member of the staff of the "Irish Times." Mr. Bretherton laughs at everybody and everything in his own country, and out of it, and his laughter is so good natured and so infectious that everybody and everything must surely laugh with him.

"Rabbit" still remains at the head of the best selling novels here. Probably because of the fact that he is making daily election speeches, Lord Birkenhead's "Points of View" is selling well. I may, perhaps, be permitted to add that my biography of the late Sir Arthur Pearson, the newspaper proprietor, who lost his sight and did such splendid service for the blinded soldiers during the war, has just been published by Hodder & Stoughton.

Sales of books in England seem poor and inconsiderable compared with sales in France and even in poverty stricken Germany. Germany has apparently been trying to obtain forgetfulness of the ever-falling mark by reading the soothing prose poetry of Rabindranath Tagore. It is said that since the armistice over a million copies have been sold of German translations of Tagore's verse.

Who but Carmel Lee would receive a warning from the most powerful ring of perverted politicians that had ever terrorized a small community—and choose to stay? Who but Clarence Budington Kelland, could tell this story of her struggle against a ring so powerful that the governor of a state had declined to listen to the evidence against it?

BOOKS

Books are the legacies that genius leaves to mankind. —ADDISON.

By Fanny Butcher.

SOME ONE said, not long ago, in an excellent article in one of our leading weekly magazines, that all of this to-do about the modern novelists making use of the methods of psycho-analysis on their characters is like many another furore about the modernness of something that is as old as nature itself. All of the greatest psychological novels have been written at least in part as if the author were psycho analyzing his characters, though neither the author nor the reader has called his deductions by any more scientific term than "understanding."

Psycho-analysis in its most sincere form—the discovery of the hidden reasons for action—has been practiced by every intelligent novelist since novels have been written. One of the most amusing examples of that is D. H. Lawrence's "Three Sons and a Mother." When he wrote it he thought he was writing a novel of a peculiarly interesting psychological relation. He wrote it as a study of that relationship. A few years later, when he had taken up the intense study of psycho analysis, he discovered he had written a perfect psycho-analytical novel. He had done unconsciously what he has done since then with much fanfare of trumpets heralding the importance of psycho-analysis.

I don't know whether May Sinclair is a professed psycho-analyst or not. I suspect that she isn't. But I do know that of all the men and women writing today, there is no one who makes such a vivid drama of the affairs of the mind as she does, no one to whom outward actions are of less importance and inner springs more vital.

Her new novel, "Anne Severn and the Fieldings," is, uncompromisingly, a novel of minds. Every character is a mind, not an organism. That's the difference between May Sinclair and almost any one else I know who's writing today except, perhaps, Katherine Mansfield.

Her realities are all those of the mind. Things happen to her characters, fate snickers in their faces as she does in every one's, events surround them, but their lives, their real selves, are not affected by anything except the reactions which their minds have to fate or events.

The point is a nice one. But it is one which is evident to any sensitive reader. She simply never writes except from the inside. The most unimportant trifle is recorded as a mental impression. For that reason her books have a richness which is unusual in the work of the realists among whom she undoubtedly belongs. Her method is almost Russian. Her attitude toward her characters is certainly that. But her characters are not human beings, but human minds, and there is the essential May Sinclair-ness of her.

It is a far cry from May Sinclair, a great and surpassing artist, to the Ben Hecht of "Gargoyles," a stumbling sketcher, but by comparing "Anne Severn and the Fieldings" with "Gargoyles" I may be able to make plainer what I mean by her unique method.

"Gargoyles" pretended to be the most realistic picture of the inner life of a group of ordinary persons. What it was in reality was an unfair picture of one side of their lives, the sex side, unfair because no mind in the world, except the mind of something locked up in a psychopathic hospital, is obsessed with sex every moment of its existence.

"Anne Severn and the Fieldings" is in perfection what "Gargoyles" pretended to be, a picture of the inner life of a group of ordinary persons. As a matter of outward actions it is no less a novel of sex. It is, in places much more outspoken than "Gargoyles," but where Ben Hecht's book seems at times disgustingly unreal, May Sinclair's seems beautifully, finely real.

There are sure to be countless readers who will be so disturbed by the things that Anne does, or rather, by the one thing which she does, for her whole life, even from childhood is a manifestation in one form or another of her unswerving love—that they will forbid the book the public square, but in doing that they will condemn one of the finest, most honest, and most interesting pieces of literary work of the year. The book is a beautiful piece of work, an example of an extremely difficult method practiced with delicate precision: one might almost say a perfect specimen of technical skill.

Willa Cather is the only woman writing in America who is to be compared with May Sinclair in England. They are much more alike than most of us would think of their being. Their method is identical. They both have shorn their style of superfluities. They both attack their task with uncompromising honesty. They both stand off and observe. The difference between them is that Miss Cather observes the whole creature and its relation to its environment, and May Sinclair observes only the inner life of the creature. They are equally fine artists, only Willa Cather's art is one which has a wide appeal for the world, besides the skill of her technique. May Sinclair's is almost too revealing ever to allow the world to revel in her skill. Too severe an honesty is always — unfortunately — considered repulsive.

"Anne Severn and the Fieldings," is the story of a child and later a woman and her relationship to three brothers and their mother, the story of a love that is an actualization of that too often misused adjective "transcendent." It is just that, for Anne from the moment that the book opens with Anne demanding "Where's Jerrold?" to the moment it closes with Jerrold holding her by the hand as he used to hold her when they were children, to keep her safe.

The book is going to cause no end of comment, and a great many readers are going to be shocked, and a great many are going to claim that May Sinclair condones immorality, and others are going to say that it couldn't be true, and all the time a few are going to see that the book is a perfectly stunning and surpassing piece of technique.

Award by The Dial.

The Dial's award of $2,000, given annually by the Dial magazine to young American writer in recognition of his services to letters goes this year to T. S. Eliot.

You may think of T. S. Eliot as an Englishman, because he lives in England and most of his work has been published there first. But he is not only American, but a middle westerner. He was born in St. Louis thirty-four years ago, was graduated from Harvard, and then studied at the Sarbonne and at Oxford.

His literary life has been lived abroad and practically no one suspects him of being an American—at least not in America. He has a brother living in Chicago.

The Dial award is an unusual one. It is not a prize awarded for the result of a competition, but is a sum which is given each year to the young writer speare garden—a gardening feat which previous work indicates a capacity for growth and development, a chance to continue his work for at least a year untroubled by financial worries. There are, however, no strings attached to the award. The recipient may use the money in any way he chooses.

Last year, the first year the award was made, it as given to Sherwood Anderson.

More Books for Children.

Nearly sixty years ago there appeared in Denmark "The Mouse Story," told by an Old Schoolmaster. The quaint tale of a father and mother mouse and their children became a classic for children there. It has just had its first English translation.

"The Book of Noble Dogs," by Estelle Ross, is a really serious study of dogs in fable and story and history, for older young readers as well as adults. Miss Ross starts her book with "A legend tells us that after the creation a gulf gradually opened between Adam and the beasts he named. Among them stood the dog, gazing wistfully at the ever widening chasm till, when, the separation was all but complete, he leaped the gulf and stood by man's side. There, in his master's hour of need, he has stood ever since." Which proves that Miss Ross is a lady that, like us, loves dogs. That her work has been sincere is evidenced by the excellent bibliography which she shares with her readers. Her book hasn't the charm of style that characterized Carl Van Vechten's "The Tiger in the House"—that remarkable book about cats—but it is the same type of book, one which is a great deal more than the casual volume about an animal.

Dhan Gopal Mukerji—who, from his name, ought to know what he is talking about—has written a story of the jungle. It is about "Kari the Elephant," who was five months old when he was given to a 9 year old boy to be taken care of. They grew up on the edge of the jungle.

Poetry.

Poems of American Patriotism is the big Wyeth illustrated book for this year. Brander Matthews made the selections of the poems, which were chosen as a sort of poetic history of the United States, as well as for their patriotic spirit. There are a few curtailments in the poems where they were too long to be included, but otherwise there has been no change in the text. An especially good feature of the book is the fact that with each poem is given the date of the historical event which is celebrated and a paragraph of explanation.

"Rainbow Gold" is the lovely title which Sara Teasdale has chosen for one of the nicest anthologies of poetry for children that you ever saw. She has included poets new as well as old. Vachel Lindsay, Robert Frost, Walter de la Mare, Robert Graves, Padraic Colum, little Hilda Conkling, as well as the ones you'd expect to find. Her method of choice is a most understanding one. The poems most children like best, she says, have highly accented rhymes. They take children "into the land of clear colors and stories." The poems are ones which any grownup might well have in his repertory. They are for children of at least ten years of age. They are veritably "Rainbow Gold." Dugald Walker has made the illustrations for the book.

Irvin S. Cobb answered, when I wrote asking him what book he would rather have written than any other:

My Dear Miss Butcher: I would rather have written the Book of Job in the Old Testament than any other book in the world. I would rather have written it because in it, I think, there is more of majesty, of poetry, of imagery and drama than in any work of similar length known to me.

Yours sincerely,

Irvin S. Cobb

"The Terrible Robber Man" is this, one of the poems and one of the illustrations in "Rainbow Gold," an anthology of poems for children chosen by Sara Teasdale.

"More Beasts for Worse Children" is a book of nonsense rhymes by Hilaire Belloc, with illustrations by P. T. B. Whether or not children will see the delicious nonsense I don't pretend to know. They're funny when seen with grown-up eyes, though.

"The Girl's Book of Verse," compiled by Mary Gould Davis, is, according to Dorothy Canfield Fisher, who wrote the introduction to it, "Exactly the right sort of anthology for girls." It also includes the modern as well as the classic poets.

"Shoes of the Wind" is a volume of poetry by Hilda Conkling, aged 11, which, although it isn't written for children—it is simply poetry, undated as to audience, as most fine lyric poetry is—gives children a feeling that poetry isn't something that is exclusively to be made by grownups. Hilda Conkling has been making poetry since she was 6 years old.

"The Way of Poetry" is the title of excellent anthology of poetry for young readers, which bears the editorship of John Drinkwater, and has a delightful introduction on what poetry is and how it is read.

Garden's Shakespeare Loved.

For lovers of gardens and also Shakespeare students there is a book on "The Shakespeare Garden" by Esther Singleton which is at once a book of historical, literary, and horticultural interest. It is divided into three parts. The first deals with the history and evolution of the small inclosed gardens within the walls of the mediæval castle into the Garden of Delight, the Elizabethan garden, the herbalists and horticulturists and the new "outlandish" flowers, with such interesting facts as that one great London merchant actually kept agents traveling in the orient and elsewhere to search for rare bulbs and plants. The second part describes the flowers mentioned by Shakespeare and imparts much quaint flower lore. The third part is devoted to technical hints, instruction, and practical suggestion for making a correct Shakespeare gardenaa gardening feat which has become lately a great fad. Despite the libraries of books that have been written about Shakespeare, this is the first adequate one which has been done about the gardens and the flowers which he loved.

Enos Mills' Memorial.

Judge Ben Lindsay pleads that there be established an Enos Mills day in the public schools, and he does it with eloquence. Some of the men after whom the mountain peaks have been named discovered the bodies of our mountains, he says.

"Mills discovered their souls. In the sordid struggle of commercialism largely to enrich themselves men have discovered their mineral wealth. Mills discovered there a far greater wealth —one that may be shared with all mankind. He found there the sweet stories of the trees, the romance of the woods, and all living creatures that inhabit these temples of God."

Judge Ben Lindsay pleads that there women's clubs, the men's clubs, and all of the other influential organizations of Colorado to work for the establishment of such a day. In the meantime Mrs. Mills has bravely decided to carry on the inn which was so much a part of the life of Mr. Mills, to perpetuate in every possible way his ideals for it.

More About Maya.

It seems that my few and simple words about Maya the Bee, which I disliked with vigor because Maya is made to act like some soppy human instead of like a bee, because the insects have love affairs with other insects not of their own species (a most disgusting idea to me), because Maya seems to me like a human being masquerading as a bee (heaven knows I know nothing about the mental life of the species, but I'd hate to think that animals and insects were so harassed by the instincts of humans), because in a word I honestly didn't like the thing and said so, the publishers of the book feel I have done it a great injustice, especially since it has, as I frankly said, been extremely popular in the fourteen or so languages into which it has been translated. They say that in all fairness I ought to print this letter. Well, then, in all fairness, we will.

"We had assumed that anthropomorphism was a common enough fictional convention, employed, almost, since the dawn of letters.

"What about 'Aesop's Fables,' Rostand's 'Chantecler,' the insecto comedy of the brothers Capek now running in New York?—to take three sufficiently divergent examples. You instance Fabre's treatment of insects as the correct one; he does not, you say, allow insects 'to have affairs of the heart with other insects.' Are you not confusing science and art? What would you say of a critic who held it against Rostand's 'Chantecler' that the average cock does not probably think the sun rises because it crows? Or the critic who objected to Hans Christian Anderson's 'Ugly Duckling' on the score of an oversensitiveness which fowls actually do not feel?

"Curiously enough, in your admirable review of Carl Sandburg's 'Rootabaga Stories' on the same page you pick out for praise (and justly so) a bit of anthropomorphism far more bizarre than any in Maya the Bee. I refer to the two skyscrapers who decide to have a child and manage to produce a railway engine. (As a matter of fact, it isn't at all the same thing. There's no attempt there whatever at anything but fancy. Any child, as any grownup, would grant that it was fancy. Besides it wasn't the producing of the child that counts, it's the freedom of the child, freedom that is typified by a long, clean railroad train dashing to the ends of the continent.) It is strange that you do not object to this, but that you do single out for objection a type of allegory as old as fiction itself."

. . . (I'd like to print the whole letter, but it's too long.)

"Maya the Bee has achieved a great popularity. It is a thing of imaginative beauty, and no adverse review can kill it. But in this case I am sure you have done the book a real injustice, and I feel you owe us, at the least, the admission to your columns of this reply."

Apologies.

The note about Joseph Conrad which was printed under Tabloid Notes last week was written not by these fingers calloused with much toil on the typewriter, but by Sidney Dark in one of his entertaining letters from London. Some foul fate lifted it from his copy and put me in this embarrassing position of begging forgiveness not only from you but from him. I'm not so good as Shakespeare, and, therefore, I daren't pick other men's brains as he said he did.

Tabloid Notes.

Thomas James Norton, our fellow townsman and author of "The Constitution of the United States; Its Sources and Its Application," writes: "My book, which is only four months old, has gone through three printings. I am writing to remind you that a careful review of this book would be beneficial to the enormous population depending upon THE TRIBUNE and entirely unobjectionable to me.

"You pointed out some time ago that the James O'Donnell Bennett of Omar Khayyam's time did not recognize the best thing when he saw it, for which reason it was left to a reviewer some 700 years thereafter to aid the Rubaiyat to a circulation. That should make you careful.

"A knowledge of our constitutional theory is more important to the mass of Americans today than acquaintance with the Rubaiyat ever was to the world. William Bross Lloyd and some others have learned that. The information is coming to many more.

"Yours very truly,
"T. J. NORTON."

"The Life of Lord Northcliffe," about which Mr. Dark has written so continuously in his London letter, is to be published in this country by the George H. Doran company, but when still remains unannounced.

"Mirandy Exhorts" is the title which has been given to a collection of thirty-six of Dorothy Dix's black face Mr. Dooleys. Her Mirandy talks just as Mr. Dooley used to and to an audience as vast (they say she writes for fifty newspapers every day—syndicating, of course). In this volume she exhorts about everything from kissing to eugenics, and from automobiles to postmortems—allied, so to speak, subjects. Some readers seem to think that the exhortations are "gems for recitation purposes," but I claim that any one who adds to the burden of discomfort which the human race is now suffering under by doing Negro dialect recitations should be tried summarily and his (or her) punishment made to fit the crime. We're a bright nation, and we ought to be able to think up something more dashing than the stuff they tried in the Inquisition.

Who wrote "A Critical Fable" is almost as omnipresent a question as "Who Killed Cock Robin" was in its day. So far accusations of the authorship of that satire on the modern poets have been hurled at Conrad Aiken, Leonard Bacon, Gamaliel Bradford, Ferris Greenslet, Amy Lowell, Don Marquis, Edgar Lee Masters, and Louis Untermeyer. Meanwhile, the most cleverly contrived anonymity still surrounds the critic, who encouragingly says about such galley slaves as we. If they will run book columns, why some one must feed them.

And, after all, few take the trouble to read them.

Those who are of the school which believes that there is always a place for the new writer in the big magazines give, as an example of their contention against those of the school that no one has a chance except the men with big names, the case of one Gerald Beaumont. His first story, a baseball tale, which was submitted to the Red Book Magazine, was accepted. Every story after that was accepted. He was sporting editor of a California newspaper until eighteen months ago. Then he gave up his job and stuck to his muttons of writing. Many of his stories have been filmed; there has been one play produced in New York made from one of his tales, and two books of his stories have been brought out, the latest "Riders Up."

Edward Stratton Halloway in his new "Practical Book of Furnishing the Small House and Apartment" is a sturdy exponent of the school of style as opposed to the school of fashion. "Style is the ultimate perfection of appropriateness, of beauty in all its components—material, form, color, contrast, and ornament. Style also includes snap and chic. Unless a reader desires to chase a chantom and furnish anew each year, mere fashion should be ignored." And the book is a complete exposition of his thesis.

"Steel," the diary of a Furnace Worker, is one of those personal narrative books of the war—only it's of another great war, the economic war. Its author, Charles Rumford Walker, is a young graduate of Yale who followed his service in the A. E. F. with service in a steel mill disguised as a worker. He is now, by the way, an assistant editor of the Atlantic Monthly, but when he was with them his fellow workers in the mills never suspected that he wasn't born to the purple of labor.

Three new magazines plead for attention. One of them is something that we have all wished to have for a long time. The Literary Digest International Book Review, a monthly magazine which will review all of the important books issued both in Europe and in America. It will not, as I understand it, reprint reviews the way that the Literary Digest reprints news, but it will have original criticisms written by "the highest authority available," it says. Clifford Smythe, who has been the editor of the New York Times Book Review for the last ten years, is to be the editor. The first number is dated Dec. 1.

The second magazine, "Caprice," is of interest to Chicagoans because in the first number all of the contributors are Chicagoans of the "younger generation," although the magazine is published in Los Angeles.

The third magazine isn't really new, but it is going to suffer a sea change the first of February. "The Milwaukee Arts Monthly" is going to be called "Prairie" after that date, and is to add to its editorial staff Mark Turbyfill, whose verse you find in all authentic expressions of the younger intelligensia.

We heard the other day of another magazine called "Fig Leaves," "printed every month in the middle of the Garden of Eden," at Edinburg, Sex., edited by "Brother Ben," and subtitled "Just covering the bare facts."

A Gift Supreme For Any Boy Or Girl

MASTER SKYLARK
(Holiday Edition)
By JOHN BENNETT

THIS utterly charming story, appealing to adults as well as to young people, of a golden-voiced boy singer adventuring through the English country and into London with a strolling band of players in the time of Shakespeare has established itself as an American classic. It appears on innumerable especially selected and approved lists prepared by libraries, and it has won the highest critical approval for the remarkable faithfulness with which it has captured the feel of the times of Shakespeare and Queen Elizabeth in England's Golden Age. This new holiday edition is a richly beautiful volume printed with large type on fine paper and supplied with eight full-page illustrations in full color and many black and white decorative designs by Henry Pitz. At all bookstores. Price $3.50.

Critical thinking began with the Greeks

"The Greeks discovered skepticism in the higher and proper significance of the word, and this was their supreme contribution to human thought," says James Harvey Robinson in the startling book that is today changing the thinking of the world. Then came the Middle Ages, and to quote Robinson again—"Over the portal of truth they erased the word 'Reason' and wrote 'Faith' in its stead; and the people listened gladly to the new prophets, for it was necessary only to believe to be saved, and believing is far easier than thinking." For a thousand years the world dropped back into the intellectual darkness from which it had come.

What are we doing with our heritage?

The scientific revolution ushered in the age in which we live. We have explored the heavens and taken the world apart. Our material progress has outstripped our intellectual progress. "If we are courageously to meet and successfully to overcome the dangers with which our civilization is threatened," says Robinson, "it is clear that we need more mind than ever before. It is also clear that we can have infinitely more mind than we already have if we but honestly desire it and avail ourselves of resources already at hand." Have you availed yourself of all the resources now at hand? Have you brought your mind up-to-date? Have you read

The Chessmen of Mars

The strangest game ever beheld—a game played with living pieces—a game as full of surprises as baseball but more grim than a bull-fight—is the spectacle described by John Carter, Jeddak of Helium.

How Gahan, Jed of Gathol, played the game with nineteen fellow countrymen, for life, love and liberty is thrillingly told, among other hair-raising adventures in this astonishing planet.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Bishop Nicholson Dedicates Wheadon M. E. Church Today

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE REV. CHARLES B. ALTHOFF.
[Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo.]

BISHOP THOMAS NICHOLSON, assisted by Dr. John Thompson, First church, Chicago; the Rev. A. F. Clark, district superintendent; Dr. Charles M. Stuart, president of Garrett, Biblical institute; Northwestern university professors, and several Evanston pastors, will dedicate today the Wheadon Methodist Episcopal church, Ridge avenue and Noyes street, Evanston. The church was named after the late Rev. E. D. Wheadon, a long time resident of Evanston. Bishop Nicholson will preach at 10:45 and Dr. Thompson at 3. At the 7:30 p. m. service Drs. Stuart and Clark and the Rev. Horace Smith will make addresses.

On Wednesday evening there will be a dedicatory concert in connection with the presentation of the new pipe organ. On Friday afternoon a Christmas bazaar will be held and at 6:30 a dinner served. Special exercises will also mark next Sunday.

The new church, which consists of a remodeling of the old building and the erection of a new wing facing Ridge avenue, has cost $33,000. The Rev. Edward A. Wolfe is the pastor. In addition to those mentioned others who will take part in the week's program are the Rev. R. J. Wade, the Rev. A. T. Horn, Prof. Edmund D. Soper, the Rev. Elmer Pennewell, the Rev. Ernest F. Tittle, the Rev. Eric P. Swan, the Rev. Peter Finger, and the Rev. Morris W. Ehnes. John Freeman was chairman of the building committee and Edgar O. Blake the architect of the building.

The Episcopal Church of the Advent, Logan boulevard and Francisco avenue the Rev. Gerald Grattan Moore, rector, will observe today as the twenty-first anniversary of its founding. The Rev. Daniel Le Baron Goodwin, Cleveland, O., the first rector of Advent church, will preach at 11 o'clock. A homecoming reception will be held at the guildroom tomorrow evening at 8. Bishop C. P. Anderson will preach next Sunday evening and administer confirmation. Advent church has 500 members and expects soon to erect a new building. The church was organized in Temple hall on Advent Sunday in 1901.

Two plays for the benefit of the building fund of the new First Methodist Episcopal church building, Oak Park, will be given next Tuesday evening at the parish house of the Grace Episcopal church by the members of the Friendship circle of the Methodist church. "The Twelve Pound Look" by J. M. Barrie and "Society Notes" by Duffy B. West are the plays.

"What Is the Higher Criticism?" will be the subject of an address this evening at 7:30 by Prof. J. M. P. Smith of the University of Chicago at the Normal Park Baptist church, 70th street and Stewart avenue.

The Presbyterian Social union will banquet next Tuesday evening at the Hotel Morrison with the church's two leading officials as guests and speakers, the Rev. Dr. Calvin C. Hays, moderator, and the Rev. Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, stated clerk of the Presbyterian general assembly. This is the first appearance of Dr. Hays in Chicago since his election as moderator last May at Des Moines, and plans are being made for an attendance of 1,000. The choir of the Fourth Presbyterian church will sing. Walter R. Mee, secretary, 19 South La Salle street, is making reservations.

The Rev. T. J. Livingstone, S. J., will give an Advent course of lectures on "Marriage and Modern Progress," beginning at 7:45 this evening in the Holy Family church, West Roosevelt road and May street. The subject this evening is "Divorce." On succeeding Sunday evenings he will speak on "Eugenics," "Birth Control," and "Ideal Marriage."

A musical service, with William Middleschulte as organist and Eugene Dressler as tenor soloist, will be given at 8 p. m. at the Bethany Evangelical Lutheran church, Thorndale and Magnolia avenues, the Rev. Karl G. Schlerf, pastor.

A course of evening sermons during Advent will be given at St. Edmund's Episcopal church, 5831 Indiana avenue, the Rev. Gardiner MacWhorter, rector. This evening the preacher will be the Rev. George W. Thomas, St. Paul's church, and on the remaining Sunday evenings the Rev. Norman Hutton, the Rev. George Craig Stewart, and the Rev. John Henry Hopkins.

The fortieth anniversary of the Chicago Congregational Missionary and Extension society will be celebrated next Tuesday evening at a banquet at the Auditorium hotel. The Rev. Charles F. Aked, D. D., Kansas City, will be the speaker. Reports of the last year's work will be given.

Announcement is made by the Chicago Church federation that Jan. 21 has been designated as national religious drama Sunday, on which the churches will present the subject of the importance of the drama as an influence in the development of standards and ideals. It is also announced that S. D. Gordon, author of several books on the "Quiet Hour," will speak at noonday devotional meetings at some downtown theater from Feb. 26 to Easter under the auspices of the federation. Next Sunday will be Church Federation day in the churches of Chicago and suburbs, when the claims of the federation for support in the regular budgets of the churches will be made.

St. Ignatius Jesuit church, Loyola and Glenwood avenues, will show today free from scaffolding and all obstructions the paintings of St. Ignatius of Loyola by Augustine Pail, and the church itself will for the first time be seen to advantage. The church will be given a full and new illumination this evening in connection with a view of the paintings. A sacred concert will precede the first of a series of Advent lectures by the Rev. James Mertz, S. J., of Loyola university.

Meyer Both Company—the Largest Commercial Art Organization in the World—offers you an unusual opportunity for practical training. This method of instruction is created and conducted by the nationally known Meyer Both organization, who have been successful for twenty-two years—and who are this year selling to advertisers over eighteen thousand commercial drawings. Inside knowledge resulting from actual dominance of the field forms the foundation of the Meyer Both course.

Our teachers give you the double advantage of being themselves noted artists in the most modern art-producing company—and are instructors of proven ability as well. Meyer Both instruction is the difference between successful fact—and experimental theory. Commercial Art is a highly paid, intensely interesting vocation—equally open to men and women. Home study instruction.

WHAT MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN?

Pictanora.

TYPES OF BEAUTY.
By Selby Maxwell.

THERE are many different kinds of flowers, roses, pansies, violets, asters, sweetpeas, and carnations, each beautiful and complete in its own way. There are also many different types of women, with differences as marked as between blossoms. An artist walking along the street sees women in whom Viking blood surges, women whose minds still carry the weird, bleak notes of arctic Russia, after ten thousand years of exile; laughing curly heads whose faces tell of the orient; steel willed beauties of the third Cro-Magnon age; and daughters of our good old Anglo-Saxon stock.

is soft and dark, her eyes are grayish blue; she is tall and slightly built. In her courses the blood of the bronzed precursors of the Britons, Iberians of Semitic strain, who crossed from Spain to England while there was yet land between these countries. Her skin has not yet quite thrown off the tang of the desert. Her mind is still more in tune with the metaphysics of the east than with the blunt directness of our Aryan moods. She has power of imagination; emotional discernment, and power of expression. The blood of the north men flows in her, too. It makes her eyes blue, it makes her shrinking, yet daring and self-confident.

Pictanora should wear her hair long and brush it until it is black and glossy. She looks her best in black, with an abundance of jet and silver. She should wear wide black hats, for by this means the whiteness of her face will be accentuated. She should wear shining beads, silver shoe buckles, and flowing garments. A touch of red here and there may not be amiss. But she should avoid purples, greens, and such cool colors, for these subtract luster from her eyes.

It is a sad sight, for one who knows, to see a woman, who might have been beautiful in her own way, with her brows plucked and her face powdered in futile imitation of something she is not. Some cheeks are meant to be pink, some to be pale, some to be transparent and others to be sultry. Rouge on any but a pink cheek is as out of place as coal dust or street mud would be, and to a knowing eye it looks like what it is, red dirt.

If there was more knowledge about types of beauty there would be less aping of this or that famous woman and less following the blind dictates of fashion. Every woman, at some time in her life, achieves the highest realization of her type. Every woman has an individuality.

Pictanora is a British type. Her hair

PYORRHEA
An Alarming Condition

It is estimated that there are at least one-third of the readers of this paper that are afflicted with Pyorrhea and of this number there are a great many that have hopelessly given up and are at the point of having their teeth extracted. A small part of this number do not even visit the dentists, therefore, they cannot expect any help from the dentists or from any preparation that they do not use or abide by any certain rules as to diet.

The preparation, RIGGS'-O-DEAN, is being used by a big majority of the dentists in thirty-five states and is increasing every day. This is a preparation that will positively remove the pus out of any pus pocket if held in the mouth, full strength, for five minutes. You will find directions on every bottle. While it has been on the market less than five years, its growth has been phenomenal and it has been and is being prescribed by the best of the profession. At your druggist or direct $1.00.

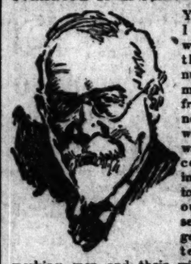
You Can Now Try This Newer Form Of Iron At My Expense

I First Compounded This Remarkable Remedy for My Own Neighbors and Their Praise of It Has Spread So Rapidly That Now Over Four Million People Use Nuxated Iron Annually—Read My Unusual Offer Below.



Years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always ailing, complaining and doctoring, without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalizing weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In compounding this newer form of iron which I call Nuxated Iron, I employed a special form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach, and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

Cut out trial coupon and go to any druggist and get your first trial package of Nuxated Iron; then see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 5-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron.

Trial Coupon

Fill in this coupon with your name and address and take it to any druggist in your city. Deposit with him the price of one regular full-size bottle of Nuxated Iron. This is not a payment, but a deposit only. If you are not more than delighted with the results obtained by two weeks' use of Nuxated Iron, simply return the outside wrapper to your own druggist who will promptly refund your money. We will repay the druggist the full amount he refunds upon receipt of the coupon and wrapper.

COMMERCIAL ART

Taught By Improved Methods

Many art school advertisements tell about the great and ever increasing demand for commercial artists—big pays—equal opportunity for both men and women, etc. Very good! This is all quite true, but you must first be properly taught. Understand! Properly taught! Few top notch artists are good instructors. Very few. By searching through many studios we have found them.

A Master Course Is Offered Either Class Room or Home Study Instruction

Endorsed as the official training school for leading Commercial Art houses, employing hundreds of artists. Correct educational methods applied. A practical educator and a corps of top notch commercial artists offer students the benefit of 20 to 30 years of high grade experience. Only the best instruction is good enough for you.

Students finishing half of this unusual course can secure and hold desirable positions. Course can be made to pay for itself many times while studying. Either class room or home study instruction. Same course. Same credits. If you like to draw, let's talk it over. Ask for our book telling all about Commercial Art and the opportunities it presents AS WE TEACH IT. Send it cents in stamps for postage. Or call at the Academy, one block east of Michigan Ave., north of the bridge.

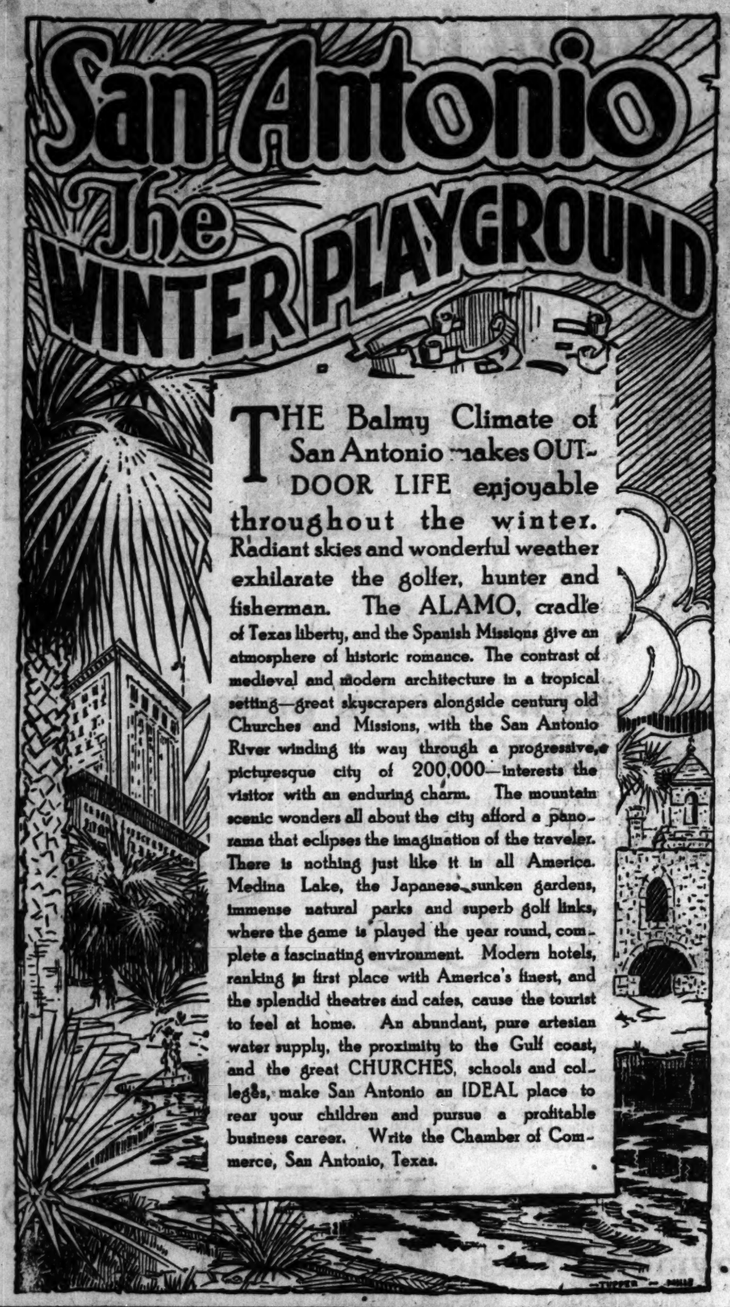
San Antonio The WINTER PLAYGROUND



THE Balmy Climate of San Antonio makes OUTDOOR LIFE enjoyable throughout the winter. Radiant skies and wonderful weather exhilarate the golfer, hunter and fisherman. The ALAMO, cradle of Texas liberty, and the Spanish Missions give an atmosphere of historic romance. The contrast of medieval and modern architecture in a tropical setting—great skyscrapers alongside century old Churches and Missions, with the San Antonio River winding its way through a progressive, picturesque city of 200,000—interests the visitor with an enduring charm. The mountain scenic wonders all about the city afford a panorama that eclipses the imagination of the traveler. There is nothing just like it in all America. Medina Lake, the Japanese sunken gardens, immense natural parks and superb golf links, where the game is played the year round, complete a fascinating environment. Modern hotels, ranking in first place with America's finest, and the splendid theatres and cafes, cause the tourist to feel at home. An abundant, pure artesian water supply, the proximity to the Gulf coast, and the great CHURCHES, schools and colleges, make San Antonio an IDEAL place to rear your children and pursue a profitable business career. Write the Chamber of Commerce, San Antonio, Texas.

The Gift Supreme

Learn now about the new Xmas present created by your Government

IF you have been thinking of giving some loved one a trip abroad, send the information blank today and learn about the great gift devised by your Government. It will bring into your home on Christmas day, in concrete form, the anticipated joys of foreign travel.

The U. S. Government Travel Certificate

The U. S. Government Travel Certificate may be made out for a trip to Europe, to South America, to The Orient or to Hawaii. It may be used by the recipient any time within the next two years. It may be paid for at your leisure. Behind it stands the good faith and guaranty of your Government. Learn the details of this wonderful gift at once. Thousands of select American homes will glow this Christmas with the happiness of a gift of travel. Christmas is almost here. Don't let your opportunity slip by. Don't be too late. Send the information blank today. You will be under no obligation whatever. Learn the details of this unparalleled Christmas opportunity.

To Europe

Treasures of painting, of sculpture, of tapestry, and objets d'art; the bold, free soaring and exquisite detail of the perfect Gothic cathedral; the quaint color and unique charm of half hundred different countries; long golden hours under unhurried suns; the exquisite aroma of romance about a thousand storied spots; ever-present tokens of the great men and women who helped to create our Western civilization; the gaiety of great capitals where life moves with so happy a grace—delights too many to enumerate! With them is the added interest of a political situation, the final results of which no man alive can accurately foretell. If you decide that all this is to be your gift, you cannot find a finer service than that of the great U. S. Government ships operated by the United States Lines to Europe.

"Sunshine Belt to The Orient"

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company's "Sunshine Belt to The Orient" traverses blue Pacific waters by way of the Hawaiian Islands. A day's stop is made at Honolulu, so that the traveler has time for a plunge at the Beach at Waikiki, a view of the incomparable Hawaiian scenery, and a glimpse of the colorful life of this city which teems with men of every race. Then more sunlit days at sea until with Yokohama the endless mystery and fascination of The Orient begins—Kobe, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Manila—names with which conjure dreams.

Short Route to The Orient

Government ships are also operated to The Orient by the Admiral-Oriental Line from Seattle. This is the famous short Northern route on which the swift Government vessels reach Yokohama in 11 days' sailing. Like the ships operated by Pacific Mail the Admiral-Oriental Line vessels are among the finest afloat—supremely luxurious and swift.

Ports of call are Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Hong Kong and Manila.

To South America

There is not enough space—there can never be enough space—to tell all the wonders of South America. This vast treasure land, with its infinite variety of produce, scenery, climate and population is too little known to Americans. The great Exposition at Rio de Janeiro this year, to which men and women of all nations are flocking, is doing something to correct this condition. U. S. Government ships operated by the Munson Steamship Lines make the trip from New York to Rio in just 11 days—the speed record. They are also the most luxurious ships to South America.

To Hawaii

The beauties of Hawaii—the Paradise of the Pacific—the ideal winter and summer resort—are too well known to require mention. The Los Angeles Steamship Co. operates Government ships from Los Angeles to Honolulu.

The ships are owned by the United States Government. They are operated by:

THE UNITED STATES LINES from New York to Europe;

THE ADMIRAL-ORIENTAL LINE from Seattle to The Orient;

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY from San Francisco to The Orient via Honolulu;

THE MUNSON STEAMSHIP LINES from New York to South America;

THE LOS ANGELES STEAMSHIP COMPANY from Los Angeles to Hawaiian Islands.

Are all experienced steamship operators and have made possible a service which is making the American Merchant Marine a tremendous success.

FULL SIZE BEDROOMS.

HERE are a few exceedingly desirable apartments—small and economical but with big bedrooms and a world of closet space—in a building like a fine lodge.

From a pretty court you enter a carpeted lobby with choice furniture. Carpeted terrazzo corridors, well lighted and ventilated, and elevator service appeal to you. Then you find large living rooms, regular sleeping chambers, and complete but simplified housekeeping facilities. Extra well built give the three room suites the sleeping accommodations of four. Large dressing rooms.

Decorations and Fixtures
Up to the Minute.

This building is decorated throughout in canvas in oil. The lighting, heating and buffet kitchen features leave nothing to be desired in beauty or convenience. Why live in an ordinary flat when you can enjoy these suites at a moderate price?

THE BUILDING OF SUPERIOR DESIGN

EDGEWATER COURTS IS NOW READY.

5019-35 Winthrop-av. [Near Argyle.]

3 and 4 room apartments.

RENTS, $90 TO $125.

For a number of years, on account of the popularity of small units, the builders have turned their attention to these, and four room apartments, with the result in many cases, on account of lack of experience in planning and lack of knowledges of the provisions essential to the comfortable occupation of apartments of this type numbers of buildings have fallen short of public requirements.

The Edgewater Courts is the result of years of careful study and experience on the part of the builders, coupled with the services of one of the most able firms of architects in Chicago, who in planning and building were given free rein to produce apartments that would satisfy the most exacting tenants.

We have not only to offer in this car a really fine automobile from an appearance and mechanical standpoint, but we have it at a price that is much lower than its present day market value. It is a car that should be seen to be appreciated, and we cannot describe it in this ad cleanly enough to do it justice. See it today. Price $975.

Special, $600.

DODGE TOURING, 1920. Picture in your mind a nice little 5 passenger touring car that looks like new in every detail. The tires are brand new, has brand new set of seat covers and other extras that put this car in a class above the average car of this type. It has very few miles on it and the motor runs exceptionally smoothly and quietly.
